China, France Explode N-Bombs

Times News Services

China and France exploded nuclear bombs in the atmosphere only hours apart today, the first time in history two such tests were reported carried out in one day.

The Chinese blast deep in the Asian desert was described by the Indian Atomic Commission as a one-megaton blast — equivalent to 1 million tons of TNT. It dwarfed the French test in the Pacific which New Zealand officials put below the 20,000-ton range, probably a missile warhead.

Neither France nor China announced the tests but they were confirmed by outside monitors.

The Indian monitors said China's explosion took place in the Lop Nor testing area in Sinkiang province, about 1,500 miles west of Peking, at 2 a.m. EDT.

A one megaton bomb has 50 times as much explosive power as the atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Australia and New Zealand said today they were lodging strong protests against the French blast. Japan said it also would lodge a stiff protest once it had definite information the test took place.

In Canada Prime Minister

Pierre Trudeau, called again Sunday for the international control of nuclear testing.

He told a meeting of the Canadian Jewish Congress here that no non-nuclear nation need get into testing itself, since the atomic powers signing the Non-Proliferation Treaty — the U.S., the Soviet Union and Britain — will provide explosions "off the shelf" for developmental purposes.

Although the speech was delivered with the French explosion expected any hour, an aide stressed that Trudeau's remarks were directed more at India than at France.

The French government refused to comment. It never announces the individual tests, but said earlier this month that this year's series will be the last conducted in the atmosphere.

The Australian government said a nuclear device was set off today over the Mururoa Atoll, the French test site 1,000 miles southeast of Tahiti.

Prime Minister Gough Whitlam of Australia said the new tests are a matter of deep concern to his government because they will result in radioactive fallout on Australian territory. He said the French statement that these will be the last tests in the atmosphere was a step in the right direction, but the French government has not given his government "any satisfactory commitment that further atmospheric tests will not be held."

Prime Minister Norman Kirk of New Zealand said he has told his ambassador in Paris to file a strong protest.

France now has set off 53 nuclear devices in the atmosphere since its first explosion in the Sahara on Feb. 13, 1960. Engineers now are drilling tunnels at Mururoa and neighboring Fangatofa Atoll in preparation for underground testing.

MONTREAL (CP) — An immediate increase in the wholesale price of Cadbury chocolate bars was announced today by the Cadbury Division of Cadbury Schweppes Powell Ltd.

The increase is expected to bring the retail price of a 15-cent chocolate bar to 20 cents, the company said.

It is the third time this year Cadbury has raised chocolate prices after 22 years of stability at 10 cents a bar.

John Newton, general manager of the Cadbury Division, said the newest increase was made necessary by continually rising costs for labor and raw materials.

Survival Caches Planned In North

EDMONTON (CP) — Plans to establish a system of survival caches in the north to aid downed aircraft pilots and their passengers were revealed during the weekend by Nicholas (Mickey) McClintock, secretary-general of the Order of St. John.

McClintock said in an interview that about 50 of the caches, in eight-foot-high cairns and containing rifles, ammunition, food and signalling devices, will be placed throughout the Arctic.

Tanaka Coming

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka of Japan will make a 14-day tour of Mexico, Brazil and Canada in September. Tanaka will leave for Mexico Sept. 12 for a four-day visit and head for Brazil for a five-day tour. He will then fly to Canada for a five-day stay.

Telephones Picketed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Telephone System switchboard operators set up picket lines at all major centres in the province today with supervisory staff providing limited long-distance service as the strike by 800 operators entered its third day.

Nixon Lawyer Sent To Jail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former personal lawyer, was sentenced today to a minimum of six months in prison and was fined $10,000 for his part in Watergate-related matters.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica gave Kalmbach concurrent prison sentences of six to 15 months on each of two counts of violating campaign practice laws in the 1970 congressional elections.

IRA Bomb Hits U.K. Parliament

Times News Services

LONDON — A bomb believed set by Irish terrorists exploded in an annex of the House of Commons during the morning rush hour today, setting a Parliament building on fire and injuring 11 persons, officials said.

The explosion, which immediately sent hundreds of security men to guard other public buildings, came just shortly before 8:30 a.m. as thousands of Londoners streamed into the city centre on their way to work.

It was the first such attack since Guy Fawkes' abortive gunpowder bomb plot 370 years ago.

The blast shattered a gas main setting off a fire that damaged 900-year-old Westminster Hall, one of the most historic buildings in Britain and impelled its world-famous hammer-beam ceiling. Fire fighting teams from all over the capital managed to put out the blaze before it did serious harm.

Scotland Yard said it accepted the bombing as a challenge from the IRA that no building or person is safe and rechecked security at Buckingham Palace and other sensitive centres.

Since the Palace of Westminster — a complex of buildings which includes the House of Commons, the House of Lords, Westminster Hall and the tower of Big Ben — has always been considered an obvious target for the IRA it has been under heavy guard.

But an underground car park is being built in the forecourt of Westminster Hall and several score workers, some of them Irish, have been engaged as laborers. With or without inside help a bomber managed to place from 15 to 20 pounds of gelignite in an alcove near the staff canteen.

At 8:20 a.m. today a caller with an Irish accent telephoned Press Association, a local news agency, and said a bomb was due to go off in the House of Commons in six minutes. The caller used a code word that identified his warning as genuine.

The warning was still being circulated when the bomb detonated about 10 minutes later with at least four Members of Parliament already in their offices preparing for today's session of the House of Commons which proceeded as scheduled.

None was among the injured. David Steel, chief whip of the Liberal party, said they got out into the street to find smoke billowing from the building and already almost obscuring Big Ben.

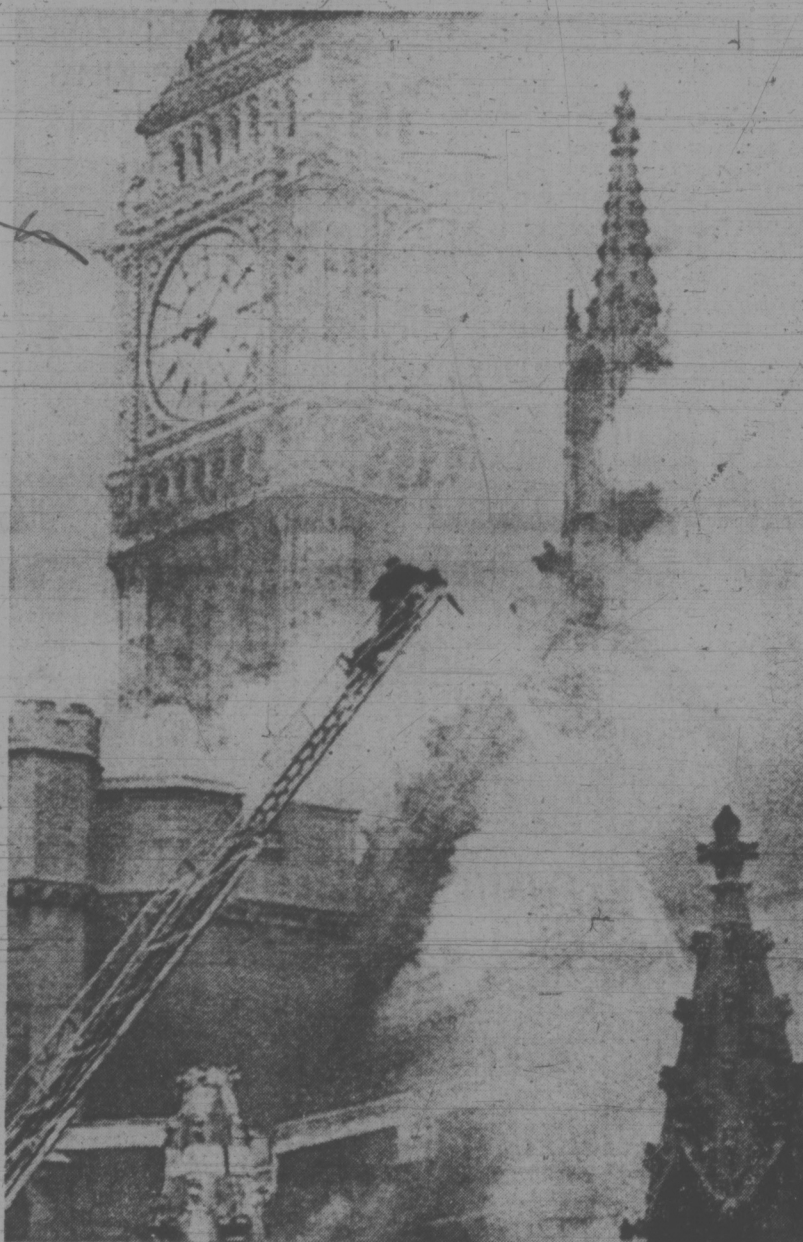

The last actual attack on the Commons came in 1971 when a spectator hurled a tear-gas grenade into the Commons chamber.

The last plot to blow up Parliament was by the rebel Guy Fawkes in 1604. Effigies of Fawkes now are burned every Nov. 5 in England to celebrate the failure of the plot.

Meanwhile, in Belfast, leaders of hardline Protestant groups today began a three-day conference to discuss proposals by a paramilitary group for a cease-fire and peace talks with the Irish Republican Army, militant Protestant sources said.

Hopes for a truce were buoyed by a statement from the more radical of the two IRA factions, the Provisionals.

"The Republican movement will not be found wanting in its willingness to talk," said Seamus Loughran, a leader of Sinn Féin, the Provisionals' political arm.

Trudeau Pledges Ottawa Will Subsidize Transit

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau today pledged a Liberal government to an urban transit assistance scheme that would cost between $275 million and $300 million over the next five years and would have the federal government paying a considerable share of initial transit costs in cities.

The prime minister, enunciating phase two of the Liberal transportation policy for the July 8 federal election campaign, said:

"A Liberal government would pay the total cost of Canadian-produced commuter vehicles and 50 per cent of the cost of stations of new commuter systems that have the approval of federal, provincial and municipal authorities.

Aides said this assistance to bring people in from the suburbs of such major cities as Toronto, Montreal and perhaps Vancouver would cost the federal government about $50 million in the next five years.

—It would pay 25 per cent of the capital cost of Canadian manufactured vehicles in federal-provincial-municipal approved public transit systems.

Aides said this program for all major cities would cost about $100 million over five years.

—It would provide financial and other kinds of support to encourage Canadian industry to provide the right kind of equipment and municipalities to come up with total transit systems. Aides said this would cost $50 million in five years.

The prime minister mixed the government's already announced policy on railway relocation with an offer to make the best use of railway rights-of-way for transit work as the

At least 500 protesting miners are expected to demonstrate on the lawns of the legislature Friday, but they'll probably play to an empty house.

MLAs made an agreement last week to prorogue the spring session Wednesday and most politicians will head for constituencies as soon as the marathon session ends.

But a spokesman for the Majority Movement, helping to organize the Save Our Jobs Committee demonstration against the government's mineral royalty legislation, said the protesters are coming anyway.

"MLAs will now be getting cables from various mining groups asking them to keep the legislature in session," said the spokesman.

Most IWA On Island Stay Off

Thousands of loggers and millworkers on Vancouver Island ignored their union leaders today and refused to work.

But on the mainland, most operations were reported to be running normally.

The men either didn't go to work on the island or were faced with unofficial pickets and went home.

The last contract between the International Woodworkers of America and Forest Industrial Relations expired at midnight Friday and today was the first full production day.

Roughly 80 per cent of the 14,000 IWA members on Vancouver Island were off work.

Negotiations for a new contract were continuing in Vancouver today amid union appeals to the men to stay at work until called out officially.

"The way to get an acceptable agreement is to negotiate it at the table," said IWA regional president and negotiating committee chairman Jack Munro. "We have arrived at some category revision settlements and made progress Sunday. I am optimistic."

Victoria IWA members met Sunday and voted "by an overwhelming majority" to support the negotiating committee and abide by the decision to stay at work, said local first vice-president Jack Groves.

Despite this, Sooke Forest Products, 400 workers, and Victoria Plywood, 200 workers, were shut down today after unofficial pickets appeared. Two logging operations, Canadian Puget Sound and Butler Brothers, employing close to 200 men, were also reported shut.

The B.C. Forest Products sawmill in Victoria ground to a halt late this morning after part of the production crew, planer mill men and green-chain workers, walked out. The mill employs 500 on three shifts.

The companion plywood mill, which employs 450, was still operating at noon and a company spokesman said the mill's powerhouse, which is in the sawmill section, was still operating.

Duncan IWA officials reported "everyone shut down" including operations at Chemainus, Youbou, Honeycomb

Flood Spilling In Okanagan

KEREMEOS (CP) — Osoyoos Lake topped its flood protection level of 915 feet above sea level Sunday evening and was continuing to rise.

Water was backing up in the Similkameen River from Nighthawk, Wash., into the lake.

At 8 a.m. Sunday Osoyoos Lake had risen six inches in 24 hours. The flow of the Similkameen River, measured at Hedley, B.C., had increased to 24,800 cubic feet a second from 22,800 c.f.s. Saturday morning.

And at Nighthawk, a small community just south of the international border, the flow had risen to 30,100 c.f.s. Sunday from 27,000 c.f.s. Saturday.

Residents of a trailer court at Nighthawk were watching water from the lake gradually creep closer to their homes Sunday, although the water was still two feet below the level reached in 1972.

At Keremeos, emergency groups replacing dikes along the Similkameen destroyed Friday, faced a new problem Sunday.

Pat Meehand of the Water Rights Branch of the British Columbia resources department said a spring created by water seeping under the dike had appeared and could easily wash out a road which runs on top of the dike.

A crew of 20 girls from a nearby school filled and placed sandbags in a 10-foot circle around the spring.

Two families were forced from their home Saturday as the Keremeos Creek broke over its banks, ruining vegetable and hay fields.

Several hundred acres of land, part of the normal flood plain, south of Keremeos, were under water, Earle Anthony, water rights branch engineer, said Sunday. He added that high water tables were expected to remain indefinitely.

Meanwhile in the Fraser Valley, the Fraser River at Mission was at 18.47 feet above sea level Sunday from 17.56 Saturday.

MAN, DAUGHTER DIE WHEN BOAT FLIPS

A Powell River man and his three-year-old daughter drowned early Sunday at Rock Bay, 25 miles north of Campbell River.

Raymond Norbury, 35, and daughter Iona drowned when their boat capsized after mooring for the night because of rough seas.

Norbury's wife and another daughter swam to shore, about 25 feet from the boat.

Car accidents claimed three other lives on Vancouver Island during the weekend.

Patrick Tisdale, 21, of Campbell River died Sunday afternoon in a rescue helicopter en route to Vancouver after he was involved in a head-on collision on Highway 28 north of Campbell River.

Corinne Miller, 22, of Nanaimo was killed early Sunday morning when a car in which she was riding hit a power pole and flipped over into a ditch near Nanaimo. Driver Lindsay Valliere of Nanaimo suffered minor injuries.

Adam Pierce Ashley, eight, of Campbell River died late Sunday afternoon when a car driven by Shirley Mullenberg of Campbell River struck him on the Island Highway just south of Campbell River.

Huge Fish Kill at Port Alice

extent effluents from the mill operation were responsible, as a number of other factors could have complicated the circumstances surrounding the kill.

A strong wind had been blowing up the inlet for two days when the company first reported the discovery of dead fish last Thursday, he said, and a large vessel had just entered the waters, churned up the bottom and

"generally stirred up the whole situation."

Estimates of the dead hake, which have surfaced in the immediate area, range as high as 8,000, and hundreds more have been washed up on beaches up to 10 miles distant.

Dissolved oxygen content in the inlet waters is predominantly a summer problem in the operation of the sulphite pulp mill, McCrossan said, and this summer the company is having to work to a new set of rules stipulated under its pollution control permit.

McCrossan said company officials had been "up to the mark" in reporting the fish kill promptly, and cutting back production while investigations were in progress in Vancouver, an official of the federal environment protection service said today the actual cause of the kill hasn't been "pinned down," and fisheries officials are uncertain whether the dead fish reported 10 miles away at Quatsino died from the conditions which caused the inlet deaths.

Last March, Rayonier was fined $1,500 on each of two counts after being convicted of polluting fish-bearing waters in September of 1973, when about 10,000 herring were found killed in the inlet.

POLL SEES SLIM WIN FOR GRITS

TORONTO (UPI) — Canada appears headed for another minority government July 8, according to a national survey broadcast Sunday night by the CTV television network. (See election story on page 21).

The survey of more than 3,200 voters, conducted June 10 shows the Liberals with 41 per cent of the vote; the Conservatives with 22, New Democratic Party with 13 and Social Credit with three.

However, more than a fifth of the voters, 21 per cent, said they were undecided — a higher percentage than at the same point in the last federal election.

The Liberals' 19 point lead over the Conservatives is slightly less than their lead at the same point in the last campaign, which resulted in a minority Liberal government.

However, the network said, the Liberal Party consistently registers higher than its actual vote in surveys and the Conservatives lower.

Using projections based on the last election, CTV said the Tories were doing better this time and, if the electorate behaves as it did in 1972, would have a slight edge in the popular vote.

Although a minority government appears in the offing, 73 per cent of those sampled said they would prefer a majority government. Another 21 per cent said they were opposed or undecided and six per cent said it depends on which party.

The CTV survey was compiled by Complan Research Associates of Toronto.

N-Aid For Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI) — President Nixon ended his Israeli visit today with a commitment to provide nuclear technology for peaceful purposes similar to one signed in Egypt last week, then flew to Jordan for the last stop on his Mideast "journey for peace."

The promise to sell nuclear reactors, fuel and technology came as part of an agreement that also contains provisions for additional U.S. economic and military assistance for Israel.

After signing the pact with Israeli Premier Yitzhak

Rabin, Nixon left for Amman where Jordanian King Hussein, the United States' oldest Arab friend, arranged a big welcome.

Nixon's Israeli visit was friendly although it was the first stop where there were placards referring to Watergate. There also was a small anti-Nixon demonstration in behalf of Jewish "prisoners" in the Soviet Union. It was broken up by police who pushed the protesters aside. Nixon did not see it.

Today's communiqué was very similar to the one Nixon signed with President Anwar Sadat in Cairo Friday, showing U.S. attempts to be evenhanded in its Mideast dealings. It calls for new U.S. economic aid to "offset the heavy additional costs inherent in assuring Israel's military capability for the maintenance of peace."

The nuclear agreement like the one signed with Egypt — and like similar ones with other countries — contains safeguards to make sure nuclear technology is used for peaceful purposes. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said.

Nixon's message throughout his visit to Jerusalem was one of U.S. friendship. He told leaders Sunday to take the necessary risks to "wage peace" so that the "cradle of civilization will not become its grave."

"Under no circumstances does the fact that the United States is seeking better relations with some of Israel's neighbors mean that the friendship of the United States and the support for Israel is any less," Nixon said in a toast at a dinner in his honor Sunday.

"We're used to taking risks and living with them," Israeli information minister Aharon Yariv said today in a statement praising Nixon's efforts to reach a permanent Mideast settlement. "The question is how big will be they be and what will be done to minimize them. Without taking risks one doesn't achieve anything."

Nixon's last stop on his Middle East journey is Amman, Jordan. The president then flies to the Azores for an overnight rest and a meeting with Portuguese President Antonio de Spínola before returning to Washington Wednesday.

their own consciences, because it would be a political act and that will be on their own heads," he said.

But there has been no indication from MLAs that the agreement to end Wednesday has changed.

Liberal leader David Anderson called the planning of the demonstration "too incompetent to be true. With enemies like that (Premier) Barrett doesn't need friends."

Anderson said he will be there for the demonstration since his party supports the miners' case but he finds it "regrettable" the miners are involved with the Majority Movement.

Prorogation will bring a welcome holiday for weary MLAs and most of the politicians said they did not know whether they will still be around Friday when the main demonstration is to take place.

Premier Barrett, Highways Minister Graham Lea and Public Works Minister Bill Hartley will be leaving Thursday for a three-day train excursion to Prince George.

Mines Minister Leo Nimsick is leaving Friday for a mine rescue competition in Whitehorse and said he did not know whether he will still be in the buildings when the demonstration begins.

Opposition Leader Bill Bennett will be back in Victoria Tuesday but his secretary said she did not know whether he will be around for the demonstration.

Conservative leader Scott Wallace said he has no plans to go away and will likely be around Friday, as will a few Social Credit members.

But most other government backbenchers and opposition members were either vague about their plans or sure they would be in their constituencies that day.

Along with expected prorogation Wednesday will come royal assent for Bill 31, the controversial royalty legislation the miners' group is protesting.

Royal assent will not be the final step for the bill to become law, however, since sections of the bill will still have to be proclaimed by cabinet.

final part of his nine-point transit program.

Aides said this feature would cost about $15 million over five years.

Mr. Trudeau announced phase one of the government's transportation policy recently in Edmonton. That dealt with freight rates, availability of trucks and freight cars and the like and much of it was reiteration of past policy.

Today's announcement was mostly new, aides said, adding that an announcement on intercity transit coming Tuesday also will be new.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand, whose statement in the last Parliament that transportation in Canada is a mess has been widely quoted by opposition parties, will hold a news conference Wednesday in Ottawa to discuss the whole Liberal package.

Trudeau reiterated his government's previous pledge to remove the 12-per-cent sales tax on all vehicles capable of carrying 12 passengers or more.

Aides said the program, while costing up to $300 million over the next five years, could realize considerable savings in terms of lower highway costs, less energy consumed, less use of automobiles and the resulting reduction in that pollution hazard and a general improvement in the quality of life.

They said the entire three-part transportation program seeks to reap improved and busier transportation manufacturing industry in Canada. They said the industry, such as bus companies in Winnipeg and London, Ont., and railway manufacturing in Thunder Bay, Ont., and Montreal now does about $50 million a year in transit-related business.

Bay, Cayce, Port Renfrew, Gordon River and Nitinat. About 4,000 men were out.

In Port Alberni, 4,032 men were out with MacMillan-Bloedel's plywood mill, Alberni Pacific Division sawmill and Somass sawmill closed as well as the Sproat Lake, Cameron, Franklin River and Kennedy logging divisions.

Two thousand loggers on the north end of the Island and in the Fraser Valley stopped work before the weekend began and many of the Island men flew out to the mainland.

The total number off work this morning appeared to be one-third of the 32,000 woodworkers along the coast affected by the current negotiations.

FIR increased its offer during the weekend to 10 per cent or 55 cents an hour, whichever is greater, in a one-year contract. Present base rate is $4.45 an hour but skilled rates are higher. Previous offer was nine per cent.

FIR also moved up the effective date of its cost-of-living proposal, to Jan. 1, 1975, from March 15, 1975. But the increase, one cent an hour for every .45 rise in the consumer price index, was unchanged. The IWA wants a cent for every .25 increase.

At a 30-minute bargaining session today, FIR increased its offer to 10½ per cent wage increase. Both sides were to meet again this afternoon with Munro saying "I still feel optimistic."

The union is maintaining unchanged both its cost-of-living proposal and its $1 an hour across-the-board wage proposal, in a one-year contract.

OPEC Finds Way To Freeze, Up Prices

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — The world's leading oil exporting nations — today announced that the posted price of oil will remain frozen for another three months.

But they said royalties will be raised 2 per cent in some cases and that taxes against Western oil companies also will be raised 2 per cent in some cases. The increases are expected to be passed along to the consumer.

The decision to maintain the freeze after July 1 was seen as a partial victory for Saudi Arabia which had urged a price decrease while the other 11 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) wanted an increase.

Saudi Arabia, the world's No. 1 exporter, is one of the few OPEC members with close ties to the United States.

Posted prices are those set by the OPEC for tax purposes and are not those charged the consumer. The rate has averaged $11 since Jan. 1.

The decision came on debate of a report of the OPEC's economic committee which had recommended a 9 per cent increase in the posted price to compensate for inflation in the industrialized nations plus an increase in the tax itself from the current 55 per cent to 87 per cent.

CARNIVAL RIDE KILLS WOMAN

BOSTON (UPI) — A 20-year-old woman was killed and 15 other persons injured Sunday at a Charlestown carnival when a ride called the "hurricane" lurched out of control, throwing passengers to the ground.

Police said a series of disputes between carnival workers and moving youths may have led to the accident. The operator of the ride had to leave his post, police said, because of injuries received in the fracas. The ride jerked out of control as a second operator tried to run it, witnesses said.

Stop Work —Laberge

MONTREAL (CP) — Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL), called on all Quebec construction workers Sunday to halt work in an effort to have an industry-wide contract renegotiated to include cost-of-living adjustments.

The workers should "stay out, even if it's an illegal strike, an illegal stoppage, whatever," Laberge said.

More than 80 per cent of construction workers in the province are off the job after walkouts or lockouts.

The QFL represents about 80,000 of the province's 115,000 construction workers. It urged the men to walk out last week following rejection by four building-contractor groups of a request to reopen the contract.

The groups said the contract, which expires in April, 1976, is binding and called on the government "to enforce the law."

Laberge criticized the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU), which represents another 20,000 construction workers, for not supporting the work stoppages.

He called CNTU president Michel Boursin "a real rat, a police informer" and a "collaborator" of Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

The stoppages, which began last week, have tied up about $10 billion in construction projects, including the Olympic Games sites in Montreal.

the weather

There were cloudy periods and a few showers along the B.C. north coast on Sunday. Elsewhere skies were sunny. Temperatures in the southern interior were again quite warm with Kelowna reaching 93 degrees for the highest reading in Canada. Weak Pacific weather systems will bring cloudy periods and a few showers to the north coast through Tuesday. Other areas will continue sunny as a ridge of high pressure remains across the province. Warm afternoon temperatures will persist throughout the southern interior.

Island Engineers On Job

Vancouver Island steam plant engineers employed by the provincial government were at work today, refusing to join about 50 lower mainland members of their union in strike action.

Picket lines were placed at eight provincial government institutions in the Greater Vancouver-Fraser Valley area, including jails, hospitals and schools.

In Victoria, all government buildings were manned as usual and according to information received in Vancouver, engineers at other provincial government buildings in the interior were working.

The union has about 240 members, of which 100-125 are employed in the Vancouver area and the bulk of those remaining in Greater Victoria.

The 7 a.m. walkout was to back a demand for certification as a separate bargaining unit outside the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

A BCGEU spokesman, Jack Adams, who is assistant to the general secretary John Fryer, said it appeared engineers wanted to return to a system of making representation to the cabinet rather than by collective bargaining.

The Public Service Labor Relations Act, which provides for bargaining collectively, divides the members into three groups — professionals, nurses and all others.

BCGEU is certified as bargaining agent for all but the professional and nursing categories.

The government employees' union said Sunday its members would not cross picket lines at the mainland institutions.

Work was being done by chief engineers and assistant chiefs at Vancouver Courthouse, B.C. Institute of Technology, Haney Correctional Institute, Woodlands School, Pearson Hospital, Jericho Hill School, Riverview Hospital and Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla).

Night shift workers at these institutions had been asked by the union to stay on the job, avoiding a shutdown of operations today. About 3,000 employees would be affected.

Julian Kennett, engineers' spokesman, said inclusion in the BCGEU allows daytime clerks and other union members vote and accept a contract which the engineers had no say about.

He said many BCGEU members don't work nights or on shifts so "how can they vote on those issues for other people?"

This is the first year government employees have had the right to bargain collectively with the government.

Kennett said the main issue in the strike is representation with the wage and fringe benefit issues to be discussed later. When negotiations start, he said, the union will be asking for a $300 monthly wage increase on a base rate of $875.

Kennett said communication with the north and Vancouver Island has not been good.

There is a chance the legislature could be picketed during the strike, he said.

The engineers want Pearson Hospital employees to cross picket lines, he said.

MEXICO TOURISTS WARNED OF POLIO

Victoria-area residents planning to visit Mexico this summer have been warned that a major outbreak of poliomyelitis occurred recently in the Yucatan Peninsula.

A. S. Arnel, regional health officer, "strongly" advises tourists to obtain their basic or reinforcing poliomyelitis immunization before leaving Canada.

Strike Shuts Ford

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. shut down four assembly plants in the United States and Canada until further notice today because a strike at a key stamping plant shut off the flow of auto and truck parts.

The president of the United Auto Workers Union, Leonard Woodcock, said the strike could result in massive layoffs throughout the Ford system within the next few days.

A company spokesman said he could not confirm that. The strike, which started last Tuesday at the key Chicago Heights stamping plant, halted production of such items as hoods, doors and roofs used in virtually all Ford vehicles.

About 4,000 workers went on strike at the stamping plant over failure to obtain a local contract agreement to supplement the national settlement reached last autumn.

The production halt led to parts shortages resulting in the shutdowns today of assembly plants in Los Angeles, Kansas City, Mo., St. Thomas, Ont., and Oakville, Ont.

Abandoned Baby Seal Air Rescued

VANCOUVER (CP) — A baby seal spent the weekend fighting for life in the Vancouver Public Aquarium after being found abandoned Friday on North Pender Island.

Aquarium officials said the female seal, estimated to be less than two weeks old, is now out of danger and gaining weight.

An RCMP spokesman said the seal was found by a person on vacation on the Wallace Point beach at the south end of the island.

It was picked up by an RCMP helicopter, which was already scheduled to fly from Victoria to Vancouver, after aquarium officials said it would die without a special feeding program.

John Ford, a whale trainer at the aquarium, said about eight seals are normally transferred to Vancouver each year because the aquarium is best equipped to handle them.

Ford said the umbilical cord was still attached to the baby seal. It was given penicillin shots and tube fed to build it up.

Major Ruling Due on Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two years after the Watergate break-in, the supreme court is preparing to make two historic rulings that ultimately may determine if President Nixon finishes his term or faces impeachment and removal from office.

The high court will hand down rulings on the thorny question of executive privilege and on whether a grand jury has the power to name a sitting president in an indictment.

The high court said last week it would hear oral arguments July 8 on both issues and gave Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and Nixon's defence lawyers until June 21 to submit additional written arguments in both cases.

The high court is scheduled to recess for the summer at the end of July, but it may decide to remain in session because of the importance of the two decisions involved.

The cases, which involve legal questions basic to the constitutional concepts of separation of powers and checks and balances, never have been decided by the high court.

Meanwhile, house judiciary committee chairman Peter Rodino says he is seeking to have the chambers of the full house equipped with earphones so the members will be able to listen to presidential tapes during an impeachment debate.

Rodino's comment to reporters amounted to an off-hand acknowledgement that he anticipated his committee would recommend the impeachment of President Nixon — otherwise there would be no need for the earphones.

There was no qualifying phrase, such as "if the committee recommends impeachment," when he discussed plans for floor consideration.

Time's Winged Chariot

Leonid Brezhnev's proposal for a U.S.-Soviet agreement to end all underground nuclear tests has, of course, been some time in the making. But it comes appropriately in conjunction with news that Mr. Nixon has introduced the atom into Egypt "for peaceful purposes", and thereby created a potential new problem for the Middle East and the world.

The negotiations of earlier years produced agreement on limited controls for nuclear testing. The ban on explosions in the air and in the sea has been observed by Russia and the United States, with a consequent reduction in the exposure of mankind to hazardous fallout. But since France and China refused to be bound by any such limitations, the bi-lateral treaty of the two greatest nuclear powers, while vastly important, was not fully effective from a global point of view.

A similar agreement to ban underground tests will also be a step forward, but it is obvious that this means of nuclear control is not enough. France, China, and more recently India, broke no international laws in making their tests because they had not subscribed to them. But they well illustrated the pressing need for binding controls that will embrace the whole planet. Today's French and Chinese tests drive home the point.

The inevitable spread of nuclear capability, even on a primitive level, to many more countries than the original atomic club, merely emphasizes the need for speed in drafting comprehensive rules and regulations for nuclear behavior, and the establishment of some global authority to enforce them. People living in a warehouse full of gasoline must have strict laws about fire. More essential is it for the world to agree to mutual safeguards against an even worse holocaust.

It is futile to insist that only this nation and this one should have the use of nuclear power — with its potential to escalate into nuclear weapons. It was natural for France and China to seek to master the genie that other nations had harnessed. It was illogical for the original possessors to expect them, or other nations, quietly to agree to become second-rate powers in a nuclear world.

That does not depreciate the seriousness of adding to the world's nuclear array, whether for peaceful or other purposes. What it does define is the necessity of gathering all nations, whether current or potential possessors of nuclear capability, into an effective system of international control and self-restraint. Otherwise our course cannot be other than downhill all the way, towards the brink.

Keeping the Mounties Cool

With an overwhelming consensus the 15,000 member Royal Canadian Mounted Police force has chosen a management-appointed ombudsman rather than a union to press future grievances. Through this arrangement, coupled with a 10.5 per cent wage increase retroactive to April 1 and improvements in long-service pay, the simmering discontent in the force may have been cooled.

But the seeds of discontent remain and the Mounties' proud traditions are still in danger of erosion from internecine frictions plus a tight-lipped discipline that went out the window with the charge of the Light Brigade. Under the new system a policeman wishing to file a grievance sends it to his divisional representative who submits it to the ombudsman who takes it up with the RCMP commissioner. A staff officer rather than an ombudsman occupied the intermediary role under the old system, with the inevitable result that some grievances could be blocked by divisional commanding officers.

Better salaries and the grievance reform are a step in the right direction, following the Mounties' mass meetings earlier this year. But many officers still complain about their "vow of silence" — rank-and-file policemen often are not allowed to give out details of routine investigations — and the belief that the seniority system has resulted in incompetence in the higher ranks.

There is also the danger that new reforms may be only a one-shot occurrence, to take the heat off, so to speak. But the fire down below could flare up again if the force continues to be run with too heavy reliance on the stiff upper lip and paramilitary coldness.

Bribed With a Sticker?

A Montreal postal union president has announced that mail workers will give priority to letters which bear an anti-zip-code message. A sticker or a handwritten slogan such as "Boycott the Postal Code" will ensure preferred handling, he said. The zip code is a preliminary step in the process of adapting mail-sorting to sophisticated machinery. The volume of modern mail and the cost of manual sorting has made conversion to automated equipment necessary.

Postal employees have been assured that they will not suffer from the conversion, although some may not like it. But mail is mail, and any action of postal workers to let their personal beliefs be the criterion in handling letters entrusted to them by the public should be treated as sabotage and result in dismissal.

Postmen who take mail home with them when they don't want to deliver it suffer penalties. Equally reprehensible will be workers who delay the handling of one letter as compared with another merely because the first one does not carry an advertisement for the worker's current campaign.

The federal government has been spongy enough in its attitude to postal delays and walkouts. If it condones deliberate sabotage in the postal service it will find itself in a tacit conspiracy to cheat the public. What comes next — only letters with a tip pinned to them get delivered?

PAUL WHITELAW

With Mr. Kissinger in Canada

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger makes his first visit to Canada as U.S. Secretary of State this week to attend the NATO ministerial meeting.

The secretary of state will fly directly to Ottawa from the Middle East, where he has been accompanying President Nixon.

While he will be preoccupied during his stay with the broad economic and defence issues that have shaken the NATO alliance, state department officials expect that some outstanding problems of Canadian-American relations will be raised when he meets privately with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

U.S. officials are stressing, however, that the visit is not a substitute for a meeting between the secretary and the external affairs minister — to discuss bilateral relations — that has been repeatedly postponed by Dr. Kissinger since last fall.

Bilateral Issues

"A trip by the secretary to Ottawa to discuss bilateral issues is definitely still in the works," said a state department official.

In addition to discussion of NATO problems it is customary for foreign ministers attending the ministerial conference to meet privately with as many of their colleagues as possible. But the private talks are always rushed and there is little opportunity for more than a cursory exchange of comments.

With Canada in the midst of a federal election campaign, the United States would not want to discuss to any elaborate degree bilateral matters — only to find shortly that it might be dealing with a new government. At the same time, the Canadian government — particularly during an election — would not want an extra day of bilateral talks to be squeezed before or after the NATO meeting, which takes place Tuesday and Wednesday.

"After having postponed plans to come to Ottawa several times, any serious bilateral talks at this time would appear as if the only time Dr. Kissinger can spare time to come to Canada is if there is some other international meeting. That would certainly be embarrassing," said one Canadian source.

An invitation to visit Ottawa was extended — and accepted by Dr. Kissinger — last September shortly after he became secretary of state. During a brief private talk with Mr. Sharp at the opening of the United Nations General Assembly in New York, Dr. Kissinger scheduled a tentative visit in November — but the Middle East war and subsequent peace efforts intervened. A second meeting this spring was called off for the same reason.

HENRY KISSINGER
... off in Puget Sound

While the focus of the Ottawa meeting will be on multilateral defence issues, U.S. state department officials are preparing a "briefing book" that will acquaint Dr. Kissinger with any Canada

—U.S. issues that may be raised when he meets with Mr. Sharp. Described by one state department official as being "eight or nine pages in length," it will outline briefly a number of environmental and economic problems.

"There are sections on Great Lakes pollution, the Garrison project, also Puget Sound," noted the official.

Canadian officials are being much more reticent about revealing which issues the external affairs minister may raise, although it is virtually certain at least some of the environmental problems will be mentioned.

"If you drew up your own list of the subjects that would likely be raised, you probably would get a pretty good idea of what they will talk about," a Canadian official told a correspondent here last week.

Topping any list of environmental issues is probably the threat of disastrous oil spills from tankers carrying Alaskan oil through Puget Sound off the British Columbia coast.

Canadian Concern

During a brief meeting here in February before the 11-nation summit of industrialized oil-consuming nations, Mr. Sharp said that he informed Dr. Kissinger the Canadian embassy would soon transmit a letter outlining Canadian concern over possible oil spills. The embassy has never revealed whether that letter was sent.

But in the heat of an election — and with reports that a number of Liberal incumbents may lose their seats in British Columbia — Mr. Sharp may well want some new assurance from the United States which he could make public.

State department officials said last week that Dr. Kissinger's exact travel plans are still uncertain. He is scheduled to fly from Jordan in a U.S. Air Force jet, but it was unknown whether he would arrive in Ottawa Monday night or Tuesday morning before the start of the NATO meeting. He plans to remain in Ottawa until Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

To the Brink

W. A. WILSON

Promises for Undecided Voters

OTTAWA — An exceptionally high level of undecided voters is showing up in all the polling that the political parties are having done and so far there are no clear signs that a trend is setting in either way.

The Gallup Poll indicated that the Liberals went into the campaign with an edge of a few points over the Conservatives and some of the unannounced regional polls which parties have had done for their own use tend to support this result. No one closely connected with politics seems to be as impressed by that fact, however, as by the number of voters who have not yet made up their minds between parties.

Over the years, an undecided level of about 25 per cent is normal in Canada during the periods between elections. It reappears very quickly after people have voted and generally does not start to drop much until shortly before the vote again.

This presumably is a reflection of the chunk of the population which is not permanently committed to any party — the floating vote that decides elections. It probably represents less actual indecision on the part of an important section of the population than suspended judgment, while people wait to see how parties and governments will develop.

Undecided Votes

In this campaign, polls showing more than 40 per cent of the voters undecided have been turning up and that is an unusually high level — a figure around a third would be more normal at this stage. The Conservatives are reported to have turned up a 42 per cent undecided factor in a poll they had done in metropolitan Toronto, commonly regarded as one of the decisive areas of the campaign.

A Liberal poll in the same area apparently showed an even higher figure, so much so that at least some of that party's organizers distrust it. They are more inclined to accept the Conservative result as the truer indication of the state of opinion.

As the parties bid for this uncommitted element, they are creating some future problems for themselves. Lip service is paid to the need for economy in government but there is a divergence between this and some of the promises.

Mr. Stanfield produced the best bit of economy-minded phrase-making with his promise to be "prudent to the point of frugality." Nonetheless, his proposals, a combination of tax concessions and actual spending promises, would seem to carry a price tag somewhere in the $1.5 billion-plus region. It is harder to put a figure to Mr. Trudeau's promises because the data necessary to know, for instance, what it would cost the taxpayer to "create a reserve freight car fleet" is not there and it is not clear how other proposals would be paid for.

The more important economic question, however, is the level of demand. Is it appropriate to the state of the economy? It would be exceedingly hard to cent. The combination of old age security and income supplement payments would be raised to just over $200 a month. This is all very well, but the Conservative leader claims that he would also "balance the budget." Except to talk rather glibly about stopping government waste, he has not said how he would achieve such opposing objectives.

By both the national accounts system of reckoning and the conventional budget presentation, Canada already has a budget that is virtually in balance. It seems unarguable that politicians should avoid any further stimulation of demand but it is a lot less clear that they could safely start deflating the economy unless they are prepared for a recession and heavy unemployment next year.

The massive underpinning of the economy at the present time is the big capital investment boom that is underway. These tend to endure because once commitments are made it is often expensive to pull back but the decisions are not immutable. They can be reversed.

It seems to me that the very high level of undecided voters showing up in the party polling must indicate a correspondingly high level of skepticism among the electors.

Not Impressed

The signs seem to be that this big, central core of the public is not yet sufficiently impressed by any of the party leaders or their approaches to be much swayed. That view corresponds to the opinion some party organizers hold at the present time — that neither Mr. Trudeau nor Mr. Stanfield is having a deep impact on the public. This is a point upon which one can get almost identical assessments from Liberals and Conservatives, although on both sides there are also some optimists who think their man is trailing clouds of glory.

Talking recently to two prominent political personalities, one Liberal, one Conservative, both widely experienced and shrewd politicians, I got almost identical assessments. Both agreed that there is a NDP slump in British Columbia which originates not with the federal party but with Dave Barrett's government. Both thought the Tories would gain. Neither man foresaw much change on the Prairies.

Both agreed that metro Toronto is up in the air, that the election could be won or lost there. Both conceded Quebec to the Liberals with, probably, some small gains from the Creditistes. Both thought that small-scale Liberal gains in the Atlantic provinces were likely.

The Tory thought his party was gaining strength in rural Ontario but the Liberal disagreed, believing that Eugene Whelan's farm influence was helpful to his side. That was the sole serious element of disagreement between the two. Neither felt any party leader was so far having deep impact. Both were extremely conscious of the big undecided element. Neither felt sure who would win the election.

Editorial Correspondence

Autistic Children

I am the mother of an autistic child and so am of course terribly disappointed that the Autistic Society's request for a residential treatment centre was turned down by Human Resources Minister Levi. I was just wondering if it is really understood what the centre would do for these children. I fully agree that children belong in their home not in an institution. I really love my daughter and would much rather have her here at home with me. However, I have seen Laurel House in Vancouver, which is what the treatment centre here would be based on. They have done wonders with the children there teaching them to talk, to read and learn their basic school work, and to behave in a socially acceptable manner. They have even helped some of the children to get into the public school system.

True, autistic children are slow and have a long way to go but they are learning and with normal children. This can only be done by helping them every waking hour of the day to learn, even in play. I know if help was given in the home they would still progress, but on a much slower basis.

All of these children are already years behind what a normal child their age should be, and if they were given help in a residential treatment centre which is really a training centre they would have a much better chance of catching up. If they can't catch up reasonably they end up in an institution eventually anyway, no matter how long you keep them at home. Nobody lives forever and who else would take care of them. I definitely never want my Laura to have to be in an institution and I feel that a treatment centre is the best possible way to keep this from happening.

I ask Mr. Levi, please reconsider your answer for you will find that you have made possible a great beginning for a near normal if not normal future for these children. — (Mrs.) Carol Perry, 912 Kingsmill Rd.

Litter Patrols

I would like to express my deep appreciation to the volunteers from the public and private schools and the Girl Guides who patrolled the streets during the recent Victorian Days celebrations picking up other people's litter.

Such a glorious shining example! I hope the effect was not lost upon bystanders. Such a small act — picking up a piece of paper. Such huge rewards for so little effort! If everybody would stoop to pick up one piece of litter on the sidewalk each day, Victoria would be the cleanest city in North America.

We are deeply indebted to these volunteers. The streets patrolled by the children were the cleanest in the city, a happy contrast to other unfortunately littered areas. — Monte Vanton, Chairman, Clean-up Committee, Victorian Days Society.

Twitchy Candidates Wonder: Is Campaign Needed?

There are various theories to explain the voter apathy now sweeping B.C., but the novelty award must go to the candidates on lower Vancouver Island.

They believe the press is partly responsible, having failed miserably in its alleged duty to foment a decent level of election hysteria. The lament is offered more in sorrow than in criticism.

The viability of the implicit solution aside, it would be difficult to fault the analysis of the major problem facing the Victoria-area candidates as well as their brethren elsewhere in the province. It is voter disinterest.

Allan McKinnon, the incumbent Conservative in the riding of Victoria, says he is reminded of a Viet Nam war slogan: "Suppose they had a war and nobody came."

"That's how I've started to feel about the election," he says. "Maybe nobody's coming." The sentiment is echoed across party lines. McKinnon's Liberal opponent, Frances Elford, suggests that the local press hasn't gotten into "the spirit of the election."

"I don't think the general public will get all that excited until TV, radio and newspaper coverage is increased," she says, but later concedes that "it's not all the responsibility of the press."

anybody coming?

bility of the press." The NDP candidate in the same riding, Peter Smart, is less charitable.

"I think the media should pay more attention to local candidates," says Smart. "So far the campaign is pretty dead." Similar laments can be heard from campaign headquarters in Vancouver.

In brief, the problem appears to be finding something, anything, to fill the vacuum left in the wake of the departed jets of the departing national leaders.

There are no overriding local issues in most ridings, and the candidates are becoming twitchy. After all, how many ways are there to say wage-and-price controls, or Trudeau is a great leader.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of the B.C. campaign to date is the entry of Margaret Trudeau. Not necessarily significant, but definitely interesting.

Since her well-publicized testimonial to a Vancouver audience about the prime minister's loving abilities, Mrs. Trudeau has been blizzarding B.C. with the fervor of an encyclopedia salesman.

She lent her presence last weekend to a well-photographed lawn party in Victoria. From there, she skipped back to the mainland and joined Liberal candidate Simma Holt on a door-knocking expedition in the working-class riding of Vancouver-Kingsway.

By MARJORIE NICHOLS

Mrs. Holt, an author and Vancouver Sun columnist, is waging a vigorous campaign to wrest Kingsway, the seat vacated by retiring Grace MacInnis, from the NDP. If she succeeds, it will be a major coup, and even the NDP agree that her chances are good.

After her spin through, Mrs. Trudeau sped off for the Fraser Valley, where she shared a platform with Liberal aspirant Jerry Pringle in Chilliwack.

The most notable aspect of that visit was Pringle's tongue-tied introduction of the prime minister's wife as "Margaret Truman." Though she invariably takes a microphone to offer a few well-measured political words, Mrs. Trudeau obviously was trained by her husband's advisers.

She talks, she smiles, she adopts photographic poses, but she never, never submits to an interview. The press can and do complain, but the generous coverage that follows, gives testimony to the ingenuity of the scheme.

For their part, the national leaders have been duly apologetic of B.C. and its 23 seats. All have paid flying visits to the province at least once, but the record is held by the prime minister, who last week touched down for the third time.

David Lewis, still on the low-cost bus-leg of his campaign, spent several days in Vancouver earlier last week. His most notable journey was to skid road beer parlors and flop houses. Upon emerging, his wife ever-present at his side, the NDP leader expressed shock and dismay at housing conditions, and assured the TV cameras that a socialist government would correct the situation.

At each stop, of course, each of the leaders carefully drops a chunk, or a sliver, or even an entire plank of his re-election platform. But, to date, the only plank-dropping with a legacy was Trudeau's announcement in Vancouver

of his low-down-payment housing plan.

But it is not an enviable legacy. The criticisms of the scheme earned larger headlines in the local papers than did the original prime ministerial pronouncement.

The morning paper, The Province, outdid itself. Its reaction story carried a prominent front-page picture of a miserable-looking little bungalow identified as typical of the type of housing that could be afforded by Vancouverites pursuant to the new Liberal scheme.

Criticism of the government housing policies reached such heights that Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford felt compelled to call a news conference to set the record straight. He did not earn headlines for his effort.

Those who are paid for sticking their fingers into the political winds detect an upswing in B.C. of Conservative fortunes, at the expense, mainly, of the New Democrats. But this merely reaffirms the pre-campaign view that the declining popularity of the Barrett government would handicap the party's federal wing.

The last month, apparently, has changed nothing. Who knows, maybe the electorate has already made up its collective mind, and the campaign is irrelevant.

Unemployment Insurance: It's Not Issue Any More

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — There was a contrast between editorial and political reporter's comments about the resurrection of Bryce Mackasey as a federal cabinet minister — this time "without portfolio."

Except in Montreal, there was general editorial asperity or derisiveness that Trudeau should have brought back this "failure" or "disaster." Most reporters and columnists I have read or talked to about the Mackasey return were pleased. They either liked Mackasey or think he is good copy, or believe he is more human than most Grit ministers, or think he is one of the few men who symbolizes what the Liberal party should be about when it thinks of itself as liberally-minded.

The horns which the editorial writers hang on the Mackasey head are for alleged abuses, riffs, extravagance, etc. in the Unemployment Insurance Commission, following changes in the act dealing with the commission which Mackasey put through as minister of manpower and immigration. Sometimes they pin the immigration mess on him because of our hundreds and thousands of illegal visitors. They remember Mackasey as the first minister of labor who dropped neutrality at the cabinet table and organized labor's case. He also bullied through legislation instituting a process of accommodation in labor agreements to technological change, something the business community screamed murder over.

One editorial interpretation which did not emerge about Mackasey's return, was that it signifies the disappearance of unemployment insurance as an issue in the current campaign. It is a dead issue. If the failings of UIC were as hurtful to the Liberals today, as they allegedly were in the fall of 1972, and Mackasey is tagged with the failings, then the PM would hardly have brought him back. He wouldn't, that is, unless he planned to tackle the Conservative head-on over unemployment insurance and needed a rough-tough debater.

Since he resigned from the cabinet, in the late months of 1972, Mackasey has refused to acknowledge there was much wrong with the amendments he had made in the UIC Act. He also had been openly disturbed over the prevarications and defensiveness about the UIC by his successor, Robert Andras.

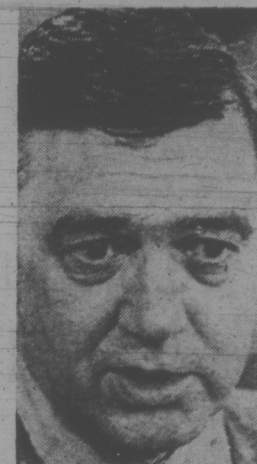

In the House and its committees and across Canada, to any audience he could get, Mackasey stood by the main particulars of the UIC and its work. He is ready still to charge forward on this subject but may not have to because there have been some changes in the Trudeau government's position on the subject since the election was called.

Few people except perhaps the Tory strategists close to Stanfield, have noted the changes on May 29. Andras spoke in Ottawa about unemployment insurance policy. Not his usual wishy-wash self, Andras was firm and tough. He conceded nothing to Tory critics.

Indeed, he counter-attacked, accusing them of "copping-out" by demanding a commission of inquiry. He said that the UIC program "is accurately described as the best in the world." The administrative reforms or adjustments carried out in the last year had made the operation efficient, curtailed abuses and fitted it in nicely with manpower training and mobility programs.

Andras made it clear that the government stood by the reforms carried out by Mackasey. Before the reforms, the benefits for the unemployed had been too low. Too few Canadians were covered by unemployment insurance and the federal government was not carrying its share of the cost load, even though its fiscal and monetary policies had such consequences on the number of the unemployed.

Andras used arguments familiar from Mackasey's speeches made before he left the cabinet. The UIC had taken the risk of charging ahead quickly with the new act in January 1972. The strains on the administration with complex revisions had been hard. Grievances of claimants and their MPs had piled up. The pressures had been worsened in the fall of 1972 and up to the summer of 1973 by the higher levels of unemployment. Now that unemployment had dropped substantially and there are high indices of "help wanted" and "job vacancies" it is clear that only in a few rather minor particulars, is the UIC Act not working well.

HITTING THEM WHERE IT SMARTS

By JOHN NICHOL

Shortly, we are about to be hit with a smothering blanket of political advertising. We will be courted on television and caajoled on radio. In the newspapers we will see huge advertisements in which the candidate's nostrils loom like the caves of the Coptic Christians.

How does this all come about? Well, deep in the wilds of Toronto there are secret places where the advertising druids cast their magic runes. They are given large bags of gold to tell you what you think — before you even think it.

Take my hand and I will lead you into this world of mystery. Now we are walking across the terrace floor of the sleek skyscraper in downtown Toronto. The rosewood lined elevator cost more than the average house in Moncton, New Brunswick. We are now at the 36th floor at the offices of O'Grady, McGregor, Stushoff, Bernstein and La Flamme. They cover the ethnic spectrum.

As we enter the board room and hide behind the fireproof beige curtain, we see that we are just in time. They are filing in. The account boss is in his serious suit. His secretary is in her $200 jeans with LOVE on the left cheek.

There are people with books and folders. Nobody smiles. The party man, who is the client, has no shine on his shoes, and egg on his tie. Not much — but egg nonetheless.

The account boss speaks, "We have worked up this campaign to hit them where it hurts. The leader will appear in our ads in a massive profile — a great stone face. He will stare at horizons beyond the ken of us common people. He will look beyond the horizon to where the sun sets into the sea. Beneath his picture the caption will say in huge black letters — A MAN FOR TOMORROW! You like it?"

The party man — his eyes wet with tears — says "I like it!"

The account boss speaks again, "For radio we have the sound of roaring city traffic mixed up with bird calls, steamboat whistles, fog horns, the low of feeding cattle, and the odd cry of a baby. Over this a voice says "Canada is many things. Each of us must choose his own path but on election day each of us must answer the call of his conscience. Don't be fooled. Vote for your future. Vote for the MAN OF TOMORROW."

The party man — sobbing into his styrofoam coffee cup — says "I like it!"

"And now," the ad man says, "Let's get to television. We are aiming this campaign at the old broad with the blue rinse. Turn down the lights and roll it."

The flickering screen lights up. We see a street down which teeters an aging lady with blue grey hair. She is the ad man's mother who has been paid two hundred dollars to do her bit. The camera zooms in on her and a voice says, "Excuse me madam, but how are you going to vote?"

"Eek!" she says, "you caught me by surprise! I'll vote for the MAN OF TOMORROW. I like his policy on the interest equalization tax and the Eurodollar swaps. It means a lot to people like me! Besides he has a great stone face that stares at horizons beyond the ken of us common people. I know what I'm going to do." The announcer's voice then says, "She knows! And so do you! Vote for the MAN OF TOMORROW!" Fade.

The party man is drying his eyes with his tie. "I like it! I like it!" he cries.

A Symbol For Fanatics?

FAR EASTERN ECONOMIC REVIEW

Just what motivated 2d Lt. Hiroo Onoda to fight his lonely jungle war in Lubang for thirty long years? Was it Bushido, the Samurai's code of chivalry, which forbade surrender? Was it a fanatic loyalty to the Emperor, on whose absolute orders — given via his superiors — he went to war? Was it a monomaniacal obsession which gradually came to dominate his mind as it became more attuned to the savagery of his jungle environment than to the dictates of any human rationality?

Onoda "was very much the soldier, not the noble savage." When his only comrade, Cpl. Kinshichi Kozuka, was killed in 1972 by Filipino police, he was "totally obsessed by a burning desire for revenge."

Onoda and his late companion had terrorized Lubang since 1944, stealing food and property and probably killing more than thirty civilians in their two-man war. It is hardly surprising therefore that when Onoda returned to Japan he apologized for the trouble he had caused to those who had searched for him, but spared no word of regret for the crimes he had committed against civilians.

The main question is whether Onoda really knew that the war was over. He obviously did, for a transistor radio that he had stolen helped him to keep up with the times, and his former commanding officer reported that he was abreast of such issues as pollution.

Onoda has returned to a time when the forces of the left are growing, although this may be a feeble phenomenon lacking the substance of the current right-wing backlash — in which Onoda could give real impetus. The returned soldier has walked on to a stage as a symbol of "long-lost virtues" and "loyalty to the Emperor," as the demand is growing for a revival of a fascist system, under an absolute emperor and with a rewritten constitution.

The rest of Asia must hope that the hero's welcome given to Onoda is merely the sort of curious admiration which would greet the appearance of one of the last surviving dinosaurs, and that Onoda does not become a powerful symbol for those who want prehistoric monsters to breed again.

In case any reader should feel that the fears expressed (here) are exaggerated, it may be worthwhile quoting Japanese editorials on the "Onoda spirit." The Mainichi — "although in no way trying to idolize Onoda" — stated that "his unyielding and resolute attitude" may be "beyond the comprehension of the present-day generation, so used to living in material affluence... his life is a great contrast to that of the people who today weigh everything according to personal benefit...."

All praise therefore to the Asahi Shimbun, the only newspaper to report the real Filipino angles of the story and whose Manila correspondent, Masaru Saito, first reminded his readers of the need to compensate the Lubang islanders, for whom the death and violence of the Second World War have also only just ended. Since 1944, Japanese stragglers are reported to have been responsible for about sixty major incidents in Lubang including killings, woundings, arson, and theft.

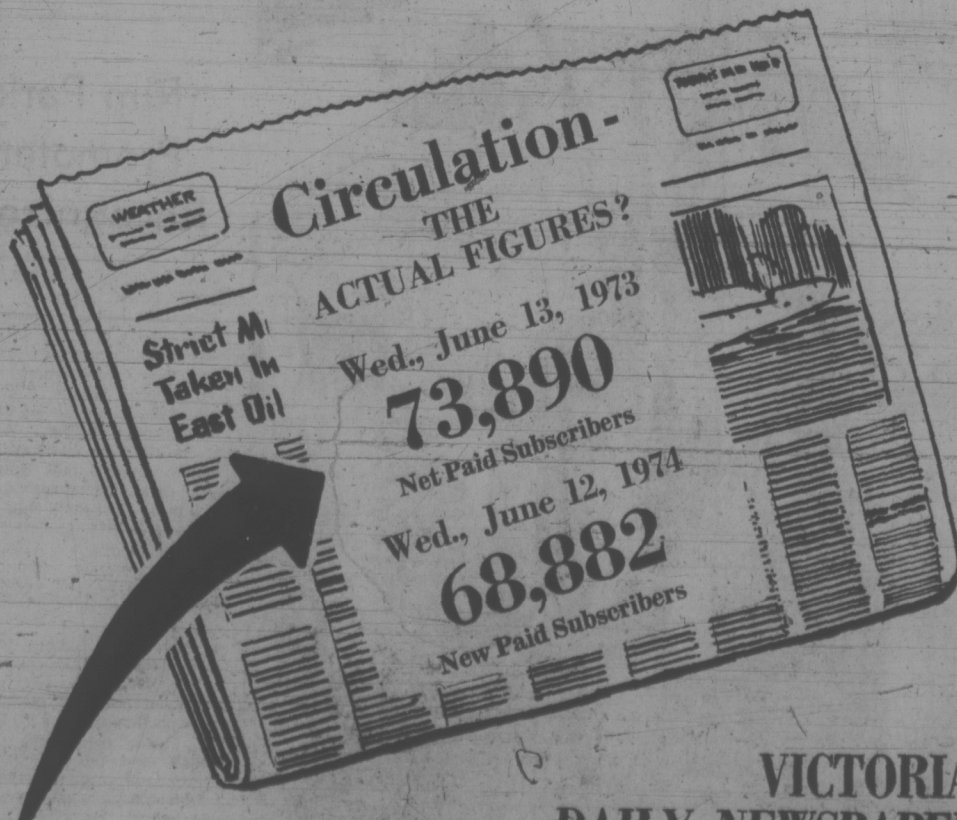

IT'S A QUESTION WE GET EVERY DAY

We're pleased to say "It's doing quite well, thank you, and is only down 6.7% from a year ago."

That's not a press run, nor free distribution. It's honest-to-goodness paid-for circulation — the kind that GUARANTEES the admittance of your advertising into the home. People pay for the Colonist or the Times (a few take both — less than 5% now). They want it and welcome it as their major news source — and news includes the news about products and services in the advertising columns.

Considering we were out of publication for nearly six months, that 6.7% figure is a pretty good one, and with the programs under way at the present time, we're sure we'll be recovering that lost ground quickly.

John Labatt Ltd. reports profit for the year to April 30 of $22,564,000 or $2.15 a share, up more than 10 per cent from a year earlier. There were no extraordinary items. Restated earnings for the previous year were $20,435,000 or $1.93 a share before extraordinary items and $17,836,000 or $1.64 a share after extraordinary items.

Sales for the latest fiscal year totalled $603,014,000, up $85,329,000 from $517,685,000. Beer sales rose 6.9 per cent compared with the industry average of 5.6 per cent.

The company says in a report to shareholders that earnings in the industrial products division "increased substantially, returning this segment of the company to more reasonable level of profitability." Consumer products, with the exception of Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd., also showed improvement.

El Paso

El Paso Natural Gas Co. has announced a proposed merger to create a holding company authorized by shareholders has gone into effect.

Under the merger terms, El Paso Natural Gas Co. became a subsidiary of the holding company, known as the El Paso Co.

Holders of shares of El Paso Natural Gas common stock automatically become holders of an equal number of shares in the holding company.

The action was authorized by stockholders on April 30.

BORG-WARNER ACCEPTANCE

RICHARD M. HINTON

The appointment of Richard M. Hinton as divisional manager of Borg-Warner Acceptance Canada, Ltd., is announced by Raymond J. Barber, president. Mr. Hinton previously was manager of BWAC's eastern region. In his new position, Mr. Hinton will be based in Vancouver and will be responsible for BWAC financial services in the western provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and Northwest Territories.

Borg Warner Acceptance is one of the fastest growing financial services companies in Canada. BWAC has offices in most provinces from which are provided wholesale and retail financing, commercial financing and leasing, accounts receivable financing, mortgage financing, and business loans.

First Packaged Banking Paid Off in Customers

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Bank of British Columbia had a three-month start on its competitors in introducing its Western Account, a package of banking services for a fixed monthly fee.

"We were very successful during these three months in attracting customers from other banks," said Wayne Allen, Bank of B.C. senior vice-president. "Of course, it became more difficult to do this when the others brought in their own plans," he said.

When the Bank of B.C. introduced its services package in July, 1973, most other banks were working on similar plans. At least one trust company is also promoting its own package.

Allen said that initially the Western Account brought customers back from the trust companies and credit unions. "I think it's fair to say that our multi-service package is at least holding customers who might now be thinking of moving to other financial institutions," he said.

The multi-service packages cost $2 to $3, depending on services offered and include unlimited cheque-writing; personalized cheques; no charge on purchase of travellers cheques, money orders or drafts on Canadian funds; payment of utility bills; overdraft protection; cashing of cheques at any branch; and safety deposit box or discount on this service.

Most packages also offer reduced interest rates on certain types of personal loans.

The Bank of B.C.'s Western Account also offers four-per-cent interest on minimum chequing account quarterly balances of $100 or more.

In addition to the Western Account the Vancouver-based bank also features the Pioneer Service Plan, a similar package for persons over 65 years old, which includes the "inflation fighter savings account," on which the interest rates are adjusted annually, based on the consumer price index.

Commenting on the indexing of savings account interest, which no other banks have yet instituted, G. Arnold Hart, chairman of the Bank of Montreal said "indexing is a palliative — it is merely coping with the problem of inflation, not solving it."

David Walton-Ball, manager of the Marketing department of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Toronto said their Key Account is already profitable in financial terms but, "we don't evaluate it on that sort of basis."

He said the important part of the plan is that the bank has been able to sell a broader range of services to customers at one time.

NORTH SEA OIL LOOKING BETTER

ABERDEEN, Scotland (Reuter) — A new oil find in the North Sea last week indicates that an existing field is much bigger than experts originally estimated.

The United States Conoco Co. announced that its latest positive drilling test 85 miles northeast of the Shetland Islands was about a mile from a discovery well in the Thistle field.

The Thistle field, owned by a consortium headed by the Burmah Oil Co., had been expected to yield about 200,000 barrels a day. Oilmen speculated that there is another 50,000 to 100,000 barrels a day in the extended field.

The new find belongs to Conoco, Gulf Oil Production Co., and Britain's national coal board and could give the group 20 to 25 per cent of the Thistle field oil, according to trade sources.

Victoria Dominates School Track Meet

Victoria district athletes turned in an overwhelming display of strength in the annual Vancouver Island elementary school track and field championships Saturday.

The victors captured 56 of the 68 events to roll to a decisive team triumph in the one-day meet at Centennial Stadium which attracted 800 competitors.

The winners dominated the relays, placing first in eight of the 10 races, and broke 20 records while tying two.

Victoria finished well ahead of Campbell River, which edged Sooke for second place. Duncan finished fourth, Saanich fifth and Lake Cowichan sixth.

Despite Victoria's dominance, up-island entrants still managed to display some individual brilliance.

Duncan's Kathy Nash, for example, turned in the top performance by a girl with three victories. She won the 100-metre sprint in 13.6 seconds, took the long jump with a leap of 14 feet, 5 1/2 inches, and also ran the anchor leg for the victorious Duncan relay team.

Tracy Beer, Maureen Scott, Megan Moore and Jennifer Little, all of Victoria, were double winners in girls event. Each broke one record in the process.

Peter Bryant, a 12-year-old from Victoria, topped boys' performances with records in the 200 metres and long jump. In addition, he ran the final leg for Victoria's relay team.

Among the double winners were Ron Tuckey of Duncan and Steve Smith of Campbell River.

VANCOUVER JOCKEY U.S. WINNER

By The Canadian Press

Two Canadian-born jockeys played prominent roles in United States thoroughbred racing Saturday.

Ron Turcotte, a native of Grand Falls, N.B., guided Take Off to victory in the $37,100 Bowling Green handicap at New York's Belmont Park.

Wayne Harris, from Vancouver, picked up a victory with Mr. Coolcat in the $50,000-added Rolling Green handicap at Golden Gate Fields in Albany, Calif., when stewards disqualified the first-place horse, Yvetot, for interference.

At Calder race court in Hallandale, Fla., Stairway to the Stars was destroyed and two jockeys injured following a spill that resulted in the disqualification of Snub—the horse that finished first in the $23,800 Hollywood handicap.

Power, Speed Pay Off

Power and speed had it all the way over experience and determination when the week-long Oak Bay Tennis Club championships ended Saturday.

Volleying and smashing from anywhere in the court, agile Marty Taylor destroyed crafty veteran John Nichol 6-3, 6-4 in the men's singles final.

Taylor needed only one service break to take the first set and, when Nichol broke service to draw level at 3-3 in the second set, he found his attempts at clever placements were nullified by his young opponent's speed.

"I don't believe it," muttered Nichol two points from the end when he made the best lob of the match—only to see Taylor dance back and smash a winner.

Wendy Barlow, who turned 11 only a week ago, retained the women's singles title with the same kind of power display.

Taking a while to settle down and control her strokes, Miss Barlow was held to a 7-6 tie-breaker by determined Sandra Moss but, once Wendy warmed up and got some speed on the ball, it was no contest and she won 6-1.

Ted Davies, the top-seeded defending champion who was ousted from the singles in the semi-finals by Taylor, and Peggy Wright won two titles each.

Davies and Mrs. Wright edged John and Pat Nichol 7-5, 3-6, 6-4 in a marathon mixed doubles final and Davies and Tony Simnett won the men's doubles.

Promising 15-year-olds Steve Perks and Scott Braley broke Davies' service twice and Simnett's once in taking a 5-3 lead in the second set. But Davies and Simnett survived three set points to recover and take the match 6-1, 7-5.

Mrs. Wright teamed with Sally Hemeon to down Miss Barlow and Ruth Trelawny 6-2, 6-0 in the women's doubles final.

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT

Men's singles — Marty Taylor defeated John Nichol, 6-3, 6-4.
Women's singles — Wendy Barlow defeated Sandra Moss, 7-6, 6-1.

Men's doubles — Ted Davies and Tony Simnett defeated Scott Braley and Steve Perks, 6-1, 7-5.
Women's doubles — Sally Hemeon and Peggy Wright defeated Ruth Trelawny and Wendy Barlow, 6-2, 6-0.

Mixed doubles — Ted Davies and Peggy Wright defeated John and Pat Nichol, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4.

CONSOLATION FLIGHT

Men's singles — Scott Braley defeated Bud Brice, 6-2, 6-2.

Women's singles — Nancy Hill defeated Ruth Trelawny, 6-2, 6-4.

Men's doubles — Jim Bottomley and Derek Wild defeated John Lambeth and Ernie Wilson, 6-0, 6-1.

Women's doubles — Felicity and Heather Graham defeated Ivy Hill and Rosemary Hawthorne, 6-4, 6-1.

Mixed doubles — Steve Perks and Wendy Barlow defeated Max Low and Nancy Hill, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

It's Tough In Tennis These Days

Former-city champion Warren Cameron, making a comeback to competitive tennis after a 10-year layoff, didn't have to wait long to find out things are tough nowadays.

Cameron was ousted from the Racquet Club of Victoria's annual tennis championships Sunday 6-1, 6-0 by defending champion Greg Miller.

None of the seeded players were upset in the early rounds but a mild shock was the elimination of well-known Brian Small, 7-5, 6-3, by 14-year-old Vince MacDonald.

The week-long tourney ends Saturday.

Results involving seeded players:

Men's singles: Greg Miller (14), 7-5, defeated Warren Cameron 6-1, 6-0 and Frank Berry 6-0, 6-3; Mariv Taylor (2) defeated Maurice Avers 6-1, 6-0; Joe Lechmann (3) defeated Steve Thon 6-0, 6-2 and Glen Anderson 6-1, 6-0; Derek Wild (4) defeated Geoff Hutchins 6-2, 6-3.

Women's singles: Brenda Cameron (No. 1) defeated Gloria Solley 6-2, 6-0 and Brigitte Buck 6-0, 6-0; Sandra Moss (2) defeated Marie Swanton 6-1, 6-2; Sally Hemeon (3) defeated Gwen Walker 6-2, 6-1; Nina Slane (4) defeated Dana Morris 6-0, 6-0.

Mixed doubles: Greg Miller and Wendy Cuppage (No. 1) defeated Keith and Pam Taylor 6-0, 6-2; Phil Blake and Brenda Cameron (2) defeated Jim and Helen Bottomley 6-0, 6-0.

Shannon Snaps Senior Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 12-year-old Vancouver girl broke a senior record and led an attack on national age-group marks during a two-day senior long course swimming meet that ended Sunday.

Shannon Smith won the 1,500-metre freestyle in 17 minutes, 53 seconds. The old record, set in 1969 by Angela Coughlan of Toronto, was 18:26.7.

Miss Smith also set two age-group records. In the 440-metre freestyle for the 11-12 girl's division, she finished in 4:38.5 breaking her own mark of 4:40.68.

In the 200-metre freestyle, she finished in 2:17.4. The old record was 2:19.6.

Win or Quit for Frazier

Quarry puts victory streak on line tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier will be out to prove that he still is "Smokin' Joe" tonight in Madison Square Garden when he fights Jerry Quarry, who will be trying to shake the rap that he never wins the big ones.

"I think he's as sharp as he's ever been," said trainer Eddie Futch as Frazier prepared to put his career on the line.

The former heavyweight champion has lost two of his last three fights—a knockout by George Foreman when he lost the title and a decision defeat by Muhammad Ali—and Futch said he would recommend Frazier quit unless he wins impressively.

"That fight (the loss to Ali) only made him more determined to show his best."

"You better believe it," Frazier said when he asked if he thinks about fighting Foreman again.

Frazier weighed in at 212 pounds Sunday while Quarry was 197½.

Quarry goes into the fight with a string of six straight victories since ending a brief retirement about 17 months ago and has lost only six times against 52 pro victories, 29 by knockout.

But four of the defeats especially rankle—he was stopped twice by Muhammad Ali; he lost a decision to Jimmy Ellis in a World Boxing Association title bout in 1968; and he was stopped in seven rounds by Frazier in 1969 when Frazier was recognized as champion by six states.

"If I don't win, I better get out of the business because I'll never be more ready than I am right now," said Quarry who blames personal problems as the reason behind some of his past defeats.

The scheduled 12-rounder will be the first half of a closed-circuit-television doubleheader and will start at 7 p.m. PDT. The second fight, which also will be seen on television by the Garden crowd, will be Bob Foster's light heavyweight title defence against Jorge Arumada.

Adding interest to the Frazier-Quarry fight is the fact that Joe Louis, boxing's legendary "Brown Bomber," has been licensed and appointed by the New York State Athletic Commission as referee.

The move drew some criticism, but both fight camps said they will accept Louis. And both Garden-boxing boss Teddy Brenner and Louis denied the adon was taken to sell tickets.

The 30-year-old Frazier, who has won 30 fights, 25 by knockout, is guaranteed $400,000 against 40 per cent of all income. Quarry, 29, is guaranteed $225,000 against 22 per cent.

Brenner estimated a crowd of 15,000 and a gate of $600,000 for the Garden half of the doubleheader which will be telecast at 185 locations in the United States and Canada by Top Rank, Inc. It also will be beamed to several other countries.

Veterans Want 'Meat on Table'

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations between the Canadian Football League Players' Association and team officials are to resume in Winnipeg on Thursday, a CFL spokesman said today.

Most CFL veteran players handed in their resignations as contract talks came to a halt during the weekend, effectively creating a strike situation.

"It is quite clear that the demands of the players and the structure of the Canadian Football League to provide them are somewhat apart," Norm Kimball, general manager of the Edmonton Eskimos, said after the breakdown in talks Saturday.

Kimball, chairman of the CFL's players' relations committee, said commissioner Jake Gaudaur has received "retirement notices" from 256 veterans.

George Reed, president of the Canadian Football League Players' Association, said another 25-30 resignations have been submitted to general managers. There are 288 veterans in the CFL.

Reed said the players will resume negotiations only when the owners' committee has "some meat on the table to negotiate with."

Kimball said that by retiring before midnight Saturday night, the players are in a legal position to withhold their services and still remain eligible to resume play later this season.

If they had waited past Saturday, they would have had to wait until next season to rejoin their clubs.

Al Sangster, president of the Saskatchewan Roughriders, said the team will wait until Tuesday or Wednesday to open its training camp, and if the veterans are not back by then "we will bring in more players."

General manager Frank Clair said no veterans reported to the Ottawa Rough Riders' training camp Saturday but they have been using the field to get in shape.

Kimball said the CFL is prepared to give the players a 25-per-cent increase in the areas of contention in 1974 and a further 20-per-cent in the second year.

Included in the league offer is a training camp per diem of $17 this year and $18 in 1975 compared with $10 in 1973, increasing payments in post-season games by $200 a game and making the winners' share of the Grey Cup game $4,000 a man rather than the current $3,000.

Reed told a news conference the owners' committee has refused to discuss a proposed minimum wage of $11,000.

Other key demands include $6,000 to the Grey Cup winner this year and $7,500 in 1975 and the losers' share $3,000 and $4,000; conference winners $1,500-$1,800; conference losers $1,200-$1,500; semi-final winners $1,200-$1,500; semi-final losers $1,000-$2,000.

UVIC IS FOURTH IN U.S. ROWING

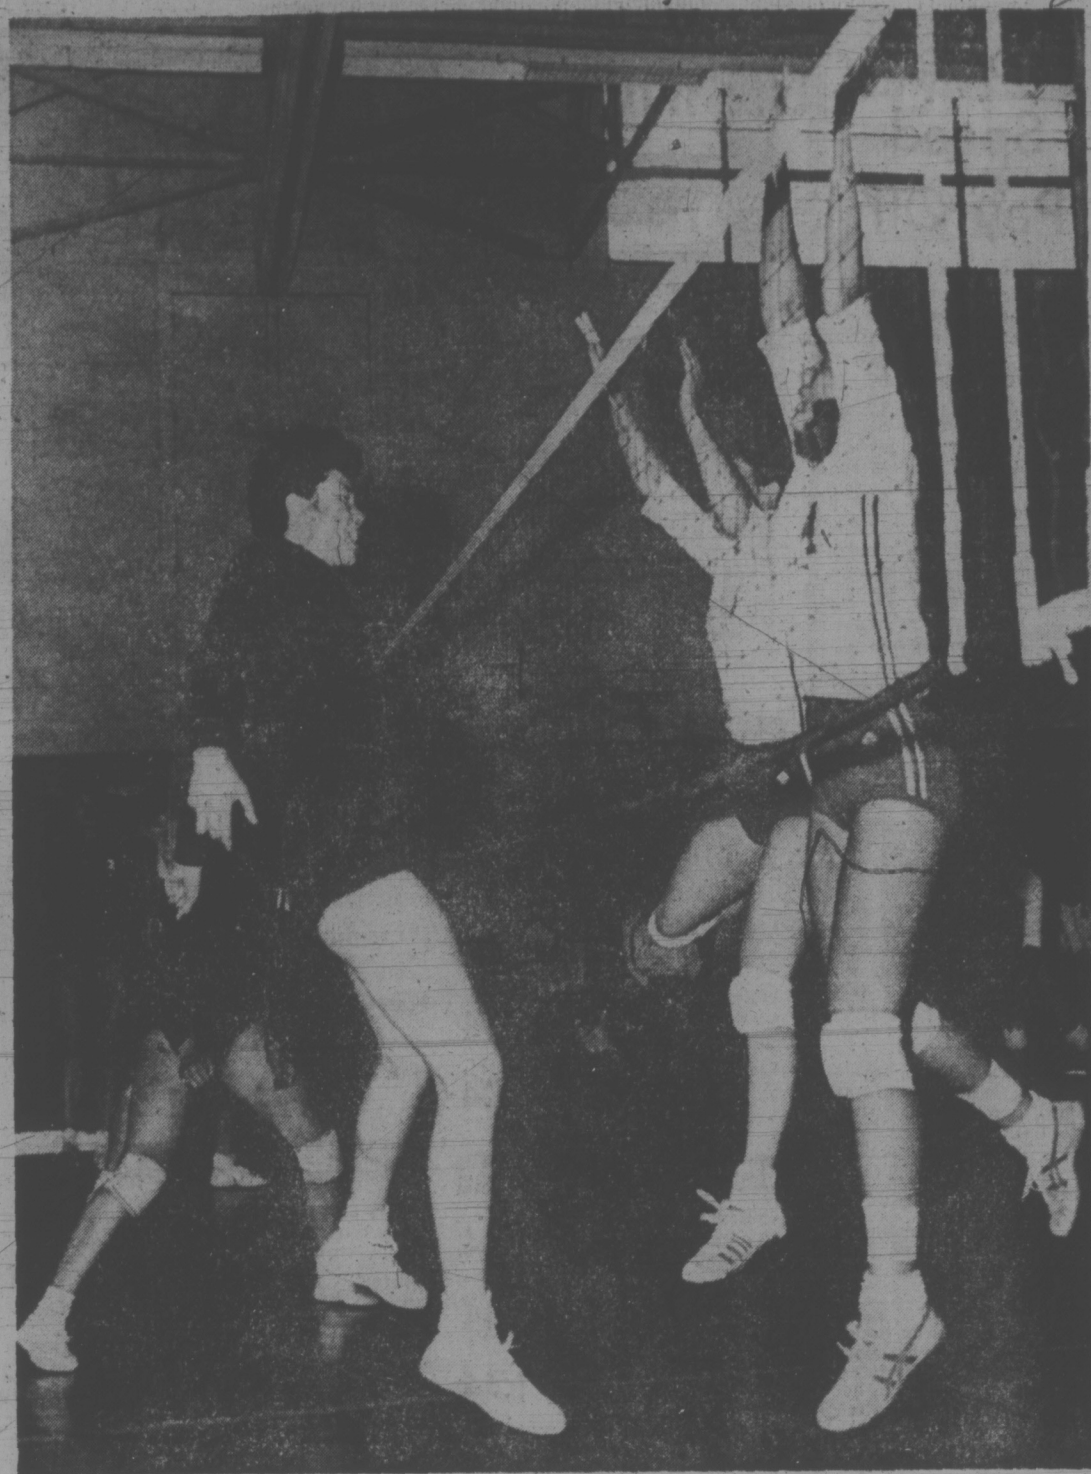

OAKLAND, Calif. — University of Victoria girls turned in a fast time Sunday but had to settle for fourth place in the four-women's coxswain event at the National Women's Rowing Association championships.

After winning their heat in the 16-crew eliminations in four minutes and 20 seconds over the 1,000-metre Lake Merritt course, the UVic girls cut their time down to 4:10.3 in the six-boat final.

Boston University was first in 4:05.6, the host Lake Merritt Rowing Club was second in 4:07.2 and College Boat Club of Massachusetts was third in 4:10.1. University of Washington finished fifth in 4:10.6 and the University of California at Los Angeles was sixth in 4:12.3.

The UVic girls were not disappointed with their finish. "In that field, fourth place is pretty good," Ina DeLure, one of the UVic crew members, said. "This time last year, we wouldn't have even thought of entering."

The rest of the UVic crew, coached by Wayne van Oosterhout, consisted of Cathy Auburn, Susan Litwin, Cathy Griffin and coxswain Kathy Francis.

Volleyball Action Matched Heat of a Sunny Sunday

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

While hundreds streamed in carloads to the nearest beach to soak up the sun, almost 1,000 fans crammed into the S. J. Willis Junior High School gymnasium Sunday to watch volleyball.

But what volleyball!

Volleyball picked up a tremendous following at the international level after its exposure on television from the Munich Olympics — and it's easy to see why.

Two fine teams put everything they had into a best-of-five-game battle that raged for two hours and when it was all over, it was Canada 3, China 1.

The match was the second in a series of eight meetings between the teams in a women's exhibition tour across the country. They play Tuesday in Calgary and then go on to Edmonton, Saskatoon, Toronto, Fredrickton, N.B., and Ottawa.

The older and more experienced Chinese women, seeking to crack volleyball's political barrier and show they belong right up there with world leaders Russia, Japan and both Koreans, won the series opener Saturday night in Vancouver in three straight games, 15-13, 15-13, 15-10.

But they never really got their fast attacking game going Sunday against the exuberant young Canadian team, on which the oldest player is only 24 and every other member is under 21.

With the mid-afternoon sun's rays streaming through the open gym doors and players stopping every now and then to mop the sweat from the floor, Canada raced away to a 6-0 lead in the first game.

Canada, coached by Korean-born Moo Park, led 11-4 in the first game and then at 14-11 but allowed China to recover to 14-14 before winning it 16-14. Canada made it two straight by taking the second game 15-10 but dropped the third one 15-11.

By now, youth and fitness were beginning to tell the tale and, despite coach Li Tsung-yung's obvious displeasure and his urging for more Chinese hustle, his girls could give no more and Canada raced away with the fourth game 15-6.

In the warmup and the early games, the Chinese girls looked slick and well-trained. And high-jumping Chang Shuhua soon showed she had a lethal shot at the net.

But time and time again, the visitors would dig up the ball and then follow with a vicious spike — only to be foiled by the incredible blocking at the net of the Canadian girls, particularly team captain Kathy Bickerstaff and 15-year-old Patti Olson.

In mid-court, it was the clever Diane Murray of Vancouver, at 19 a veteran of four years on the national team, who set up Betty Baxter for some consistent scoring.

Two Victoria girls—Diane Pendray of the University of Victoria and Karen Egger of Esquimalt High School—were added to the Canadian squad. They joined in the warmup and were on the bench but didn't get to play.

CHINA — Fan Kuei-hsiang, Hsu Shu-mei, Chi Li-hsia, Yu Li-wen, Liang Yu-hui, Tang Chin-hui, Liu Ti, Chang Shu-hua, Chang Ching-lu.

CANADA — Kathy Bickerstaff, Diane Murray, Lynne Kimmel, Claire Lloyd, Betty Baxter, Connie Lebrun, Debbie Hens, Renée Robertson, Mary Dempster, Patti Olson, Audrey Vanderweiden.

Forrest Fezler can't believe birdie try fails on 10th hole

Irwin Scores Win For Working Man

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (UPI) — Hale Irwin, scoring a victory for the working man, staggered down the home stretch Sunday to win the U.S. Open golf championship.

Irwin skirted through one near-disaster after another on the treacherous closing holes. Finally, at the 72nd hole, he hit a precise approach from the middle of the fairway to the middle of the green and, knowing he had it won, just stood there with his arms outstretched to the sky.

He left his try for a birdie on the lip of the cup and tapped it in for a routine par that gave him a closing three-over-par 73 and 72-hole total of 287.

That was good enough for a two-shot victory over longshot non-winner Forrest Fezler who moved into contention simply by playing par golf while every contender except Irwin was faltering.

Lou Graham and Bert Yancey, two players who — like the two in front of them — never had won anything of note before Sunday, tied for third at 290.

Tom Watson, the 24-year-old third-year pro who led Irwin by a stroke at the start of the final day, couldn't make a putt of more than three feet after the first hole, couldn't control his erratic driving and shot a 79 for 292.

HALE IRWIN skirts disaster

The winning score was seven over par, the highest by a U.S. Open champion in 11 years, and that only made Irwin's first major championship triumph all the more notable.

On a 6,961-yard monster course at Winged Foot Golf Club, a course that 1973 open champion Johnny Miller said made him "feel like a dog," the 29-year-old Irwin produced four magnificent shots on the final dozen holes that gave him his victory.

He thus became only the second open champion in 15 years without the credentials of golf's true elite, joining Orville Moody, who came out of the army to win the championship in 1959.

Split Snaps Bates' String

LONGVIEW, Wash. — Victoria Bates' winning ways came to an end at the weekend but the Vancouver Island entry remained only a game off the lead in the Northwest International Men's Fastball League by splitting four games with Longview.

Bates ran their winning streak to 15 games, including seven straight in league play, by edging Longview 1-0 Saturday behind the shutout pitching of Dave Ruthowsky.

The Victoria streak ended, however, when the Washington club bounced back with a 3-0 triumph. The loss was charged to Stan Kern.

Kern struck out 13 but was obviously troubled by a recurring "split" on the index finger of his pitching hand. As a result, Bates' manager Joe Patterson was forced to use Ruthowsky as the iron-man on Sunday.

Ruthowsky wound up a 5-3 winner and a 3-0 loser. Kern's finger, which developed the "split" when he went 16 innings against Seattle in the season's opening game, will get a chance to mend. Bates will be idle, except for tonight's exhibition date with the King and His Court in Victoria's Royal Athletic Park (8 p.m.), until they meet Longview June 29-30.

As well, southpaw Clay Allinotte is on his way. Signed by Bates before the season, Allinotte winds up teaching duties in Ontario this week and will report to Victoria next Monday.

Allinotte will be given his first starting assignments against Longview.

Victoria now has compiled a record of 33 victories and nine losses in exhibition, tournament and league play this year. That includes a 12-8 record in league play.

Sooke Moves Up

Sooke Merchants banged out three straight hits in the top of the seventh inning Sunday to edge Labatts 2-1 at Central Park and move into fifth place in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

The win enabled Sooke to slip past Mike's Sports Shop, who split a Saturday doubleheader in Port Angeles. Port Angeles won Saturday's opener 4-2 but bowed 6-5 in a 12-inning nightcap after ace pitcher Sid Krumpke was injured.

Krumpke, batting in the bottom of the 11th, was hit in the face by a Mel Nelson pitch. He was promptly taken out of the game and Mike's jumped on reliever Ted Crosby to score two runs in the top of the 12th.

At Central, successive singles by Bruce Butler, Ron Witkevich and Alden Govenlock broke a 1-1 deadlock in the seventh and gave pitcher Ron Fedosenko his third victory of the year.

Vicettes Slapped

Victoria Vicettes were slapped with a postponement and by a 15-year-old at the weekend.

Karen Beaird, the 15-year-old, struck out 11 as the junior Queen and Her Maids' team of four defeated Vicettes 8-1 in an exhibition game Saturday at Royal Athletic Park. Vicettes' scheduled Coast Senior Women's Softball League doubleheader with Vancouver Queens on Sunday was postponed.

AARON WE COMES HOMER CHALLENGE

ATLANTA (AP) — Henry Aaron, baseball's home run king, says he would welcome a homer-hitting contest between himself and Sadaharu Oh, the Japanese "Babe Ruth."

"I'd like to have a home run hitting contest with him," said the Atlanta Braves' star, who snapped Ruth's all-time mark April 4, when he hit his 715th career homer.

"We can go to Japan, or have it here," said the 40-year-old Mobile, Ala., native. "If the right offer comes along for a home run hitting contest between him and me, I'll accept the challenge."

Aaron has connected for 11 homers this year for a career total of 724 with an additional eight more coming in World Series, all-star and playoff games for a grand total of 732.

Oh, 34, has 598 after 15 years of play in Japan.

Victoria Olympians passed Juan de Fuca Cohoes on the final day of the three-day annual Vancouver Island swimming championships Sunday to capture the team title.

Olympians, who trailed Cohoes by 18 points after Saturday's events, finished with 656 points while the Juan de Fuca club ended up with 606.

Port Alberni Aquatic Club, the defending champions, were third with 297. Following were Victoria Flying "Y" (244), Saanich Swim Club (58) and Port Hardy Ravens (29). Jim Gabriel of Cohoes won the boys' aggregate trophy with five first-place finishes and Katherine McDonald of the Flying "Y" took the corresponding girls' cup with four wins. Both are 10 years old.

Gabriel recorded his wins in the 50-metre backstroke, 50-metre breaststroke, 100-metre freestyle, 50-metre butterfly and 100-metre individual medley events for 10-and-under girls.

Marsh Second

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Toru Nakamura, a Japanese World Cup player, fired a three-under-par 69 Sunday for a 72-hole total of 278 and a two-stroke victory over Graham Marsh of Australia in the $71,400 Sapporo-Tokyo, Open golf tournament.

Saturday, rookie infielder Jim Cox drove in three runs with a single and double to lead the Expos to a 6-4 win.

The victories left the Expos in third place, but they are only 1 1/2 games behind leading Philadelphia Phillies. St. Louis Cardinals are second, one game off the pace.

In other National League games Sunday, Los Angeles Dodgers beat New York Mets 7-1; Pittsburgh Pirates topped San Francisco Giants 4-3; St. Louis downed Atlanta Braves 6-3; Cincinnati Reds blanked Philadelphia 5-0 and Chicago Cubs topped Houston Astros 2-1 in 10 innings.

Bellies 11-for-12

COQUITLAM — New Westminster Salmonbellies chalked up their 11th win in 12 starts by holding off a determined third-period rally and nipping Coquitlam Adanacs 18-17 in a Western Lacrosse Association game Saturday.

The victory increased the New Westminster lead to 12 points over second-place Vancouver Burrards.

Paul Parnell led Salmonbellies with three goals and added three assists while teammates Dave Matheson and Jim Giles also fired three goals apiece.

Gerry Pinder rammed in four goals to lead Coquitlam while John Allen added three.

CABLES REBOUND TO STUN MACS

BURNABY — "Tuesday night will have to be better."

Victoria general manager Bob Reid voiced this terse comment here Sunday night after McDougall had dropped a stunning 22-10 decision to league-leading Burnaby Cablevision in a Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League game.

The Victoria club, still in second spot but now 10 points behind Burnaby, plays host to Surrey Salmonbellies at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Cables, too, suffered on the weekend. Richmond Roadrunners handed the visiting leaders their first loss of the season — a 12-11 overtime decision — on Saturday.

Dan Perreault, Mike Holden, Dan Wilson and Dave

Matheson led Burnaby against Victoria with three goals each while double tallies were recorded by Mark Schnarr, Eric Cowieson and Jack Krygovich. Bruce Cruikshanks, Matt Aitken, Mike McLennaghan and Randy Delmonico rounded out Burnaby's scoring.

Kevin Alexander added to his league-leading scoring status with four Victoria goals while singles were contributed by John Huddleston, Norm Baker, Jeevan Dillon, Bill Marechek and Ken King.

Vets Leaving An Open Door For Rookies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jackie Parker, general manager of the British Columbia Lions, said Sunday club look at the rookies in the Lions, said Sunday club coaches will get a much better look at the rookies in the 1974 training camps than they have in previous years.

Only 39 players, all rookies, went through the opening drills today at the camp in Penticton, as veteran players, who have resigned at the direction of the Canadian Football League Players' Association, continued light practice at Empire Stadium here.

But Parker said he doesn't think the mass resignations, meant to back up player demands for more money for such things as playoff games and training camp, will affect the team's performance.

"We're all in the same boat," he said.

Asked if the rookies won't miss the experience of the veterans, Parker, an outstanding performer when he played, said he doesn't think so. "Everyone's too tired in the early stages of camp, with the drills and everything, to worry about it."

Head coach Eagle Keys, however, has had to make a number of adjustments in Penticton.

He does not have an experienced quarterback in camp and will use rookies Jay Gustafson of North Dakota, Joe Fabiani of Western Ontario and Robert Wattigney of Norfolk, Va., Neptunes during the early stages of the camp, due to break up July 1 for an exhibition game the next day in Vancouver against Edmonton Eskimos.

Two players did not pass the club's physical examination Sunday. Tight end George Milosevic, obtained from Hamilton Tiger-Cats in an off-season trade, was expected to return to Hamilton today for further surgery on a knee.

Rookie linebacker Paul Giroday, from the University of California was to have had his sore back examined by specialists today.

The Lions signed two more players to CFL contracts Sunday. They are Canadian defensive back Brad Unshaw, who played seven games last season for Montreal Alouettes before suffering a knee injury, and Canadian wide receiver Glen Faustman, who played semi-professional ball last season for the Burnaby Barons in the Can-Am League.

FRENCH OPEN tennis winner Bjorn Borg makes return on way to 2-6, 6-7, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1 victory over Spain's Manuel Orantes in Sunday's final of the men's singles. Women's singles title went to Florida's Chris Evert.

Canadian Girls Rally for Win

WINNIPEG — Canada's national men's and women's basketball teams continued to chalk up victories over the touring Chinese national squads Sunday, and once again the Canadian girls had to stage late-game heroics to come out on top.

There were no problems for the Canadian men's club, which again dominated the action and rolled to an easy 104-59 triumph over the visitors, who appeared to have no effective defence against Canada's fast-breaking attack.

As on the first two stops of the 10-city, cross-country tour, the Chinese women's team rolled to an early lead and then lost out in the final stages.

In the tour-opener at Vancouver, the Canadians had to wipe out a big first-half deficit to score a six-point victory. Down 26-8 at one stage in the second game at Victoria, the Canadians, finally went ahead with 15 seconds remaining as they squeezed out a 54-53 win.

They also needed a comeback in Sunday's game here, rallying in the final two minutes for a 53-52 decision.

Liz Silcott paced the Canadian girls with 13 points and clubmates Carol Turney, Pat Tatham and Angie Johnson each fired eight points.

Jamie Russell and Phil Tollestrup, each with 15 points, and Bill Robinson, with 14, were the scoring leaders for the Canadian men.

Queen's Filly Turns It On

CHANTILLY, France (Reuter) — The Queen's horse Highclere thrilled her owner and delighted a capacity crowd of 25,000 people Sunday when she ran away with France's top race for three-year-old fillies, the Prix de Diane.

County Side Collapses

GLOUCESTER (Reuter) — B. S. Chandrasekhar and Bishen Singh Bedi ripped through Gloucestershire's middle-order batsmen when the Indian cricketers opened a three-match Saturday.

The County collapsed from a lunch score of 142 for two to 163 for six but rallied to total 255 by tea. In reply, the Indians had made 118 for three by the close of play.

Chandrasekhar took five Gloucestershire wickets for 80 runs and Bedi finished with four for 71.

ALTERNATIVES IN EDUCATION

The Greater Victoria School Board's administration committee will discuss the future of alternative programs in the schools at a special meeting at 8:00 p.m. Thursday, June 20, in the library of Lansdowne Junior Secondary School.

In particular, the trustees will consider possible high school programs related to the more and less structured Sentinel and Sundance elementary schools.

The public is invited to attend this meeting. Those wishing to make submissions should contact the School Board's Community Relations Office (592-1211, Local 214) by 4:30 p.m. June 18.

Whitecaps Finally Churn Out Goals

Vancouver Whitecaps finally turned their territorial domination into goals Sunday, defeating Baltimore Comets 4-1 before a crowd of 6,310 at Empire Stadium.

But the Whitecaps, who are fourth in the North American Soccer League's four-team Western Division, didn't gain ground on the third-place San Jose Earthquakes, who upset the division-leading Los Angeles Aztecs 2-1 in Sunday's other game.

Whitecaps, who have been the dominant side in just about every game in which they have played but have finished poorly, outshot Baltimore 25-6 in the first half but were held to a 1-1 tie at the interval.

However, the Whitecaps kept up their domination in the second half and produced three unanswered goals. Brian Gant scored twice and the other scorers were Victor Kodolija and Bruce Wilson. Hank Kazmierski scored for Baltimore.

It was the fourth win in 10 games for the Whitecaps but it was the first time Vancouver had won by more than a single goal.

It was a bad weekend for the Comets, who were beaten 5-1 by Seattle Sounders before 12,681 fans in Seattle Saturday night.

In other Saturday games, Boston Minutemen took over first place in the Northern Division with a 3-0 win over Toronto Metros in Boston, Washington Diplomats edged Philadelphia Atoms 1-0 in Philadelphia and Dallas Tornado nipped St. Louis Stars 3-2 on a tiebreaker.

Gorge Team Third

BELLINGHAM, Wash. — A Gorge Vale team composed of Clara Johnson, Barbara Ricketts, Irene Ritchie and Gert Pumphrey scored a net 59 to finish third in the Bellingham women's invitational four-ball golf tournament.

Haynie Collects As Post Falts

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — Sandra Haynie parred a fourth extra hole Sunday to beat Gloria Ehret and win the $42,500 Ladies Professional Golf Association Medina Open championship.

The victory, worth $3,700, was the 30th career triumph for Miss Haynie and her first of 1974.

Miss Haynie, 30, two-putted from 25 feet for a par four on the 321-yard fourth hole. Miss Ehret was short of the green with her approach shot and took a bogey five.

Miss Haynie had started the day three strokes behind leader Sandra Post, a native of Oakville, Ont., now living in Florida.

Miss Post, however, managed only a 74 in the final round, five better than Miss Haynie, to finish third. She picked up $2,900.

The two, who had matched one-under-par 215s after 54 holes on the soggy Weymouth Valley County Club course, parred the first three playoff holes.

Miss Haynie, No. 3 in LPGA all-time earnings with more than $300,000, shot five birdies to offset two bogeys in her comeback victory.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., finished out of the money with a final-round 78 for 234.

Jack Raine Selected To Shoot at Bisley

Jack Raine of Victoria has become part of a tradition.

Raine is one of 16 Royal Canadian Army cadet shooters chosen to represent Canada at the National Rifle Association matches at Bisley, England.

He is 32th in a line of competitors picked for this honor through the years from the 2483 Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry (Esquimalt) Cadet Corp. In order to be selected, Raine has to pass the cadet rifle course and score sufficiently high at the Cadet Bisley Aggregate Shoot at Connaught Rangers, Ottawa, last summer.

The Bisley team will meet in Ottawa June 22 for 12 days of practice before leaving for England. One week of further practice precedes the Bisley matches, which run from July 16 to 27.

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Canadian-owned Surge Hanover scored one of harness racing's biggest upsets Saturday by winning the $114,380 Dexter Cup for three-year-old trotters at Roosevelt Raceway.

The son of Stars Pride, owned by Bill and Jean Wellwood, rushed up from 15 lengths back to nip favored Nevele Diamond by a nose in the last stride of the mile race.

The horse is co-owned by William and Jean Wellwood of Clarkson, Ont.

Another Canadian-owned trotter, Armbr Ouzo, running for Duncan MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., was third.

DENNY JOINS ESKS

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League have signed running back Earl Denny, who played three seasons with Minnesota Vikings.

Old Gord's Love Affair: It Didn't Work for Me

People usually laugh when they ask me what I did with almost six months of enforced idleness during the news-papers' closure and I reply that I devoted almost all of it to a single project and that it was, by my own admission, a total failure. "Haw, haw," they laugh or, sometimes, "Tee hee."

To make a clean breast of it, honest type that I am, what I had in mind was making the bundle by imitating Gordon Sinclair.

They say there's nothing new in writing, but old Gord hit or stumbled on a formula — praise for the well-high indefensible or the complete tour de force — that had my greedy little eyes aflame with visions of enormous profits.

You'll recall that, at a time when revelations were still coming out about Nixon's secret bombing of Cambodia, when it was becoming clear that the White House was a den of pirates and liars, when America was rocked with crime and violence, when the CIA was setting up Chile for the coup de grace, when America was a dirty, seven-letter word in the world, old Gord elected to spring — or creep — to the defence of the U.S. of A.

A three-minute broadcast, written in perhaps five minutes, in praise of the Americans — "the most generous and probably the least appreciated people in all the earth" — had extraordinary repercussions.

John Wayne and Bob Hope loved it. Recordings of it, read over a background of patriotic music usually heard only at the half-time of football games, invaded the best-seller charts along with some of the nation's slicker rock music. Republican newspapers across the land re-printed it. The money began to roll in — the last figure I saw was a half-million dollars — and if Gordon had any second thoughts about turning over the profits to the American Red Cross he kept a decent silence being, I hasten to add, a very decent man.

Anyway, here, obviously, was a formula that needed merely to be copied to put me in the swimming pool brackets and I fairly vaulted to my escritorio.

I winced now to think of the wasted hours I spent in my first effort, an essay to be titled "Lucrezia Borgia Wasn't All Bad." Though it took me days and days to discover it, Lucrezia, in fact, wasn't all bad and all those poisonings and incests are disproved legends. It just shows you how dumb I am and, besides, as I eventually realized, who cares about the Borgias?

(Though, God knows, Cesare Borgia was a cruel, treacherous, unscrupulous, ruthless opportunist who might profit, even at this late date, from the Gordon Sinclair treatment.)

I'd just about abandoned the whole idea, in fact, when I chanced on a report from Berlin noting that the mass of Germans are sick and tired of the continuing tendency to keep alive Nazi history. They're particularly fed up, it seems, with movies that show U-boat commanders peering through periscopes and jack-booted storm-troopers kicking in doors and the rest.

Here, at last, was my market and I immediately began my researching and writing for the article I planned to title "Those Swell Guys — the Nazis." Who needs American dollars, I reasoned, when German marks are so much nicer?

In no time at all I was realizing the incredible genius of old Gordon who had discovered that it isn't what you say, but what you don't say, that counts.

You could say, for example, that the Nazis were a popular movement since the support of the masses after the humiliating defeat of World War One began the National Socialist German Workers party. But you'd have to forget that it was the bank-rolling by Krupp and the other armament industrialists that gave Adolf Hitler his strength.

You could say, honestly, that the Nazis cured inflation and unemployment and caused an industrial revolution. You'd have to forget that it was with the aim of conquering the world.

You could say, without fear of contradiction, that the Nazis built the finest roads and finest stadiums in all Europe. You'd have to forget that the roads were built for armored vehicles to reach the borders of countries to be gobbled up, that the stadiums were show-cases for the collective insanity of men and boys in brown and black shirts.

You could say, absolutely truthfully, that the Nazis harnessed German efficiency as never before. You'd have to forget that the greatest example of it was the disposal of six million Jews.

Well, what old Gord had accomplished in five minutes eluded me for almost as many months and when I finally said the hell with it the papers were back in business and I was looking for a new way to make the bundle, like maybe robbing a bank.

Summer of Fun For Youngsters

A full slate of summer workshops organized by the Saanich indoor recreation department will start July 2.

Programs will be held at the Cedar Hill Community Centre, 3220 Cedar Hill Rd., Gordon Head Recreation Centre, 1744 Feltham Rd., and Frank Hobbs School, 3875 Haro Rd.

They include:

—Indoor-outdoor painting for all ages begins July 2 at the Cedar Hill and Gordon Head centres and July 15 at Frank Hobbs. Teacher is Peggy Markham.

—Let's Produce a Variety Show, for children over 6, will help children organize their own show for parents and friends. It begins July 3 with teacher Judy Battison at the Cedar Hill centre.

—Carnival of Special Events will help children from age 6 to 12 plan and publicize their own special events. It starts July 15 at the Cedar Hill centre. Judy Battison is teacher.

—Hath Yoga for anyone over 11 begins July 8 at the Gordon Head centre under Marie Stodel.

—Modern rhythmic gymnastics for children 9 to 14, taught by Gail van Basteleer, begins July 8 at Gordon Head and July 22 at Cedar Hill.

—Campcraft, nature crafts and hikes for children 7 to 11 will be five daily outings with Judy Battison, beginning July 8 from Frank Hobbs.

—Two folk-dancing evenings for dancers from all clubs and for beginners will be held at Cedar Hill July 9 to 23 at 7:30 p.m.

—Folk dancing followed by a swim for children 9 to 13 begins July 22 at Gordon Head, taught by David and Louise Taylor.

—National and character dance for children over 6

starts July 8 at Cedar Hill and Gordon Head, taught by Sheila Kennedy.

—Carpet bowling for children over 10 starts July 3 at Cedar Hill. Teacher is George Musselwhite.

—Adventures in French, a French program including music, physical activities and crafts, begins at Cedar Hill July 15, taught by Eric Bouillet, Helen Wilson and Diane Blouin.

—Beginners' tap and acrobatic dance for children over 6 starts July 2 at Frank Hobbs and July 15 at Cedar Hill, taught by Velda Scobie. An advanced tap class begins July 15 at Gordon Head.

—Fun with Drama, including mime, movement, theatre and story dramatization for children 6 to 9 starts July 22 at Frank Hobbs.

Painters Share Hobby

New Horizons grants have been awarded to senior citizens' groups in Sidney and Victoria.

A grant of $6,050 has been given the Senior Citizens' Outdoor Recreation Association of Sidney. The grant is to help develop outdoor recreation on land annexed to the senior citizens' centre.

Volleyball and badminton courts, outdoor shuffleboard and checkerboards are to be installed. The rest of the grounds will be provided with park-type tables and benches.

The Senior Painters of Victoria will receive $1,000 to expand their activities.

In addition to their own hobby of painting the group plans to help others develop artistic talents, including regarded young people.

22 Boats In Maui Sea Test

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A record 22 yachts will get the start gun June 29 for the fourth biennial Victoria-Maui race near Brothie Ledge off the city's coastline.

Between them and the land of the mau will stretch 2,310 nautical miles of Pacific Ocean and the possibility of Pacific highs with their deadening calms and lousy gear-testing gales.

The international event is sponsored by the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and the Lahaina Yacht Club on the island of Maui.

This year there's a field of nine Canadian and 13 American entries.

Two of the boats are from Victoria. Miles Dighton of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will be racing his Ranger 33 Obsession.

Crewing with Dighton will be navigator Dick Marshall, Dave Richardson, John McMullen and Dennis Woodward.

Well-known in local racing circles, this is Dighton's first crack at the Victoria-Maui classic. Because she's small in relation to most of the boats, Dighton has stripped Obsession of everything but the essentials.

Also competing for the first time will be Rod Darby's Spencer 35 Seawyf of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

Navigation should be no problem on this boat. An ex-merchant mariner and Royal Canadian Navy veteran, Darby has taught hundreds of Victorians how to navigate through his adult education night classes.

Seawyf will be the "family boat" of the Maui armada. Aboard will be Darby's wife, Audrey, their elder son Mike and a younger son, Christopher, who will celebrate his 15th birthday at sea — July 17. Rounding out Seawyf's crew will be Bob Leach and Rick Brewer.

Canadian-designed Spencers and Cuthbert and Cassian boats are well-represented in the race.

There are two Spencer 53s, both sloops, from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club — Bill Paterson's Andante and Dick Nelson's Naknek. There's also the Spencer 53 ketch Namu, belonging to R. V. Kubiak of the Sausalito Yacht Club of San Francisco.

Among the other big boats in the race are Odusa, the 53-foot ketch that was first to cross the finish line in the 1972 race, and Temptation, the 57-foot Swiftsure campaigner belonging to W. R. Nelson of the Tacoma Yacht Club.

More smaller boats than ever before have entered the trans-Pacific testing, probably encouraged by the accomplishment of Cherokee in 1972.

Next to the smallest boat entered that year, the 32-foot Seattle sloop was over-all winner with a corrected time of nine days, three hours and 53 minutes.

The smallest boat was Bill Gardner's 31-foot yawl Lucy Alice of the Corinthian Yacht Club. Gardner is back for his fourth try and, as Tom Orr of Royal Van. says:

"You've got to have a hell of a lot of something to do 14 four times!"

Another small boat to watch will be Tinsley Light, skippered by H. B. Grandin of the St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco. She's 35½ feet and designed by Gary Mull, one of the west coast's most prominent marine architects.

The Canadian armed forces' tug St. Anthony will act as escort vessel for the race.

Each yacht will report her position to St. Anthony daily. These will be transmitted back to Canada for daily bulletins.

'A Red Herring' To Help Get Vote

Former Central Saanich alderman Ted Clayards' condemnation of plans for a 12,260-boath marina in Saanich Bay is a "red herring" to help get Clayards re-elected in Saturday's byelection Bob Wright said today.

President of Saanich Marina Ltd., developers of the marina, Wright said:

"It seems to me that he's complaining about the marina as a matter of political expediency. I consider this a bit of dirty pool."

Wright pointed out the area had been zoned for marina use in 1967 and Clayards had not spoken out before although "he had served at least one term" since the zoning went into effect.

Clayards has said the marina should be cut back in size and moved further north. He has advocated that an artificial island be created near Sidney on a long-range plan

Home Buying Ceiling Raised

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victorians will be able to buy a house up to a price limit of $34,700 under the revised mortgage assistance program, announced 10 days ago by Prime Minister Trudeau, the local Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation of office announced today.

The previous limit was $32,000.

However, to qualify under the new program for the full $50 per month grant, the top house-price limit would be about $27,000, a CMHC spokesman said.

The Assisted Home Ownership Program created a nationwide controversy when real estate spokesmen and opposition party candidates for the July 8 federal election said the house price limits were too low.

Now that the figures have been worked out it is evident the price limits are higher than first indicated, although only partial assistance will be available at higher levels.

A Victoria CMHC official today gave three examples of how the new formula applies to this area:

Example One — A man and wife both working have a total income of $13,500 and they have three children. They would be eligible to buy a home up to $27,000 and receive the full $50 monthly mortgage subsidy.

Example Two — A family whose total annual income is $12,800 would be eligible to buy a home up to $30,000

Construction Picketing Extended

Picketing was extended today by the 10-pact group of construction unions in Victoria.

Today's target was the new Oakland Industries fish plant at Kingston and Montreal where G. H. Wheaton Limited is the general contractor.

Picketing continued at Farmer Construction's nearly finished Chateau Victoria high-rise on Burdett.

A union spokesman said the picketing could be extended Tuesday.

In Vancouver, striking wiremen returned to work today on the Granville Street mall and other sites operated by independent contractors.

Four hundred members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical workers and 48 independent contractors reached an interim agreement providing for a wage increase of $2 an hour, raising the rate to $9.86.

No talks have been arranged between the 10-pact group of unions and Construction Labor Relations Association, the bargaining agent for 850 contractors which is conducting a lockout vote.

Several unions have reached agreements, including electricians and plumbers in Victoria, providing for a $2.90 an hour package over two years with $1.10 coming in the first step.

But the 10-pact unions, while being offered the same wage and fringe benefit package, would get only 83 cents an hour on the date of signing.

Another major issue is the unions proposal for a cost-of-living clause to be included in new contracts.

City Woman Injured

Edith Sharpe, of 1834 Grandview Drive, wife of city purchasing agent Gerry Sharpe, is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with multiple injuries following an accident today on the Trans Canada Highway at Chemainus.

The car the Sharpes were driving was in collision with a logging bus as the bus turned off the highway to a logging road.

FOREST FIRE prevention poster of Andrew Clark, Grade 3 student at Willows elementary school, has been judged best in the elementary class by the Canadian Forestry Association of B.C. His poster will be entered in two international competitions. With Andrew is teacher Ruth Rose.

Langford Meet On June 24

A public meeting on the June 29 referendum for a $1.25 million recreation complex in Langford will be held next Monday, June 24 at 8 p.m. in Belmont-Fisher Secondary School, not tonight as stated in Saturday's Times.

dear abby

A Gut Issue

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that belly dancing is a respected art form. You're absolutely right. It's also marvelous exercise for toning up the muscles and trimming off fat.

In our little town 50 of us women (mostly senior citizens) are taking lessons in belly dancing at the YWCA, and we're considered part of the Bible belt!—Anita Hoverton.

DEAR ANITA: Since belly dancing originated in the Middle East during Biblical times, it's entirely appropriate that it should be taught in the Bible belt.

Let's hear it from Suzanne Hunsucker, a reporter. She visited a belly dancing class sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Department because belly dancing had become a gut issue in that community, and she wanted to get the straight dope. She wrote:

"One middle-aged student said, 'There's nothing sexy about it. Anyone watching us sweat it out would hardly get aroused. It's an exhausting physical exercise.' At first it nearly killed me. I started using parts I never knew I had. However, soon I got to know my body and began talking to my joints."

"The instructor said, 'I notice a real change in the women taking the class. They become much freer in their movements after a while. When they dance, they lift up their heads and smile.'"

"Who knows," wrote the reporter, "with inhibitions being shed and bellies being strengthened, Fort Collins may someday be the belly dancing capital of the West."

Wait. There's more: From New Orleans came a feature story published in the States—Item by Rosemary Ruiz, a reporter who actually joined a belly dancing class in order to get some first-hand information about it. She wrote:

"Until now, belly dancing has always had a certain seedy aura about it, seldom suggesting anything more refined than a carnival hoochy koochy dance, but lately the dance has enjoyed a surge of popularity. I got my best friend and my sister-in-law to enroll with me. We were relieved to see ourselves duplicated in the other students, ordinary coeds and housewives ranging in age from 18 to 55. All quite sheepish about it."

"My daughter thinks it's hilarious," said one.

"I told my husband I was taking ballet," says another.

"My husband is a school principal," said Lucille V., "so I'm furthering my education."

She laughs, but comes back in five minutes to add quite soberly, "Actually, I also own Arabian horses and am very interested in the Arabic culture. Please put that in."

"The instructor, Habana, whose real name is not Habana, (but whose real measurements are 43-26-35) said, 'People put belly dancing in the same category as stripping. It isn't. Stripping is artless and vulgar; belly dancing is an ancient art. There are many reasons why women take belly dancing lessons, but most of them want to lose weight, which can't be done by belly dancing alone, so the real motive usually lies somewhere else.'"

I'll buy that. DEAR ABBY: We in the dancing profession commend you for upholding the dignity of belly dancing. It's the name that so many people find offensive. The dancing is beautiful when artistically performed. I wish they would change the name to "Oriental dancing."

If you think it's easy—like the hula, just try to move the upper half of your body while keeping the lower half perfectly still. Then try to move the lower half of your body and keep the upper half still. I'll bet you can't do it.—Tara from Istanbul.

DEAR TARA: You're right. I tried and I couldn't. But couldn't you've given me an idea. I think I'll take some lessons. (Privately, of course).

DEAR ABBY: Our 12-year-old got some centrefolds out of old Playboy magazines and thumb-tacked six of them on the wall of his bedroom. My husband said the naked body is beautiful, and we shouldn't say anything or our son might get the idea that nudity and sex are shameful. I disagree.

Who is right? We have always let him hang posters and anything else he wanted to put up in his room until this bunny bit came up. Carnation.

DEAR CARNATION: I vote with your husband. In the future, keep your cotton-picking hands off Junior's cotton-tails.

With the approach of the warmer weather, you may flir with the idea of giving the roof a new coat.

One generous application of coating will usually provide a water-repellant roof that will last several years. So states the 4-page folder "Roof Coatings". There is also a list of the five different coatings available, how they should be applied and what they are best suited for.

Detailed instructions explain how the roof should be patched before any kind of coating is used. Only when the roof is free from loose and foreign matter, should holes, broken seams and cracks be patched.

After the patches have dried, brush the coating over the entire roof in one heavy layer. Coatings are usually ready for use as you buy them, so that thinning is rarely necessary.

You will also learn how many gallons of coating you will need per 100 square feet of roof area. To cover metal, fewer gallons are needed but rough surfaces, such as gravel, will require more than average.

The folder stresses that for best results, coatings (with the exception of emulsion coatings) should be applied to a dry surface. If water is trapped in or between the coating, blistering and cracking will result.

With your request, please enclose a long (No. 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope and send it to: Public Relations Department, Canadian Paint Manufacturers Association, 1080 Beaver Hall Hill, Montreal, Quebec. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Decoupage is a craft technique that is enjoying a revival. The art was perfected in France. Its name derives from the French word, decoupe, meaning cutouts. Once the cutouts are applied to a surface, they are covered with enough coatings of varnish to make a smooth finish.

Decoupage can be quite involved but, to get you started, here's a simple project involving paper that already has decorative cutouts—a lace paper-dolly. Cover the top of a cookie tin with a dolly to make a decorative gift box, one that would be perfect for Christmas cake or cookies.

1. Select a white paper dolly the right size to fit on a cookie tin of your choosing.

2. You can keep the dolly white or go creative by coloring in different designs with indelible felt-tipped markers.

3. If the cover of the tin has a printed design, paint the cover with an oil base enamel paint. Allow the paint to dry completely.

4. Glue the dolly to the centre of the cover with liquid white glue. To insure complete adherence, brush a thin layer of glue over the surface of the cover. Place the dolly down and gently swirl it into the glued surface, making sure all edges are secure. Allow it to dry.

5. You can use several finishes to "sink" the dolly into the lid. The handiest coating is the same white liquid glue you used to glue down the dolly. Other finishes are liquid woodfinishing plastic (sold at hardware counters) or any one of a dozen decoupage finishes that are sold at art counters or stores.

6. The technique is simple. What you must do is to brush on the coating of your choice and allow it to dry thoroughly. Repeat with a second coating and drying. It should take about seven coatings to completely sink the dolly. The project is completed when the raised edges of the dolly are no longer visible.

7. To tone down a shiny finish, buff with fine steel wool.

Mosquito Likes Mothers-to-Be

TORONTO (CP) — Pregnant women, beware. It's mosquito season.

Russell Wright, a biologist at the University of Guelph, said that for no known reason, mosquitoes "seem to prefer biting pregnant women."

Wright said "It's probably due to a hormonal cause."

Wright, 35, was called in recently as a consultant when Orillia sought to eliminate clouds of mosquitoes that found the damp spring weather in that Ontario community ideal for breeding.

"We have a great many experts on mosquitoes in Canada," said Wright, "and it's rather strange that we know so little about the insect."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sick to what is close—the faraway areas tend to be obscured as wishful thinking takes over from fact. Ideas that are fresh, new are favoured. Journey could be postponed—with profit. Means don't be in too much of a hurry to get some place. Plenty to do in present location!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money and relationship with partner, mate—these are emphasized. Settle budget dispute. Find out what comes in, goes out. Take inventory. Plug loopholes. Trust lunch where finances are concerned. Dilemma will be resolved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle is such that you make progress in direct, specific manner. Don't jump at shadows. What appears to be opposition is weak, perhaps an illusion. One close to you confides problem. Physical handicap may be involved. Be understanding. And don't lose your sense of humor!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Details are more important than you might now imagine. Dig through red tape. Find answers. Thorough approach is necessary. What you seek is obscured, behind the scenes. Know it and act accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may not have it all your own way, but you will be vibrant—and living. Means joy enters where a moribund condition had existed. It is not a joy based on smooth sailing, but a buoyancy resulting from give and take—and from feeling aware, alive. Gemini, Virgo are involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your own needs can be fulfilled. But you may find hangers-on, those who want to ride to a pot of gold on your coat-tails. Be grown up enough to understand. Do what you can, without permitting yourself to be used by the cynical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Much that occurs, including appointments, trips, could be surrounded in aura of illusion. Means nothing is apt to stand pat. There is room for movement, change—and there is indecision. Key now is to sharpen tools and perfect techniques. Don't take rumors too seriously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Spotlight is on obtaining money's worth. Investigate. Kick some tires. Listen to the plumbing. Cancer, Capricorn individuals can lend benefit of experience. Young person may be impulsive and willing to spend freely—as long as you foot the bill.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study Scorpio message for valid hint. Avoid self-deception. See in light of reality. Know when a situation, relationship has run its course. Be willing to let go of past. Future beckons and can be brighter than you might imagine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Look in areas previously ignored. Throw light on subjects which have been obscured by more heat than illumination. Leo, Aquarius individuals could figure prominently. New contact proves fruitful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Some friends may tell tales out of school. Know it and don't trust everyone; some individuals have no creative outlet and gossip is a tonic. Refuse to be a victim. Check statements, quotes. Be wary of another Aquarian. A fair of heart is put to test.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Forces tend to be scattered; your ally is versatility. Means be flexible; ride with tide. Sagittarius, Gemini persons may be in picture. Accent is on security, ambition, goal, career. Get priorities in order!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of drama, are drawn to theater, medicine, law. August should be one of your most significant months of this year. You draw persons to you born under Aries, Libra. You attract people with problems—which they confide. You are, very often, better at aiding others than helping yourself. You usually leave a mark—not all understand you, but most people find you interesting.

Judging from the recent spate of publicity urging public health programs to find and treat people who have high blood pressure, you might think that high blood pressure was a new disease that has just been discovered.

In fact, it has been a familiar problem to doctors and their patients for many generations. With the appearance at the turn of the century of the arm-cuff measuring device (sphygmomanometer), hardly anyone since then has been able to get out of a doctor's office without a recording of his blood pressure.

In many cases, to be sure, depending on factors such as age, sex, race and family history, high blood pressure can produce illness, and is one of the measurable and often unsuspected disorders man is subject to that can even shorten his life.

In a few cases, somewhere around 10 per cent, a specific cause of the high pressure can be found and fixed: an inherited constriction of the big blood vessel leading from the heart (coarctation of the aorta), for example, can be operated on and cured.

Occasionally, the repair of poor circulation to one of the kidneys will lower the pressure, or the surgical removal of a tumor of the adrenal gland—(pheochromocytoma) will bring the pressure down to normal.

But in most cases we do not know the basic cause, even though the way in which it happens is clearer now than it used to be, thanks to modern research.

However, the large group of what we call essential hypertension (another way of saying that we do not know the cause) can be treated quite successfully with medications that bring the pressure down to more nearly normal levels.

And even though we know that this is not qualitatively different from bringing a fever down with aspirin, there is growing evidence that keeping the pressure down probably delays or prevents damage to the so-called "target" organs, which are the places where an elevated blood pressure gets people into trouble—the brain, the kidneys, the heart and the eyes.

So the treatment is prescribed in the hope that a stroke can be avoided, a heart attack prevented, the kidneys protected from failing and the small blood vessels of the eyes (and thus sight) preserved.

The difficulty is that many people with high blood pressure can go for many years without symptoms or signs of target-organ trouble. Adhering strictly to a relatively sophisticated regimen of daily pills, is as hard for doctors to enforce as for patients to put up with, especially when the goal of treatment is to influence a potential risk at some unspecified time in the future. And deciding who is most at risk is not always easy.

At any level of blood pressure, statistically, women have a more favorable outlook than men. Older people, again at any level of blood pressure elevation, have a better outlook than the young. The younger the patient at the onset of hypertension, the greater is the reduction of life expectancy compared with his healthy contemporaries.

We also know that high blood pressure is more prevalent, and more severe, in blacks than in whites, especially among blacks less than 50 years old.

In some people the blood pressure tends to fluctuate: some days it is way up and some days it is quite normal. They seem to be at less risk than those whose pressure is always at high levels.

Sometimes, there have been members of a family struck down early in life by a stroke, kidney trouble or heart failure, the younger ones in the family who may have only border-line elevations are thought to be at greater risk of progressing to severe high blood pressure.

Guards and Laborers Packed 'Colonist Cars'

By ELIZABETH FORBES

What do Morris Kersey, Saanich Peninsula businessman and J. Leslie Harries, recently retired manager of Sun Life of Canada's historical records department, have in common?

One lives-out near Sidney and the other in Dorval not far from Montreal. To my knowledge they have never met. Their paths have never crossed.

Yet, they share an experience of which only a small number of Canadians, their age, can boast.

Back in the 30s, when they were young men and eager to do a bit of travelling and see the country, they signed on as guards aboard trains transporting Chinese laborers going and coming across Canada, to and from work in the West Indies and the Caribbean.

Kersey guarded the laborers on trips from west to east. Harries was guard on a train coming west with a group of Chinese who had worked in Cuba and were returning home.

Talking to Kersey in his airport coffee shop at Patricia Bay, he reminded me that in the depression days of the 30s, Chinese laborers "men and women," passed across Canada "in bond" on their way to Bermuda and other destinations.

As many as 90 at a time would arrive from China by ship at Williams Head quarantine station, be cleared there and sent over to Vancouver by C.P.R. boats.

"My job was to take them from Victoria to Vancouver and then by train to Montreal where they were turned over to someone else," Kersey says.

He held passports and pictures of every Chinese in his care and his instructions included making sure no one jumped the train.

"I made several of those trips," he told me, "and I don't think any of the Chinese in my care thought of leaving the train. They were mostly all in their middle years and not one of them spoke English."

Both Chinese and their guards were crowded in to what was known as colonist cars. "The ones with slatted wooden seats, bunks that pulled down at night, and with a stove at one end."

The Chinese carried their own food which they cooked en route, and according to Kersey, that always included dried fish "which smelled to high Heaven."

They would also entrust small sums of money to the guards to make added food purchases for them at various train stops.

In those days there were always lunch counters at stations and the guards (usually two on a coach, each working a 12 hour shift) ate their meals at those counters.

KERSEY... a rare job

Terms of their agreement gave them a return (first-class) ticket from Montreal, but no expenses and no berth or meals.

"So we became adept at eating until the train was pulling out, making a run for the last car and forgetting to pay for our sandwich or pie," Kersey says with a reminiscent grin.

Once his charges were turned over in Montreal there was always time to "take a girl to the Mount Royal Hotel supper dance and hear the then world-famous Charles Dorenburger, also to visit Niagara Falls and listen to Guy Lombardo and the Royal Canadians play on the ferry boat en route."

Looking back on the experience now, with more than a little nostalgia, Morris Kersey says "it was a reasonable way for a young person to see something of Canada."

Those Chinese trains of the 1930s were not the only ones to cross Canada. During the First World War, thousands of Chinese landed at William Head, on the way to labor battalions in France.

Old records show that 88,000 went through the station and across Canada by train on the way to France and 40,000 passed through on the way back home after the war. The rest returned by other routes.

In all, there were about 300,000 overseas. They didn't fight. They worked behind the lines, digging trenches, making ammunition dumps and latrines, constructing light railways and doing other labor jobs.

They were nearly all from Northern China and every one of them wore a pigtail.

Those were days when there was a $500 head tax on Chinese entering Canada and each one of the 88,000 went through here in bond.

British interests in Hong Kong sent them over and affluent Chinese in the community put up money at this end.

NOTE — I'll tell you how I met J. Leslie Harries of Dorval, Quebec, and something of his story as a guard on a Chinese train in my Wednesday column.

Bradley examines sample of nuclear pacemaker planted in him

Brad Runs on Nuclear Power

CALGARY (CP) — The thought of having his chest cut open every two or three years to renew a lease on life was too much for 11-year-old Bradley Johnson — or anyone else.

Bradley, son of Ole and Marge Johnson of Calgary, was born with a defect in his heart's electrical conductivity system which slows his unassisted pulse rate to between 72 beats per minute.

This is where a heart pacemaker comes in — to help restore the pulse rate to about 72 beats per minute.

Conventional, battery-powered pacemakers need to be replaced every two or three years. That depressed young Bradley, his mother said.

This week, Bradley became the youngest Canadian to receive a nuclear heart pacemaker. Power by an aspirin-sized radioactive plutonium 238, it weighs six ounces and has an estimated life of 10 years.

"Having the nuclear pacemaker put in is just like a load off his mind," Mrs. Johnson said. "He won't have to worry about another operation for eight years at least."

The nuclear pacemaker, developed in the late 1960s, was first installed in a French woman in 1970. Since then, more than 650 such implants have been conducted in 23 countries. Bradley was the 12th Canadian to have a nuclear pacemaker.

The high cost of the nuclear device — $4,800 compared to $1,200 for a battery pacemaker — necessitates careful selection in its use, said Jack Ide, territory manager for Medtronic of Canada Ltd., the only licensed manufacturer of pacemakers in Canada.

"Because the taxpayer pays for the pacemakers, certain criteria for their application have to be met. The best candidate for a nuclear pacemaker is a younger patient facing a lifetime of heart pacing."

Bradley's operation was performed at Holy Cross Hospital by Dr. George Miller, who also installed his original battery pacemaker.

The boy's first words after the surgery were asking for food.

Quick Cookie for Drop-Ins

By HILDA BEASTALL

Shortbread types of cookies are good to have around for "drop-in" visitors. When sugar is kept to a minimum and the butter is not used too freely, they are good food for almost anyone. People living alone can quickly make this type of cookie for their lunch and supper dessert with fruit.

Wheat germ as part of the flour quantity adds to flavor, texture and nutrition, as do the ground nuts in the rolls.

The shortbread cookies are cut with whatever shapes you happen to have. I have one two-inch circular fluted and one three-inch-by-one rectangular fluted to cover a variety of uses.

Decorations are simple — a piece of date, a few sesame seeds, half a shelled nut, coconut, a sliver of orange or lemon peel.

SHORTBREAD WHEAT GERM

- 1 1/4 c. (approx) unbleached flour
- 1 1/4 tsp. baking powder
- 1 Tbsp. wheat germ
- 1 tsp. brewer's yeast powder
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/2 c. (scant) soft margarine
- 3 Tbsp. demerara sugar
- 1 egg yolk beaten with 3 Tbsp milk

Measure wheat germ and yeast powder into measuring cup and fill up with unbleached flour; add other 1/2 cup of flour and the other dry ingredients, mixing them with fork.

Cream margarine, add sugar. Beat with wooden spoon. Add dry ingredients alternately with the egg yolk beaten into milk.

The dough will be smooth and stiff. Chill in refrigerator for 1/2 hour or so.

Roll out one-third at a time on lightly floured board until a quarter-inch thick. Cut with any shaped cookie cutters.

You find this dough easy to piece together for re-shaping so you get 30 to 36 shortbreads.

Lift with knife from board; place on ungreased cookie sheet, decorate some as suggested with a nut or piece of date.

Bake in oven about 375 degs. for 10 minutes or until lightly browned. When cooled, store in tin, covering the layer of cookies closely with waxed paper.

LOGS SUNFLOWER SEED

- 2 Tbsp soft margarine
- 2 Tbsp. demerara sugar
- 1 egg
- 1/2 c. unbleached flour including 2 Tbsp. wheat germ
- 1 tsp. brewer's yeast powder
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/2 c. finely cut dates
- 1/4 c. ground sunflower seeds

Mix sugar and margarine well; add the egg and beat a little with spoon. Dust a little flour over the cut dates to separate the pieces. Mix flour with remaining dry ingredients and add with the fruit and half the ground sunflower seeds.

This mixture is fairly soft but can still be handled for shaping into small rolls with the hands. Roll some of the logs (or rolls) in the remaining chopped sunflower seeds and some into fine unsweetened coconut if desired.

Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degs. for 15 minutes, until lightly browned. Depending on size of rolls, you may have 15 or 20.

Cutting down on amount of sugar used in cookies, cakes and desserts does not mean less energy food. The wheat germ, brewer's yeast, whole wheat or unbleached flour, dates, nuts, even the vegetable margarine (soft) all have energy value, with the difference that the energy lasts longer than that generated by refined sugar.

Almost 100, And Still Going Strong

TYNEMOUTH, England (UPI) — Charlie May says he smoked his first cigar at the time of the Spanish-American war. That was in 1898 and he was 23. He rolled his first lawn bowling ball when he was 63. Now he's a month short of 100 and is still doing both.

"Bowling and rum and cigars — they do me a power of good," he said.

Defaced Old Master Can Be Repaired

CAMBRIDGE, England — An art expert said today it will take a week to repair one of the world's most valuable paintings damaged by vandals who scratched the letters IRA across it.

The $2.5 million painting,

The Adoration of The Magi, by the Flemish master Rubens was vandalized Saturday in King's College Chapel where it hangs over the altar.

The vandals also broke open a medieval coffer of oak wood and stole $120, police said.

Witness Rally In Nanaimo

The Jehovah's Witnesses expects about 1,000 persons from the Victoria area will attend the Witnesses' district convention being held July 11-14 in Nanaimo.

The convention, presiding minister of the Victoria Congregation Richard Tannhauser said, will be one of 85 this year in North America.

Arthur Lucas, chief restorer of the National Gallery in London, said repair of the picture depended on how thick the paint of the two-foot-high letters was. But he said it should not take more than a week to clean it off.

A London businessman paid $600,000 for the painting in 1959 and presented it to the college. It was a world record price for a painting at the time, but experts said it would fetch more than a million pounds ($2.4 million) on the market now.

PILOT DEAD, WIFE LANDED

McGUIRE, N.J. (AP) — Martha Waite's husband used to point out the controls on the family's small plane as they flew along. He told her what the different knobs were for.

Mrs. Waite even flew the plane occasionally. But she had never landed the craft.

Then, on Saturday, Mrs. Waite's husband, William, 52, suffered a heart seizure while at the controls of the Piper Cherokee and died.

Guided by flight controllers and the pilot of another plane who flew his craft alongside, Mrs. Waite managed to crash-land the single-engine Piper safely here.

McGuire Air Force Base authorities said neither Mrs. Waite nor the other passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Ballew, were hurt in the landing although the plane's landing gear was smashed and the propeller was bent.

The couples, both from Rockville, Md., had just taken off from Ocean City, N.J., airport apparently heading for home when Waite, a retired navy commander, was stricken.

Police Chief Berserk

CASCADE, Idaho (AP) — An autopsy and investigation were under way today to determine why the police chief of McCall apparently went berserk and threatened a Colorado family Saturday before he was shot to death.

James Perkins, 51, was fatally wounded Saturday afternoon in a shootout with three county and state police officers 13 miles south of Cascade, where Perkins' car had rammed into a car and trailer driven by James Stavast of Grand Junction, Colo.

John Lyons, who was appointed to succeed Perkins as police chief of the mountain resort town of 1,850 within a few hours after the shooting, said "Sunday that Perkins' health had been down" since he underwent an operation for removal of kidney stones or gallstone last February.

But he said the work load for the four-man McCall police force had tapered off a few months, following a heavy winter, and there didn't appear to be much pressure at the office.

Lyons said: "The chief has a wonderful wife and an excellent home life and there were no problems there."

County prosecuting attorney Robert Remakus said the first indication anything was wrong was when Perkins sped through Cascade, 35 miles south of McCall in his patrol car at a high rate of speed.

Deputy sheriff Jerry Conklin said he and state patrolman Mary Miller gave chase. Conklin said the officers radioed ahead for a roadblock and were joined by another officer. But shortly afterwards, Perkins lost control of the patrol car and skidded into Stavast's car which was stopping alongside the road to heed the police car's siren and flashing lights.

Stavast said Perkins jumped out of his car and began shouting "you're not going to stop me here." He said Perkins smashed the windshield of their car and windows in their trailer with a pistol.

Conklin said as the pursuing police cars arrived "we tried about everything we could do to get him to throw down his gun, but he was just mumbling incoherently. When he began shooting at us we felt we had no choice, but to stop him somehow... that's the first time I've ever had to shoot at a guy with a badge on."

The Snake That Wasn't Caused a Lot of Damage

COMANCHE, Tex. — Harold Tafker swore he saw a rattlesnake. He was about to get in the cab of his flatbed truck after a quick bite at the Deluxe Cafe when he saw the rattler.

Tafker says he doesn't like snakes and, of all the snakes he doesn't like, he doesn't like rattlesnakes the most.

He called the police. The police referred him to Joe Waring, a local insurance salesman and head of the Comanche Rescue Squad. Tafker called Waring who brought his team to flush out the snake.

They bored holes in the doors and the floor of the cab so the snake could crawl out. No snake.

They blasted the inside of the cab with fire extinguishers to force the snake out of the holes. No snake.

They cut off the roof of the cab with cutting chisels. No snake.

Tafker finally admitted there was no snake in the cab. Waring and his crew piled the parts of the truck on the flatbed and Tafker drove away.

SPOKANE, Wash. — She's never been a father, but Mrs. John Bruce Dodd was presented a bouquet of roses Sunday for Father's Day. Mrs. Dodd is the founder of the day honoring dads.

She started it in 1910 as a local celebration in Spokane, and four years later Congress made it apply to fathers nationwide.

WASHINGTON — Singer Pat Boone must pay more than $52,000 in back income taxes because a judge ruled he cannot write off losses in a land development deal on his 1965 and 1966 tax returns.

Police said the boy was charged this week with two counts of public mischief after he sent them on a wild goose chase.

He first offered his services in early March when he walked into a Toronto police station with some tips on drug dealers he said he knew.

A police spokesman said some of the tips bore fruit, but soon the boy began telephoning as often as 10 times a day. After checking out a man he named as murder suspect, police decided the boy was not telling the truth.

RENO, Nev. — Judy Waage thought a lube job would take care of the annoying chirping in her car.

But when she arrived at the garage to pick up the car, all the mechanics were laughing.

"They asked me how long I parked my car in one place and then opened my hood to show me my two new friends."

In a tiny nest behind the grill, two young sparrows chirped to protest the intrusion.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — "Little One" had a date in court today to prove she is truly a mentally retarded poodle.

The pure-bred dog's owner, Mrs. Evelyn Coswell has a $15,000 damage suit on file, charging the National Pet Spa of Fort Lauderdale with causing permanent psychological damage to the animal when it was badly cut by an employee of the grooming firm while the dog was receiving a hair cut Jan. 27, 1973.

"Our dog is like a retarded child now. She cried all the time for a year and a half and kept us awake. She would just sit and stare at us," Mrs. Coswell said.

BALTIMORE, Md. — Jay Nestle, a Colorado butcher who must be careful not to let his 24-inch handle-bar moustache interfere with his work, is the winner of the second annual International Father's Moustache Competition.

Nestle said he plans to let his moustache grow until 1976, when Colorado celebrates its centennial as a state. He estimates that by that time his moustache will have reached 36 to 40 inches.

So far, the 36-year-old butcher has been able to cope with its extra-long handlebar while working in Broomfield, Colo.

"It hits the saw once in a while, but not the blade," Nestle said. "It interferes more with recreation than with work."

OAKLAND, Calif. — Police spent two hours trying to flush an erratic gunman from a house before they realized the alleged assailant was standing beside them.

The suspect, Charles Daly, had somehow sneaked from the house Saturday night, joining police lines and urging the person inside to surrender, police said.

Daly was undergoing psychiatric treatment today.

TORONTO — A 14-year-old boy who worked briefly as a police informer is in trouble with the law himself because the police stopped believing his stories.

'I'm No Bloody Fool'

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles, the future King of England, has only a few more hours to say so long to his blonde American girl friend but he's doing it in private.

"You don't think I'd be such a bloody fool as to bring her here," the 25-year-old prince told newsmen hoping to catch a glimpse of the couple together at a polo match Sunday at Cowdray Park south of London.

"You are wasting your time you know. There's nobody here," Charles said.

The prince has to report back to his naval frigate Jupiter tonight when his furlough ends but he may see Laura Jo Watkins again later this summer.

Sea Conference Worries Japan

Times News Services

MIURA, Japan—The fishermen and the businessmen in this port 40 miles south of Tokyo are anxiously awaiting a conference opening this month half a world away.

They fear the results might curtail sharply the activities of the world's biggest shipping fleet, and bring an end to the days of big cash bonuses.

A United Nations conference on law of the sea opens June 20 in Caracas, Venezuela. One result might be a drastic revision of the rules covering territorial waters and resources of the seas.

Coming on the heels of the oil crisis, Japanese are worried about the Caracas conference.

"We had problems for years before the oil crisis," said one fishing company executive here. "We survived them all. But the new zone will finish us."

He was referring to proposals to extend the territorial limit of coastal countries to 200 miles off shore, giving them exclusive rights in the area—from fishing to exploring for oil, to mining uranium and other underwater resources.

The Japanese government announced somewhat vaguely recently that it will follow "the tide of the world," a suggestion that it will reluctantly accept the decisions made by the Caracas conference.

However, if the 200-mile proposal should shut out Japanese activities, it would cost about 48 per cent of its annual 100-million-ton fish haul, the Fishery Agency said.

This would mean Japan might lose a quarter of its animal protein sources. More than half of the 34 grams of such protein eaten by the average Japanese each day comes from fish, the agency said.

An estimated 18,000 ocean-going Japanese vessels, from 10 to 1,000 tons, prowled the world looking for fish. Fishermen are away from home for 10 to 12 months.

It is used to big bonuses that compensated for each rough, dangerous voyage. They ran from $10,000 to $30,000 for officers, and $2,000 to $3,000 for a teen-age fisherman. Not any more.

One recent voyage from this port brought only a $500 cash bonus for an ordinary fisherman, said Seiji Deguchi, managing director of a Miura fishing company. Eighteen of the ship's 50 crew members left their jobs within 14 days, mostly staying on land with another job.

Deguchi said fish catches are declining, possibly because everybody around the world is catching too many fish and depleting the schools.

A group of landlocked nations representing one-fifth of the world's countries may swing the balance on key issues at the Caracas Conference.

Conference sources Sunday were discussing the prospect of a tactical alliance between landlocked states and the big powers—against the developing coastal countries—to assure maximum internationalization of the sea.

Seabed Mining Seen Within Two Years

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A United Nations study says that within two years mining operations on the deep ocean floor may be producing valuable mineral ores for the world market.

The study says the oceans can be expected to yield copper, cobalt, manganese and nickel, and that within 11 years almost a fifth of the world's nickel may come from the seabed.

Cobalt and manganese mined in this way should sharply depress market prices for these metals, the study says. Nickel prices should become somewhat lower, while copper prices will be hardly affected at all, it adds.

The 92-page report, compiled by the UN secretariat, was prompted by a request from the General Assembly in 1970 for a study of the impact that seabed mining outside national limits would have on the economic well-being of developing countries.

It will be discussed at a UN conference beginning Thursday in Caracas, Venezuela, on the law of the sea.

GARDENING hilda beastall

Your Garden Greenhouse Needs Summer Attention

The amateur's small greenhouse needs more frequent attention during extremes of temperature than a larger house run by an experienced grower.

As daytime warmth sends outdoor thermometers up to a pleasant 70, a small greenhouse may easily register 90.

This is due to the small amount of space enclosed and the radiation of heat from every object therein. The volume of air is small, and usually there are too few ventilators to allow a free exchange of warm air from within and cooler air from outside.

However, the amateur can do several things to lower the mounting temperature in the greenhouse.

First, a film on the outside glass, roof and sides, of either a thin lime wash or a thin skim milk powder wash. The lime washes off most readily with rain, an ideal condition because stronger light is required by the plants inside on rainy days.

To apply the wash, close all vents snugly, and put on the wash with a wide soft brush.

The roof glass of a small house can usually be reached from a stepladder with the use of a long-handled broom. Greenhouse roof brushes are on long extending handles to use from ground level.

Try to put on a thin, even wash which gives a pleasant muted light inside but not patches of shade.

The second thing to do is to provide a through current of air from the open door to a vent in the end of the house. Larger greenhouses are equipped with a door at each end, partly for convenience of access but just as much for changing the air.

Roof vents are not really sufficient unless the whole length of the roof each side of the ridge is composed of vents. Depending on the kinds of plants spending the summer in the greenhouse, you may want to leave some vents open at night but close the door.

A wire screen door of one-inch mesh will suffice to keep out stray animals on warm days when you are away and must leave the door open.

Plants which have hairy leaves or stems need to go into cool night temperatures with dry soil on the pot surfaces, and dry leaf surfaces.

If in ground beds, try to have dry soil surface before night. Mildew (a fungous disease) develops on damp leaves in cool night temperatures indoors.

You will notice tuberous begonias, tomatoes and zonal pelargoniums (bedding geraniums) have hairy stems and leaves.

Water these as needed in early part of the day to avoid mildew. Also keep pots well spaced on the benches without foliage touching.

On days of low humidity you need to dampen the bench and concrete walk (if any) with water, for certain plants, usually of thinner leaf texture and non hairy.

A certain liveliness of atmosphere should greet you on entering the greenhouse; not a dry heat nor a humid closeness. Even without meters and gauges to tell him, an experienced grower feels the atmosphere and knows when it is just right for his plants.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The correct way of playing some given hand frequently depends not merely on one's visible assets, but also on the bidding of an opponent. Quite often, an "ear" to the opponents' bidding will point the way to the winning line of play.

Such was the case in today's deal, which came up in a rubber-bridge game. However, our South declarer either wasn't listening too carefully to a bid made by the West defender; or he simply failed to attach the proper significance to the call. The result was that he lost a slam that was there for the taking. North-South vulnerable. East deals.

East deals.

♥ K Q 5 4
♣ 7 2

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass 1♣ 4♦ 6♣
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Dummy's ace of diamonds was put up on West's opening lead of the king — and East trumped the ace. Since it was impossible not to lose a club, declarer suffered a one-trick set.

Declarer should have realized that West, for his pre-emptive jump overall of four diamonds, rated to have at least seven-card suit — and might well have had an eight-card suit. Therefore East had, at most, one diamond — and might have had none.

Hence, to have played dummy's diamond ace on the opening lead was a very risky play. Even if East had a diamond, and dummy's ace won the opening lead, South would still have to lose a trick.

To guard against East being void of diamonds, declarer should have allowed West's king of diamonds to have captured the opening lead. The queen of diamonds would then have followed, South ruffing.

The ace and king of trumps would be cashed next, picking up the outstanding pieces. On the ace of diamonds, South would now discard his losing club. South's losing heart would, of course, be ruffed in dummy.

Played in the recommended fashion, South would simply be exchanging a trick for a trick: instead of losing a club trick, he would be losing a diamond. And he would, in this case, be certain of winning a trick with the ace of diamonds — after trumps were drawn.

So South's defeat was strictly his own fault.

CIGARETTES FROM SPUDS

BUENOS AIRES (AFP) — An Argentine company soon is to start producing cigarettes made from potato plant leaves that are alleged to be harmless to health.

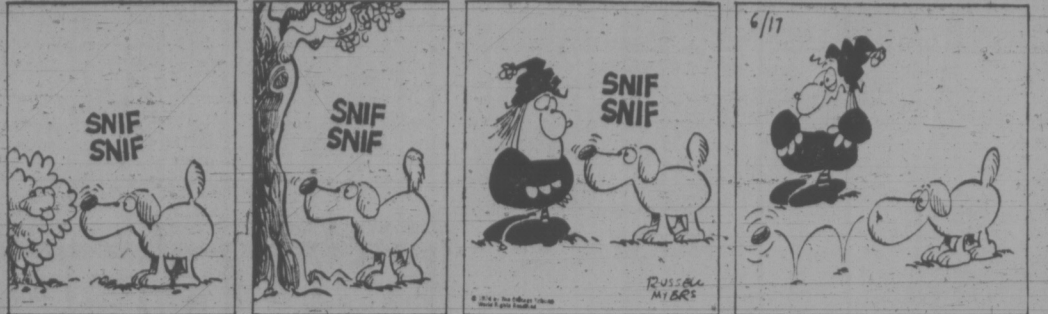

Management spokesmen said the cigarettes' taste and aroma were similar to those of cigarettes made from tobacco leaves.

The plant is to be established in Buenos Aires province in an area where large quantities of potatoes are grown. It is to employ 300 persons.

'Duty' to Prop Minority—Lewis

TORONTO (CP) — David Lewis, federal New Democratic Party leader, said Sunday that should another minority government result from the July 8 federal election, it will be the duty of all members of the House of Commons to keep Parliament operating for three or four years.

"If the people of Canada again elect a minority government whatever its approach, whether NDP, Liberal or Tory, it will be the obligation of all members of Parliament to try and make Parliament work for three or four years," he said on the CBC radio Check-up.

But answering other questions on the CBC show and on a local television program, Lewis refused to say what Liberal or Progressive Conservative economic policy the NDP would support in a minority Parliament.

Elsewhere in the campaign: —Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield raced the weather as well as political opponents on the weekend as he visited eight constituencies in Ontario.

—Prime Minister Trudeau, fulfilling a speaking engagement made before the election call, addressed a cheering audience of Canadian Jewish Congress.

—Social Credit Leader Real

Caouette began his second campaign trip outside Quebec with a visit to Moncton, N.B., where Mayor Leonard Jones was rejected as a Conservative candidate because of his opposition to the Official Languages Act.

The theme of Stanfield's speech was the same wherever he went: "Work, work, work." No Conservative victory would come by chance.

Stanfield took a soaking Saturday but wound up in brilliant sunshine Sunday in the Toronto area before returning to Ottawa for a one-day rest before heading to the west coast tomorrow.

He visited three of Toronto's better-known markets Saturday — St. Lawrence market, an old time produce market; Honest Ed's, the city's most prominent cut-rate store; and Kensington market, Toronto's well-known ethnic market with a strong Portuguese flavor.

At every centre the Conservative leader marched along with the local candidate, shaking hands and saying hello to hundreds of shoppers and keepers.

At the open Kensington market the rains drenched the leader and his entourage of press and political aides.

At Ajax, in Ontario riding, the rains washed out a scheduled parade but Stanfield made a shopping centre appearance. At Port Perry in the same constituency he spoke to enthusiastic workers.

The controversy generated by the Moncton mayor, now running as an independent, was one of the first subjects raised during Caouette's visit.

What about Mayor Jones? asked a reporter.

"Well, I don't know," the French-Canadian leader replied. "Is he a Social Credit?"

Caouette refused to involve himself in the controversy but did say the mayor has a right "to be what he is if we live in a democracy."

LONDON, N.H. (Reuter) — Police reported more than 100 arrests Sunday as a weekend of violence continued here and in the adjoining small town of Belmont among more than 50,000 motorcyclists attending the two-day annual national motorcycle road races.

Police Chief Earl Sweeney of Belmont predicted that the number of arrests, on charges ranging from assault to traffic violations, might reach 1,000 or more unless the rain that began falling Sunday morning caused the gathering to break up early.

Many cyclists camped beside country roads and highways, littering the area with empty beer cans and bottles.

Two were killed in highway accidents en route to the convention, three others were in Belmont, and others were injured when a grenade exploded at their encampment in hurt in stabbings and numerous brawls.

National Guard units and state police were standing by in case things got out of hand in the towns, which have a normal total population of little more than 5,000.

Most of those arrested were charged only with traffic offences and were released on bail, said a town official.

The motorcyclists come to the area every year from all over the United States and Canada to stage racing competitions. Beside the cyclists, nearly 10,000 followers of the sport were in the area as spectators.

Police Told 'Shoot to Kill'

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Connecticut police commissioner Cleveland Fussenich said Friday his men's use of high-power pistols loaded with internationally-banned bullets fits department policy of shooting only to kill.

"We don't use the gun to slow a person down. We shoot at a person to kill him. We don't fire warning shots. This is used as a last resort and only as a last resort," Fussenich said.

Connecticut state police are being armed with potent .357 magnum revolvers, capable of putting holes in an automobile engine block when hard-jacketed bullets are used.

But Fussenich has told troopers to use hollow-nose bullets that mushroom upon impact with flesh and are prohibited from use in warfare under articles of the Geneva Convention.

"You know, these are, these are, an awful thing to face," the commissioner said haltingly while holding one of the big revolvers and explaining the new weapons policy.

For the past 40 years Connecticut troopers have carried .33-calibre weapons, which have far less power.

Massacre Finding

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (Reuter) — A United Nations commission has reached a provisional conclusion that Portuguese troops massacred people at Wiriyamu in Mozambique in 1971, reliable sources said today.

The sources said the commission looking into allegations of the massacres has agreed that evidence heard so far established that such massacres took place.

They said the commission has not yet assessed the evidence in full and has not decided on the wording of their report.

Rev. Adrian Hastings, the priest who reported the alleged massacres, said last year that 400 men, women and children were killed in Wiriyamu.

LEISURE BACKED

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall Saturday proposed creation of a leisure services unit of the provincial government to co-ordinate cultural, recreational and heritage development.

He told the British Columbia Sports Federation's annual meeting that the province's recreation philosophies have not kept pace with other changes in society.

"There is an urgent need to further develop our philosophies of urban recreation at the provincial government level so that more effective support may be given to municipalities, regional districts, and agencies who have the primary responsibility for provision of recreation opportunities," Hall said.

The urgent needs, he added, which would be met by the leisure services unit, are for strong leadership, development of policies and a clear delineation of areas of responsibility of each government department.

Bird Dog Pilot Walks From Crash

Fire bomber spotter Michael Carr-Harris, of Victoria, walked away from his wrecked plane Sunday after a crash in the rugged Swan Hills of northwestern Alberta.

The 40-year-old "bird dog" pilot for Flying Fireman Ltd. and passenger Terry Turner, of Edmonton, made a safe emergency landing 19 miles southwest of Fox Creek, approximately 150 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Their aircraft — a Cessna 185 owned by Flying Fireman — is a writeoff, Carr-Harris and Turner were only cut and bruised, RCMP reported.

The pilot, of 2085 Chaucer, telephoned his mother Mrs. B. G. Carr-Harris, of 1141 Transit, to reassure her.

"He just said the engine conked out... Thank goodness he didn't crash in a fire," Mrs. Carr-Harris said.

Carr-Harris had lived in Victoria since 1949, except for several years when he operated Ocean Air, a charter plane service from Port Alberni, and had many hours of float plane time.

Flying Fireman's four Canso water bombers have been based in Alberta. They are not under contract to B.C. Service during this year's fire season.

IMPEACHMENT? 100 TO 1 AGAINST

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy (the Greek) Snyder has established betting odds on the chances of impeachment and conviction of the president.

Snyder told People Magazine the odds on Nixon's being impeached by the house are a "toss-up." But he said the chances of his being convicted by the Senate are 100 to 1 against.

Snyder told the magazine he based his prediction partly on a February poll of the House by his public relations firm.

Unightly Swamp Cost Incorrect

The Times incorrectly reported Thursday that the provincial highways department offered Saanich municipality an unsightly swamp area for $140,000.

The story, which was based on comments made in the legislature by Highway Minister Graham Lea, should have read that the government offered to turn over the land to Saanich at no cost.

The land, adjoining Pat Bay near Rogers Avenue, originally cost the government $140,000 and the highways department was offering to turn over the seven acres to be used as a neighborhood park.

Lea said Saanich indicated that before the turnover would be accepted, the apartment would have to do improvement work, estimated to cost $30,000.

But the government, having already spent money to acquire the land and to do levelling, ditching and seeding, declined to incur the further expense of improvement before turning the land over to Saanich.

Geoffrey Heyworth, Soap Baron Dead

LONDON (CP) — British industrialist Baron Heyworth, who rose to become chairman of the giant Unilever Corp. after gaining his first business experience in Canada, died Saturday at the age of 79.

The son of a Liverpool businessman, Geoffrey Heyworth joined Lever Brothers Ltd., as it then was, in his home city as a clerk in 1912 earning about $3 a week. The following year he went to Canada to work under J. E. Ganong, president of the Lever group there which stretched from Victoria to New Brunswick.

The Canadian group was the most profitable of all the overseas ventures established by the soap manufacturer William Lever, later Lord Leverhulme. But the problems of vast distances and strong competition in that market gave young Heyworth his first ideas about business organization.

He also was able to observe the streamlined methods of United States industry and The Times says Heyworth retained to the end his admiration for the "energy and flexibility of the American businessman."

Heyworth served in the Canadian Army during the First World War. He joined the 48th Highlanders because, he said, "the Highlanders needed an Englishman's help."

His war service left him with a leg wound which troubled him all his life. After the war, he returned to Canada, but was recalled in 1924, after marriage to the former Lois Dunlop of Woodstock, Ont., to help look after Lever Brothers export trade. The business was still primarily in soap, though in later years the company was to branch out into many other products.

In 1931, Heyworth became one of the youngest directors of Lever Brothers, subsequently incorporated into the Anglo-Dutch Unilever, one of Britain's biggest business enterprises. He became chairman of Unilever in 1942 and retired in 1960. He was made a baron in 1955.

FORD TO HUSH ITS TV ADS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) said today it intends to accept a negotiated settlement of a complaint that Ford Motor Co. misled the public by depicting Ford cars as quieter than a glider and stronger than a steel guard-rail.

The commission alleged the ads were misleading for two reasons. First, a glider isn't quiet. Second, the steel beams in the sides of Fords can't withstand the same lateral impact as highway guard-rails.

So Ford and its advertising agency, J. Walter Thompson of New York, promised not to extol the strength, quietness or performance of any Ford Motor Co. car unless there's a reasonable basis for the claims.

The commercials challenged by the commission involved the 1971 Ford LTD and Galaxie and the 1973 Ford LTD.

The ads for the 1973 model showed a sound-measuring device inside a glider. "Nobody has to convince you how quiet a glider is," said the television ads.

The sound meter in the glider measured 82 decibels, compared with 65 inside the car. But 82 decibels is not quiet, the FTC contended.

General Radio Co., which took the sound-meter readings for Ford, says in its Handbook of Noise Measurement that 82 decibels is about as loud as a pneumatic drill 50 feet away or the inside of a sports car at 50 miles an hour.

Trustees Unhappy

The B.C. School Trustees Association is going to draft its own white paper in response to Education Minister Eileen Dailly's white paper, Greater Victoria school board trustee Walter Donald said today.

Donald will be one of four B.C. trustees on the committee to prepare the white paper, a committee set up at a weekend meeting of trustees in Vancouver.

The meeting at the Bayshore Inn drew trustees from 58 school boards to discuss Dailly's white paper, a five-page document published this spring.

Most at the meeting were unhappy with the growing centralization and education departmental control that Dailly's white paper might mean, Donald said.

Trustees discussed simple steps the department might take to ensure local control of education, such as giving school boards more control over building programs, and giving all school boards, not just big ones, the right to appoint their own superintendent, he said.

Trustee also passed a resolution asking for local autonomy. See story, Page 34.

No Cash, No Flag, Ottawa Told

EDMONTON (CP) — A threat by the director of the Alberta All Girls Drum and Bugle Band not to show the Canadian flag at the World Cup soccer final in Munich next month is the latest blow in a sparring match with the federal government.

Bob Nagel, who said he formed band four years ago "to draw attention to Alberta and to Canada," said if Ottawa doesn't come through with financial help for the 130-girl band the band won't carry the Canadian flag during its Munich performance July 7.

The World Cup Association will pay $41,000 to the band for meals and lodging and the provincial government has contributed $7,000 for travel expenses. The girls have raised $18,000 themselves, largely through performances and a car raffle.

Mr. Nagel said an additional $51,000 is needed for expenses and the charter airline fares.

He said the federal government won't help because the girls, who range in age from 12 to 20, are not all old enough to rate Local Initiative or other federal grants, and because the band does not have a consistent performance scheduled.

The band is no stranger to international performances, having played before the Royal Family and for patrons of a Mexico City bullfight. Their tours have taken them through Europe, Mexico, the United States and most parts of Canada, and Mr. Nagel says they are in such demand he must turn down many invitations.

The European trip began with an invitation from the World Cup Association Feb. 20. It said the band was chosen to represent Canada at the finals, and later the band was told it was chosen over the RCMP musical ride.

Birdene George, publicity chairman of the band, said: "We feel the federal government should at least fly us to Munich and back, like they did the athletes that represented Canada at the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, N.Z."

The band's last confrontation with the federal government preceded its 3½-week tour of Europe in 1972. The band went anyway, even though it was short $3,000 of the $98,000 cost and later needed a $500 gift from former Edmonton mayor Bill Hawrelak — vacationing in Europe at the time — to supplement the grocery fund.

The City of Edmonton contributed $2,000 to that trip, but not before Ald. Ron Hayter said the band had a habit of pressuring city council by making commitments for tours "and then turning to us for salvation."

During Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to Alberta last week, a letter was handed to one of his aides asking for help to pay the $71,000 air charter costs.

SIGNS OF BATTLE

WINNIPEG (CP) — A controversy over the right of tenants to display political signs has erupted after a rental agency threatened to remove signs from balconies and windows of apartments if tenants refuse to take them down.

Martin Bergen, president of Edison Rental Agency, says his firm would use scaffolds if necessary to take signs down from balconies.

Earlier this week six or seven tenants received a letter stating that if signs weren't taken down within 24 hours the landlord intended to enter the premises and remove them.

One tenant living in L-B Towers, an apartment owned by the Edison Agency, said, "If we can't put up what we want in our own suite, we might as well live behind the Iron Curtain." She said the apartment is "like our own home."

Commenting on the issue in the Manitoba legislature Friday, Attorney-General Howard Pawley said landlords cannot off-handedly prevent their tenants from displaying political signs on their rented accommodations.

He said as far as he knew, such electioneering can only be legally prevented if provision is made in the tenant's lease.

Mr. Bergen said he was asking tenants to remove their signs because of an agreement he had with the NDP not to use buildings for signs in the last provincial election. At that time he was involved in the campaign of the Progressive-Conservative candidate Alfred Penner.

NDP officials said they didn't know of any such agreement.

School Boards Want Control

CUPE DEMONSTRATES AT KELOWNA CITY HALL

KELOWNA (CP) — About 150 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees staged a brief demonstration on the steps of the city hall here Saturday.

The city's lockout notice expired Saturday.

Many of the demonstrators were delegates attending the 11th annual convention of the B.C. division of CUPE in Vernon 30 miles north of here. The convention voted Friday to demonstrate in support of the Kelowna workers.

Union negotiator Aubrey Burton told the demonstrators the union will stand fast until interior members achieve wage parity with municipal employees in the Vancouver area.

VANCOUVER (CP) — School boards should have local autonomy, including the right to impose school taxes on property, delegates to a weekend meeting of the British Columbia School Trustees Association have decided.

In a general statement to be sent to Education Minister Eileen Daily, delegates said: "Accountability of boards should be to the local community and to the provincial department. But the greater responsibility is to the local community."

The statement, approved by representatives of 59 of the 74 B.C. school boards, called for a minimum of restrictive legislation and a maximum of permissive enabling legislation.

Delegates also said local property taxes should be continued as a means of financing education, although the local board should be allowed to set such taxes even if the provincial practice is ended, a meeting spokesman said Sunday.

In urging greater local autonomy, the statement to Mrs. Daily called for:

—Local appointment of superintendents, now limited to boards in districts having 20,000 or more students;

—Local control of building programs;

—Local development of education programs;

—Local accountability of budgeting.

OBJECTIVE ONE BIG RAIL UNION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Railway union officials met here on the weekend in an effort to bring all 17 rail unions into one Canadian union.

Jess Succamore, vice-president of the Confederation of Canadian Unions, said the immediate aim of the organizing committee set up at the meeting would be to recruit engineers at Canadian National Railways.

Succamore said the recent success of the Canadian Union of Transport Employees in winning the right to represent British Columbia Railway engineers from the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers gave the movement to Canadian railway unions considerable impetus.

Search Resumes For Light Plane

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Canadian Forces aircraft resumed the search today for a light plane, with one man aboard, missing since Saturday on the 100-mile flight here from Lillooet.

Searchers Sunday failed to find any trace of the missing plane, after a Buffalo, a Labrador helicopter and seven provincial government emergency aircraft combed the area.

The name of the missing pilot was withheld.

Jury Trials Urged

MINAKI, Ont. (CP) — The Manitoba Bar Association Saturday passed a resolution urging the enactment of legislation to make trial by jury in civil cases more accessible.

The lawyers said that Manitobans should have the right to have their civil disputes decided by a jury rather than a judge alone.

Winnipeg lawyer Harry Walsh said the civil jury is rarely used now although the quality of civil justice would be equal, if not better, under an optional system of trial by jury.

As it now stands, he said, it is "virtually impossible" to obtain the special court order needed to have a jury hear a civil case.

The right to trial by jury is restricted to criminal cases or cases involving slander, libel, false imprisonment or false arrest.

Simplicity

Today things can be simpler . . . but with enough tradition to be mindful of all concerned.

MONTREAL (CP) — An immediate increase in the wholesale price of Cadbury chocolate bars was announced today by the Cadbury Division of Cadbury Schweppes Powell Ltd.

The increase is expected to bring the retail price of a 15-cent chocolate bar to 20 cents, the company said.

It is the third time this year Cadbury has raised chocolate prices after 22 years of stability at 10 cents a bar.

John Newton, general manager of the Cadbury Division, said the newest increase was made necessary by continually rising costs for labor and raw materials.

Nixon Lawyer
Sent To Jail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former personal lawyer, was sentenced today to a minimum of six months in prison and was fined $10,000 for his part in Watergate-related matters.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica gave Kalmbach concurrent prison sentences of six to 18 months on each of two counts of violating campaign practice laws in the 1970 congressional elections.

IRA Bomb Hits
U.K. Parliament

Times News Services

LONDON — A bomb believed set by Irish terrorists exploded in an annex of the House of Commons during the morning rush hour today, setting a Parliament building on fire and injuring 11 persons, officials said.

The explosion, which immediately sent hundreds of security men to guard other public buildings, came just shortly before 8:30 a.m. as thousands of Londoners streamed into the city centre on their way to work.

It was the first such attack since Guy Fawkes' abortive gunpowder-bomb plot 370 years ago.

The blast shattered a gas main setting off a fire that damaged 900-year-old Westminster Hall, one of the most historic buildings in Britain and imperiled its world-famous hammer-beam ceiling. Fire fighting teams from all over the capital managed to put out the blaze before it did serious harm.

Scotland Yard said it accepted the bombing as a challenge from the IRA that no building or person is safe and rechecked security at Buckingham Palace and other sensitive centres.

Since the Palace of Westminster — a complex of buildings which includes the House of Commons, the House of Lords, Westminster Hall and the tower of Big Ben — has always been considered an obvious target for the IRA it has been under heavy guard.

But an underground car park is being built in the forecourt of Westminster Hall and several score workers, some of them Irish, have been engaged as laborers. With or without inside help a bomber managed to place from 15 to 20 pounds of gelignite in an alcove near the staff canteen.

At 8:20 a.m. today a caller with an Irish accent telephoned Press Association, a local news agency, and said a bomb was due to go off in the House of Commons in six minutes. The caller used a code word that identified his warning as genuine.

The warning was still being circulated when the bomb detonated about 10 minutes later with at least four Members of Parliament already in their offices preparing for today's session of the House of Commons which proceeded as scheduled.

None was among the injured; David Steel, chief whip of the Liberal party, said they got out into the street to find smoke billowing from the building and already almost obscuring Big Ben.

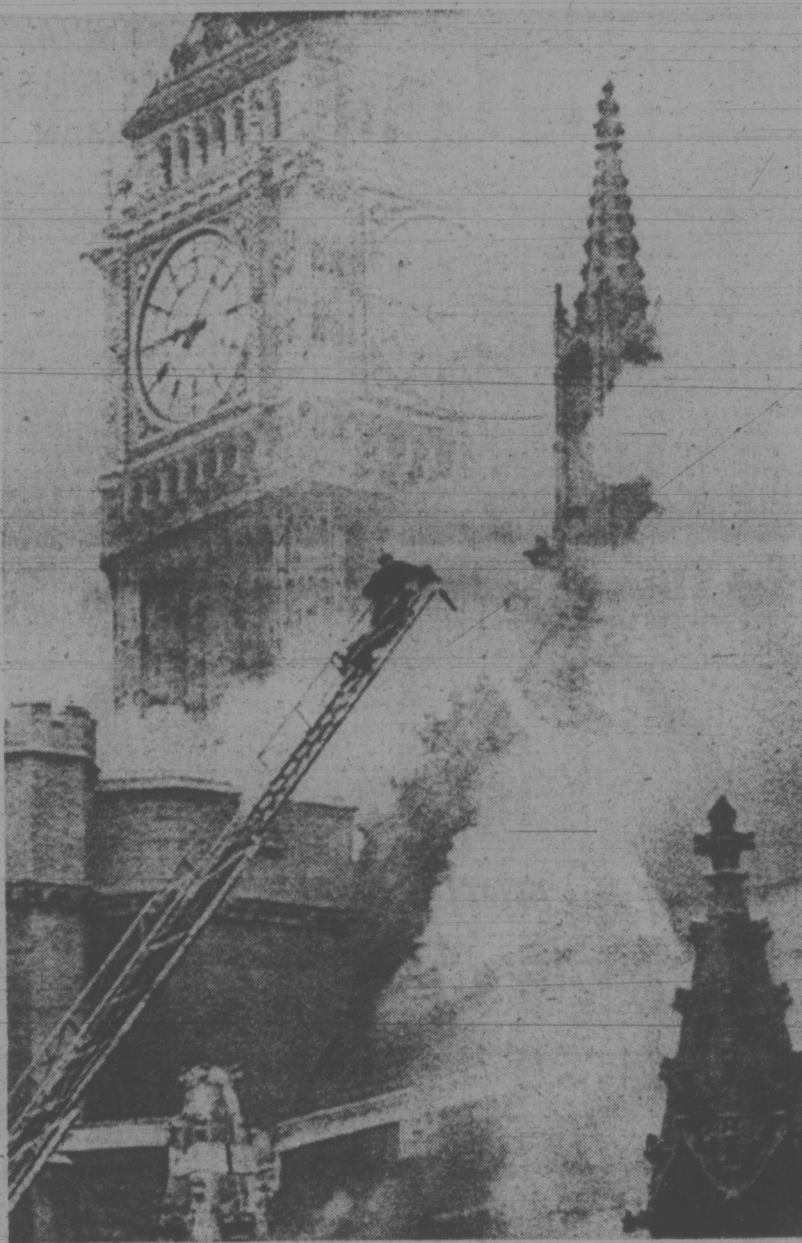

The last actual attack on the Commons came in 1971 when a spectator hurled a tear-gas grenade into the Commons chamber.

The last plot to blow up Parliament was by the rebel Guy Fawkes in 1604. Effigies of Fawkes now are burned every Nov. 5 in England to plot.

Meanwhile, in Belfast, leaders of hardline Protestant groups today began a three-day conference to discuss proposals by a paramilitary group for a cease-fire and peace talks with the Irish Republican Army, militant Protestant sources said.

Hopes for a truce were buoyed by a statement from the more radical of the two IRA factions, the Provisionals.

"The Republican movement will not be found wanting in its willingness to talk," said Seamus Loughran, a leader of Sinn Féin, the Provisionals' political arm.

Trudeau Pledges Ottawa
Will Subsidize Transit

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau today pledged a Liberal government to an urban transit assistance scheme that would cost between $275 million and $300 million over the next five years and would have the federal government paying a considerable share of initial transit costs in cities.

The prime minister, enunciating phase two of the Liberal transportation policy for the July 8 federal election campaign, said:

"A Liberal government would pay the total cost of Canadian-produced commuter vehicles and 50 per cent of the cost of stations of new commuter systems that have the approval of federal, provincial and municipal authorities.

Aides said this assistance to bring people in from the suburbs of such major cities as Toronto, Montreal and perhaps Vancouver would cost $50 million in the next five years.

—It would pay 25 per cent of the capital cost of Canadian manufactured vehicles in federal-provincial-municipal approved public transit systems.

Aides said this program for all major cities would cost about $100 million over five years.

—It would provide financial and other kinds of support to encourage Canadian industry to provide the right kind of equipment and municipalities to come up with total transit systems. Aides said this would cost $50 million in five years.

—The prime minister mixed the government's already announced policy on railway relocation with an offer to make the best use of railway rights-of-way for transit work as the

Pierre Trudeau, called again Sunday for the international control of nuclear testing.

He told a meeting of the Canadian Jewish Congress here that no non-nuclear nation need get into testing itself, since the atomic powers signing the Non-Proliferation Treaty — the U.S., the Soviet Union and Britain — will provide explosions "off the shelf" for developmental purposes.

Although the speech was delivered with the French explosion expected any hour, an aide stressed that Trudeau's remarks were directed more at India than at France.

The French government re-

were confirmed by outside monitors.

The Indian monitors said China's explosion took place in the Lop Nor testing area in Sinkiang province, about 1,500 miles west of Peking, at 2 a.m. EDT.

A one megaton bomb has 50 times as much explosive power as the atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Australia and New Zealand said today they were lodging strong protests against the French blast. Japan said it also would lodge a stiff protest once it had definite information the test took place.

In Canada Prime Minister

fused to comment. It never announces the individual tests, but said earlier this month that this year's series will be the last conducted in the atmosphere.

The Australian government said a nuclear device was set off today over the Mururoa Atoll, the French test site 1,000 miles southeast of Tahiti.

Prime Minister Gough Whitlam of Australia said the new tests are a matter of deep concern to his government because they will result in radioactive fallout on Australian territory. He said the French statement that these will be the last tests in the atmosphere was a step in the right direction, but the French government has not given his government "any satisfactory commitment that further atmospheric tests will not be held."

Prime Minister Norman Kirk of New Zealand said he has told his ambassador in Paris to file a strong protest.

France now has set off 53 nuclear devices in the atmosphere since its first explosion in the Sahara on Feb. 13, 1960. Engineers now are drilling tunnels at Mururoa and neighboring Fangatofa Atoll in preparation for underground testing.

Empty

At least 500 protesting miners are expected to demonstrate on the lawn of the legislature Friday, but they'll probably play to an empty house.

MLAs made an agreement last week to prorogue the spring session Wednesday and most politicians will head for constituencies as soon as the marathon session ends.

But a spokesman for the Majority Movement, helping to organize the Save Our Jobs Committee demonstration against the government's mineral royalty legislation, said the protestors are coming anyway.

"MLAs will now be getting cables from various mining groups asking them to keep the legislature in session," said the spokesman.

"If they choose to ignore them, that will be on

On Island
Stay Off

Thousands of loggers and millworkers on Vancouver Island ignored their union leaders today and refused to work.

But on the mainland, most operations were reported to be running normally.

The men either didn't go to work on the Island or were faced with unofficial pickets and went home.

The last contract between the International Woodworkers of America and Forest Industrial Relations expired at midnight Friday and today was the first full production day.

Roughly 80 per cent of the 14,000 IWA members on Vancouver Island were off work.

Negotiations for a new contract were continuing in Vancouver today amid union appeals to the men to stay at work until called out officially.

"The way to get an acceptable agreement is to negotiate it at the table," said IWA regional president and negotiating committee chairman Jack Munro. "We have arrived at some category revision settlements and made progress Sunday. I am optimistic."

Victoria IWA members met Sunday and voted "by an overwhelming majority" to support the negotiating committee and abide by the decision to stay at work, said local first vice-president Jack Groves.

Despite this, Sooke Forest Products, 400 workers, and Victoria Plywood, 200 workers, were shut down today after unofficial pickets appeared. Two logging operations, Canadian Puget Sound and Butler Brothers, employing close to 200 men, were also reported shut.

The B.C. Forest Products sawmill in Victoria ground to a halt late this morning after part of the production crew, planer mill men and green-chain workers, walked out. The mill employs 500 on three shifts.

The companion plywood mill, which employs 450, was still operating at noon and a company spokesman said the mill's powerhouse, which is in the sawmill section, was still operating.

Duncan IWA officials reported "everyone shut down" including operations at Chemainus, Youbou, Honeymoon

Flood Spilling
In Okanagan

KEREMEOS (CP) — Osoyoos Lake topped its flood protection level of 915 feet above sea level Sunday evening and was continuing to rise.

Water was backing up in the Similkameen River from Nighthawk, Wash., into the lake.

At 8 a.m. Sunday Osoyoos Lake had risen six inches in 24 hours. The flow of the Similkameen River, measured at Hedley, B.C., had increased to 24,800 cubic feet a second from 22,800 c.f.s. Saturday morning.

And at Nighthawk, a small community just south of the international border, the flow had risen to 30,100 c.f.s. Sunday from 27,000 c.f.s. Saturday.

Residents of a trailer court at Nighthawk were watching water from the lake gradually creep closer to their homes Sunday, although the water was still two feet below the level reached in 1972.

At Keremeos, emergency groups replacing dikes along the Similkameen destroyed Friday, faced a new problem Sunday.

Pat Meehand of the Water Rights Branch of the British Columbia Resources department said a spring created by water seeping under the dike had appeared and could easily wash out a road which runs on top of the dike.

A crew of 20 girls from a nearby school filled and placed sandbags in a 10-foot circle around the spring.

Two families were forced from their home Saturday as the Keremeos Creek broke over its banks, ruining vegetable and hay fields.

Several hundred acres of land, part of the normal flood plain, south of Keremeos, were under water, Earle Anthony, water rights branch engineer, said Sunday. He added that high water tables were expected to remain indefinitely.

Meanwhile in the Fraser Valley, the Fraser River at Mission was at 18.47 feet above sea level Sunday from 17.56 Saturday.

MAN, DAUGHTER DIE
WHEN BOAT FLIPS

A Powell River man and his three-year-old daughter drowned early Sunday at Rock Bay, 25 miles north of Campbell River.

Raymond Norbury, 35, and daughter Iona drowned when their boat capsized after mooring for the night because of rough seas.

Norbury's wife and another daughter swam to shore, about 25 feet from the boat.

Car accidents claimed three other lives on Vancouver Island during the weekend.

Patrick Tisdale, 21, of Campbell River died Sunday afternoon in a rescue helicopter en route to Vancouver after he was involved in a head-on collision on Highway 28 north of Campbell River.

Corinne Miller, 22, of Nanaimo was killed early Sunday morning when a car in which she was riding hit a power pole and flipped over into a ditch near Nanaimo. Driver Lindsay Valliere of Nanaimo suffered minor injuries.

Adam Pierce Ashley, eight, of Campbell River died late Sunday afternoon when a car driven by Shirley Mullenberg of Campbell River struck him on the Island Highway just south of Campbell River.

Huge Fish Kill at Port Alice

As federal fisheries and provincial pollution control officials today continued their investigations into a massive fish kill near the Rayonier pulp mill at Port Alice, a Pollution Control Board spokesman in Victoria said it appears that lowered oxygen levels in Neirosos Inlet caused the deaths.

But James McCrossan, PCB public information officer, said it is still unclear to what extent effluents from the mill operation were responsible, as a number of other factors could have complicated the circumstances surrounding the kill.

A strong wind had been blowing up the inlet for two days when the company first reported the discovery of dead fish last Thursday, he said, and a large vessel had just entered the waters, churned up the bottom and

"generally stirred up the whole situation."

Estimates of the dead hake, which have surfaced in the immediate area, range as high as 8,000, and hundreds more have been washed up on beaches up to 10 miles distant.

Dissolved oxygen content in the inlet waters is predominantly a summer problem in the operation of the sulphite pulp mill, McCrossan said, and this summer the company is having to work to a new set of rules stipulated under its pollution control permit.

McCrossan said company officials had been "up to the mark" in reporting the fish kill promptly, and cutting back production while investigations were in progress. In Vancouver, an official of the federal environment protection service said today the actual cause of the kill hasn't been "pinned down," and fisheries officials are uncertain whether the dead fish reported 10 miles away at Quatsino died from the conditions which caused the inlet deaths.

Last March, Rayonier was fined $1,500 on each of two counts after being convicted of polluting fish-bearing waters in September of 1973, when about 10,000 herring were found killed in the inlet.

Island Engineers On Job

Vancouver Island steam plant engineers employed by the provincial government were at work today, refusing to join about 50 lower mainland members of their union in strike action.

Pickets were placed at eight provincial government institutions in the Greater Vancouver-Fraser Valley area, including jails, hospitals and schools.

In Victoria, all government buildings were manned as usual and according to information received in Vancouver, engineers at other provincial government buildings in the interior were working.

The union has about 240 members, of which 100-125 are employed in the Vancouver area and the bulk of those remaining in Greater Victoria.

The 7 a.m. walkout was to back a demand for certification as a separate bargaining unit outside the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

A BCGEU spokesman, Jack Adams, who is assistant to the general secretary John Fryer, said it appeared engineers wanted to return to a system of making representation to the cabinet rather than by collective bargaining.

The Public Service Labor Relations Act, which provides for bargaining collectively, divides the members into three groups — professionals, nurses and all others.

BCGEU is certified as bargaining agent for all but the professional and nursing categories.

The government employees' union said Sunday its members would not cross picket lines at the mainland institutions.

Work was being done by chief engineers and assistant chiefs at Vancouver Courthouse, B.C. Institute of Technology, Haney Correctional Institute, Woodlands School, Pearson Hospital, Jericho Hill School, Riverview Hospital and Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla).

Night shift workers at these institutions had been asked by the union to stay on the job, avoiding a shutdown of operations today. About 3,000 employees would be affected.

Julian Kennett, engineers' spokesman, said inclusion in the BCGEU allows daytime clerks and other union members vote and accept a contract which the engineers had no say about.

He said many BCGEU members don't work nights or on shifts so "how can they vote on those issues for other people?"

This is the first year government employees have had the right to bargain collectively with the government.

Kennett said the main issue in the strike is representation with the wage and fringe benefit issues to be discussed later. When negotiations start, he said, the union will be asking for a $300 monthly wage increase on a base rate of $875.

Kennett said communication with the north and Vancouver Island has not been good.

There is a chance the legislature could be picketed during the strike, he said.

The engineers want Pearson Hospital employees to cross picket lines, he said.

MEXICO TOURISTS WARNED OF POLIO

Victoria-area residents planning to visit Mexico this summer have been warned that a major outbreak of poliomyelitis occurred recently in the Yucatan Peninsula.

A. S. Arnell, regional health officer, "strongly" advises tourists to obtain their basic or reinforcing poliomyelitis immunization before leaving Canada.

Strike Shuts Ford

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. shut down four assembly plants in the United States and Canada until further notice today because a strike at a key stamping plant sputtered the flow of auto and truck parts.

The president of the United Auto Workers Union, Leonard Woodcock, said the strike could result in massive layoffs throughout the Ford system within the next few days.

A company spokesman said he could not confirm that. The strike, which started last Tuesday at the key Chicago Heights stamping plant, halted production of such items as hoods, doors and roofs used in virtually all Ford vehicles.

About 4,000 workers went on strike at the stamping plant over failure to obtain a local contract agreement to supplement the national settlement reached last autumn.

The production halt led to parts shortages resulting in the shutdowns today of assembly plants in Los Angeles, Kansas City, Mo., St. Thomas, Ont., and Oakville, Ont.

Abandoned Baby Seal Air Rescued

VANCOUVER (CP) — A baby seal spent the weekend fighting for life in the Vancouver Public Aquarium after being found abandoned Friday on North Pender Island.

Aquarium officials said the female seal, estimated to be less than two weeks old, is now out of danger and gaining weight.

An RCMP spokesman said the seal was found by a person on vacation on the Wallace Point beach at the south end of the island.

It was picked up by an RCMP helicopter, which was already scheduled to fly from Victoria to Vancouver, after aquarium officials said it would die without a special feeding program.

John Ford, a whale trainer at the aquarium, said about eight seals are normally transferred to Vancouver each year because the aquarium is best equipped to handle them.

Ford said the umbilical cord was still attached to the baby seal. It was given penicillin shots and tube fed to build it up.

Major Ruling Due on Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two years after the Watergate break-in, the supreme court is preparing to make two historic rulings that ultimately may determine if President Nixon finishes his term or faces impeachment and removal from office.

The high court will hand down rulings on the thorny question of executive privilege and on whether a grand jury has the power to name a sitting president in an indictment.

The high court said last week it would hear oral arguments July 8 on both issues and gave Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and Nixon's defence lawyers until June 21 to submit additional written arguments in both cases.

The high court is scheduled to recess for the summer at the end of July, but it may decide to remain in session because of the importance of the two decisions involved.

The cases, which involve legal questions basic to the constitutional concepts of separation of powers and checks and balances, never have been decided by the high court.

Meanwhile, house judiciary committee chairman Peter Rodino says he is seeking to have the chambers of the full house equipped with earphones so the members will be able to listen to presidential tapes during an impeachment debate.

Rodino's comment to reporters amounted to an off-hand acknowledgement that he anticipated his committee would recommend the impeachment of President Nixon — otherwise there would be no need for the earphones.

There was no qualifying phrase, such as "if the committee recommends impeachment," when he discussed plans for floor consideration.

Old Gord's Love Affair: It Didn't Work for Me

People usually laugh when they ask me what I did with almost six months of enforced idleness during the newspapers' closure and I reply that I devoted almost all of it to a single project and that it was, by my own admission, a total failure. "Haw, haw," they laugh or, sometimes, "Tee hee."

To make a clean breast of it, honest tyke that I am, what I had in mind was making the bundle by imitating Gordon Sinclair.

They say there's nothing new in writing, but old Gord hit or stumbled on a formula — praise for the well-nigh indefensible or the complete tour de force — that had my greedy little eyes aflame with visions of enormous profits.

You'll recall that, at a time when revelations were still coming out about Nixon's secret bombing of Cambodia, when it was becoming clear that the White House was a den of pirates and liars, when America was rocked with crime and violence, when the CIA was setting up Chile for the coup de grace, when America was a dirty, seven-letter word in the world, old Gord elected to spring — or creep — to the defence of the U.S. of A.

A three-minute broadcast, written in perhaps five minutes, in praise of the Americans — "the most generous and probably the least appreciated people in all the earth" — had extraordinary repercussions.

John Wayne and Bob Hope loved it. Recordings of it, read over a background of patriotic music usually heard only at the half-time of football games, invaded the best-seller charts along with some of the nation's sicker rock music. Republican newspapers across the land re-printed it. The money began to roll in — the last figure I saw was a half-million dollars — and if Gordon had any second thoughts about turning over the profits to the American Red Cross he kept a decent silence being, I hasten to add, a very decent man.

Anyway, here, obviously, was a formula that needed merely to be copied to put me in the swimming pool brackets and I fairly vaulted to my escritoire.

I wince now to think of the wasted hours I spent in my first effort, an essay to be titled "Lucrezia Borgia Wasn't All Bad." Though it took me days and days to discover it, Lucrezia, in fact, wasn't all bad and all those poisonings and incest are disproved legends. It just shows you how dumb I am and, besides, as I eventually realized, who cares about the Borgias?

(Though, God knows, Cesare Borgia was a cruel, treacherous, unscrupulous, ruthless opportunist who might profit, even at this late date, from the Gordon Sinclair treatment.)

I'd just about abandoned the whole idea, in fact, when I chanced on a report from Berlin noting that the mass of Germans are sick and tired of the continuing tendency to keep alive Nazi history. They're particularly fed up, it seems, with movies that show U-boat commanders peering through periscopes and jack-booted storm-troopers kicking in doors and the rest.

Here, at last, was my market and I immediately began my re-researching and writing for the article I planned to title "Those Swell Guys — the Nazis." Who needs American dollars, I reasoned, when German marks are so much nicer?

In no time at all I was realizing the incredible genius of old Gordon who had discovered that it isn't what you say, but what you don't say, that counts.

You could say, for example, that the Nazis were a popular movement since the support of the masses after the humiliating defeat of World War One began the National Socialist German Workers party. But you'd have to forget that it was the bank-rolling by Krupp and the other armament industrialists that gave Adolf Hitler his strength.

You could say, honestly, that the Nazis cured inflation and unemployment and caused an industrial revolution. You'd have to forget that it was with the aim of conquering the world.

You could say, without fear of contradiction, that the Nazis built the finest roads and finest stadiums in all Europe. You'd have to forget that the roads were built for armored vehicles to reach the borders of countries to be gobbled up, that the stadiums were show-cases for the collective insanity of men and boys in brown and black shirts.

You could say, absolutely truthfully, that the Nazis harnessed German efficiency as never before. You'd have to forget that the greatest example of it was the disposal of six million Jews.

Well, what old Gord had accomplished in five minutes eluded me for almost as many months and when I finally said the hell with it the papers were back in business and I was looking for a new way to make the bundle, like maybe robbing a bank.

Summer of Fun For Youngsters

A full slate of summer workshops organized by the Saanich indoor recreation department will start July 2.

Programs will be held at the Cedar Hill Community Centre, 3220 Cedar Hill Rd., Gordon Head Recreation Centre, 1744 Feltham Rd., and Frank Hobbs School, 3875 Haro Rd.

They include:

—Indoor-outdoor painting for all ages begins July 2 at the Cedar Hill and Gordon Head centres and July 15 at Frank Hobbs. Teacher is Peggy Markham.

—Let's Produce a Variety Show, for children over 6, will help children organize their own show for parents and friends. It begins July 3 with teacher Judy Battison at the Cedar Hill centre.

—Carnival of Special Events will help children from age 6 to 12 plan and publicize their own special events. It starts July 15 at the Cedar Hill centre. Judy Battison is teacher.

—Hath Yoga for anyone over 11 begins July 8 at the Gordon Head centre under Marie Stodel.

—Modern rhythmic gymnastics for children 9 to 14, taught by Gail van Baste-laere, begins July 8 at Gordon Head and July 22 at Cedar Hill.

—Campcraft, nature crafts and hikes for children 7 to 11 will be five daily outings with Judy Battison, beginning July 8 from Frank Hobbs.

—Two folk-dancing evenings for dancers from all clubs and for beginners will be held at Cedar Hill July 9 to 23 at 7:30 p.m.

—Folk dancing followed by a swim for children 9 to 13 begins July 22 at Gordon Head, taught by David and Louise Taylor.

—National and character dance for children over 6

starts July 9 at Cedar Hill and Gordon Head, taught by Sheila Kennedy.

—Carnet bowling for children over 10 starts July 3 at Cedar Hill. Teacher is George Musslewhite.

—Adventures in French, a French program including music, physical activities and crafts, begins at Cedar Hill July 15, taught by Edir Bouillet, Helen Wilson and Diane Blouin.

—Beginners' tap and acrobatic dance for children over 6 starts July 2 at Frank Hobbs and July 15 at Cedar Hill, taught by Velda Scobie. An advanced tap class begins July 15 at Gordon Head.

—Fun with Drama, including mime, movement, theatre and story dramatization for children 6 to 9 starts July 22 at Frank Hobbs.

Painters Share Hobby

New Horizons grants have been awarded to senior citizens' groups in Sidney and Victoria.

A grant of $6,050 has been given the Senior Citizens' Outdoor Recreation Association of Sidney. The grant is to help develop outdoor recreation on land annexed to the senior citizens' centre.

Volleyball and badminton courts, outdoor shuffleboard and checkersboards are to be installed. The rest of the grounds will be provided with park-type tables and benches.

The Senior Painters of Victoria will receive $1,000 to expand their activities.

In addition to their own hobby of painting the group plans to help others develop artistic talents, including retarded young people.

22 Boats In Maui Sea Test

Between them and the land of the Iva will stretch 2,310 nautical miles of Pacific Ocean and the possibility of Pacific highs with their deadening calms and lusty gear-testing gales.

The international event is sponsored by the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and the Lahaina Yacht Club on the island of Maui.

This year there's a field of nine Canadian and 13 American entries.

Two of the boats are from Victoria. Miles Dighton of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will be racing his Ranger 33 Obsession.

Crewing with Dighton will be navigator Dick Marshall, Dave Richardson, John McMullen and Dennis Woodward.

Well-known in local racing circles, this is Dighton's first crack at the Victoria-Maui classic. Because she's small in relation to most of the boats, Dighton has stripped Obsession of everything but the essentials.

Also competing for the first time will be Rod Darby's Spencer 35 Seaway of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

Navigation should be no problem on this boat. An ex-merchant mariner and Royal Canadian Navy veteran, Darby has taught hundreds of Victorians how to navigate through his adult education night classes.

Seaway will be the "family boat" of the Maui armada. Aboard will be Darby's wife, Audrey, their elder son Mike and a younger son, Christopher, who will celebrate his 15th birthday at sea — July 17. Rounding out Seaway's crew will be Bob Leach and Rick Brewer.

Canadian-designed Spencers and Cuthbert and Cassian boats are well-represented in the race.

There are two Spencer 53s, both sloops, from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club — Bill Paterson's Andante and Dick Nelson's Naknek. There's also the Spencer 53 ketch Namu, belonging to R. V. Kubiak of the Sausalito Yacht Club of San Francisco.

Among the other big boats in the race are Odessa, the 53-foot ketch that was first to cross the finish line in the 1972 race, and Temptation, the 57-foot Swiftsure campaigner belonging to W. R. Nelson of the Tacoma Yacht Club.

More smaller boats than ever before have entered the trans-Pacific testing, probably encouraged by the accomplishment of Cherokee in 1972.

Next to the smallest boat entered that year, the 32-foot Seattle sloop was over-all winner with a corrected time of nine days, three hours and 53 minutes.

The smallest boat was Bill Gardner's 31-foot yawl Lucy Alice of the Corinthian Yacht Club. Gardner is back for his fourth try and, as Tom Orr of Royal Van. says:

"You've got to have a hell of a lot of something to do 47 four times!"

Another small boat to watch will be Tinsley Light, skippered by H. B. Grandin of the St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco. She's 35½ feet and designed by Gary Mull, one of the west coast's most prominent marine architects.

The Canadian armed forces' tug St. Anthony will act as escort vessel for the race.

Each yacht will report her position to St. Anthony daily. These will be transmitted back to Canada for daily bulletins.

'A Red Herring' To Help Get Vote

Former Central Saanich alderman Ted Clayards' condemnation of plans for a 12,260-foot marina in Saanich Bay is a "red herring" to help get Clayards re-elected in Saturday's byelection Bob Wright said today.

President of Saanich Marina Ltd., developers of the marina, Wright said:

"It seems to me that he's complaining about the marina as a matter of political expediency. I consider this a bit of 'dirty pool'."

Wright pointed out the area had been zoned for marina use in 1967 and Clayards had not spoken out before at least one term "since the zoning went into effect."

Clayards has said the marina should be cut back in size and moved further north. He has advocated that an artificial island be created near Sidney on a long-range plan with the three levels of government co-operating on it.

Wright said the artificial island was an "absolutely ludicrous" scheme.

"With all the beautiful Gulf Islands we have, to suggest building another one is absolutely ludicrous," Wright said. "He (Clayards) suggests having another aquarium on it. We already have two in Victoria."

"This, in a city of our size is unique in North America and he suggests we have yet another? I'm sure the people of Central Saanich have higher priorities for their tax dollars."

Wright said he regretted having to speak out against Clayards but "the facts have to be set straight."

He said Clayards, who advocates a joint meeting of council, the developers and the East Saanich Indian band, knows that such a meeting is already planned.

"He knew these arrangements were made by council more than two weeks ago, they're already in hand. We're waiting to hear from Gus Underwood (band manager) and there should be a meeting some time this week."

Wright said Clayards was also wrong in saying the marina would cut off public access to the beach and cause tremendous strain on such services as police and fire protection.

"The public has never had access to that beach. It was private property. We've planned so that the public will have access for the first time," Wright said.

"He's been talking through his hat. We've met the police already and the matter is well in hand. We'll have a full-time caretaker and there'll be a gate on the marina approaches."

"As for fire protection, just as it is at Oak Bay Marina, we'll have much more than is required."

Wright said Clayards was "talking nonsense" when he said anti-fouling paint used by the boats in the marina would poll the bay.

"We're not going to have aircraft carriers and destroyers moored there," he said. "It will be every bit as clean as Oak Bay Marina."

He added, "I personally challenge Clayards to a fishing match off the Oak Bay Marina any time of his choice."

"He can use his red herring for bait!"

Construction Picketing Extended

Picketing was extended today by the 10-pact group of construction unions in Victoria.

Today's target was the new Oakland Industries fish plant at Kingston and Montreal where G. H. Wheaton Limited is the general contractor.

Picketing continued at Farmer Construction's nearly finished Chateau Victoria highrise on Burdett.

A union spokesman said the picketing could be extended Tuesday.

In Vancouver, striking wiremen returned to work today on the Granville Street mall and other sites operated by independent contractors.

Four hundred members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and 48 independent contractors reached an interim agreement providing for a wage increase of $2 an hour, raising the rate to $9.86½.

No talks have been arranged between the 10-pact group of unions and Construction Labor Relations Association, the bargaining agent for 850 contractors which is conducting a lockout vote.

Several unions have reached agreements, including electricians and plumbers in Victoria, providing for a $2.90 an hour package over two years with $1.10 coming in the first step.

But the 10-pact unions, while being offered the same wage and fringe benefit package, would get only 85 cents an hour on the date of signing.

Another major issue is the unions proposal for a cost-of-living clause to be included in new contracts.

China, France Explode N-Bombs

Times News Services

China and France exploded nuclear bombs in the atmosphere only hours apart today, the first time in history two such tests were reported carried out in one day.

The Chinese blast deep in the Asian desert was described by the Indian Atomic Commission as a one-megaton blast — equivalent to 1 million tons of TNT. It dwarfed the French test in the Pacific which New Zealand officials put below the 20,000-ton range, probably a missile warhead.

Neither France nor China announced the tests but they were confirmed by outside monitors.

The Indian monitors said China's explosion took place in the Lop Nor testing area in Shikang province, about 1,500 miles west of Peking, at 2 a.m. EDT.

A one megaton bomb has 50 times as much explosive power as the atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Australia and New Zealand said today they were lodging strong protests against the French blast. Japan said it also would lodge a stiff protest once it had definite information the test took place.

In Canada Prime Minister

Pierre Trudeau, called again Sunday for the international control of nuclear testing.

He told a meeting of the Canadian Jewish Congress here that no non-nuclear nation need get into testing itself, since the atomic powers signing the Non-Proliferation Treaty — the U.S., the Soviet Union and Britain — will provide explosions "off the shelf" for developmental purposes.

Although the speech was delivered with the French explosion expected any hour, an aide stressed that Trudeau's remarks were directed more at India than at France.

The French government refused to comment. It never announces the individual tests, but said earlier this month that this year's series will be the last conducted in the atmosphere.

The Australian government said a nuclear device was set off today over the Mururoa Atoll, the French test site 1,000 miles southeast of Tahiti.

Prime Minister Gough Whitlam of Australia said the new tests are a matter of deep concern to his government because they will result in radioactive fallout on Australian territory. He said the French statement that these will be the last tests in the atmosphere was a step in the right direction, but the French government has not given his government "any satisfactory commitment that further atmospheric tests will not be held."

Prime Minister Norman Kirk of New Zealand said he has told his ambassador in Paris to file a strong protest.

France now has set off 53 nuclear devices in the atmosphere since its first explosion in the Sahara on Feb. 13, 1960. Engineers now are drilling tunnels at Mururoa and neighboring Fangatofa Atoll in preparation for underground testing.

MONTREAL (CP) — An immediate increase in the wholesale price of Cadbury chocolate bars was announced today by the Cadbury Division of Cadbury Schweppes Powell Ltd.

The increase is expected to bring the retail price of a 15-cent chocolate bar to 20 cents, the company said.

It is the third time this year Cadbury has raised chocolate prices after 22 years of stability at 10 cents a bar.

John Newton, general manager of the Cadbury Division, said the newest increase was made necessary by continually rising costs for labor and raw materials.

NEWS BRIEFS

Survival Caches Planned In North

EDMONTON (CP) — Plans to establish a system of survival caches in the north to aid downed aircraft pilots and their passengers were revealed during the weekend by Nicholas (Mickey) McClintock, secretary-general of the Order of St. John.

McClintock said in an interview that about 50 of the caches, in eight-foot-high cairns and containing rifles, ammunition, food and signalling devices, will be placed throughout the Arctic.

Tanaka Coming

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka of Japan will make a 14-day tour of Mexico, Brazil and Canada in September. Tanaka will leave for Mexico Sept. 12 for a four-day visit and head for Brazil for a five-day tour. He will then fly to Canada for a five-day stay.

Telephones Picketed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Telephone System switchboard operators set up picket lines at all major centres in the province today with supervisory staff providing limited long-distance service as the strike by 800 operators entered its third day.

Nixon Lawyer Sent To Jail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former personal lawyer, was sentenced today to a minimum of six months in prison and was fined $10,000 for his part in Watergate-related matters.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica gave Kalmbach concurrent prison sentences of six to 18 months on each of two counts of violating campaign practice laws in the 1970 congressional elections.

IRA Bomb Hits U.K. Parliament

Times News Services

LONDON — A bomb believed set by Irish terrorists exploded in an annex of the House of Commons during the morning rush hour today, setting a Parliament building on fire and injuring 11 persons, officials said.

The explosion, which immediately sent hundreds of security men to guard other public buildings, came just shortly before 8:30 a.m. as thousands of Londoners streamed into the city centre on their way to work.

It was the first such attack since Guy Fawkes' abortive gunpowder bomb plot 370 years ago.

The blast shattered a gas main setting off a fire that damaged 900-year-old Westminster Hall, one of the most historic buildings in Britain and imperiled its world-famous hammer-beam ceiling. Fire fighting teams from all over the capital managed to put out the blaze before it did serious harm.

Scotland Yard said it accepted the bombing as a challenge from the IRA that no building or person is safe and rechecked security at Buckingham Palace and other sensitive centres.

Since the Palace of Westminster — a complex of buildings which includes the House of Commons, the House of Lords, Westminster Hall and the tower of Big Ben — has always been considered an obvious target for the IRA it has been under heavy guard.

But an underground car park is being built in the forecourt of Westminster Hall and several score workers, some of them Irish, have been engaged as laborers. With or without inside help a bomber managed to place from 15 to 20 pounds of gellignite in an alcove near the staff canteen.

At 8:20 a.m. today a caller with an Irish accent telephoned Press Association, a local news agency, and said a bomb was due to go off in the House of Commons in six minutes. The caller used a code word that identified his warning as genuine.

The warning was still being circulated when the bomb detonated about 10 minutes later with at least four Members of Parliament already in their offices preparing for today's session of the House of Commons which proceeded as scheduled.

None was among the injured. David Steel, chief whip of the Liberal party, said they got out into the street to find smoke billowing from the building and already almost obscuring Big Ben.

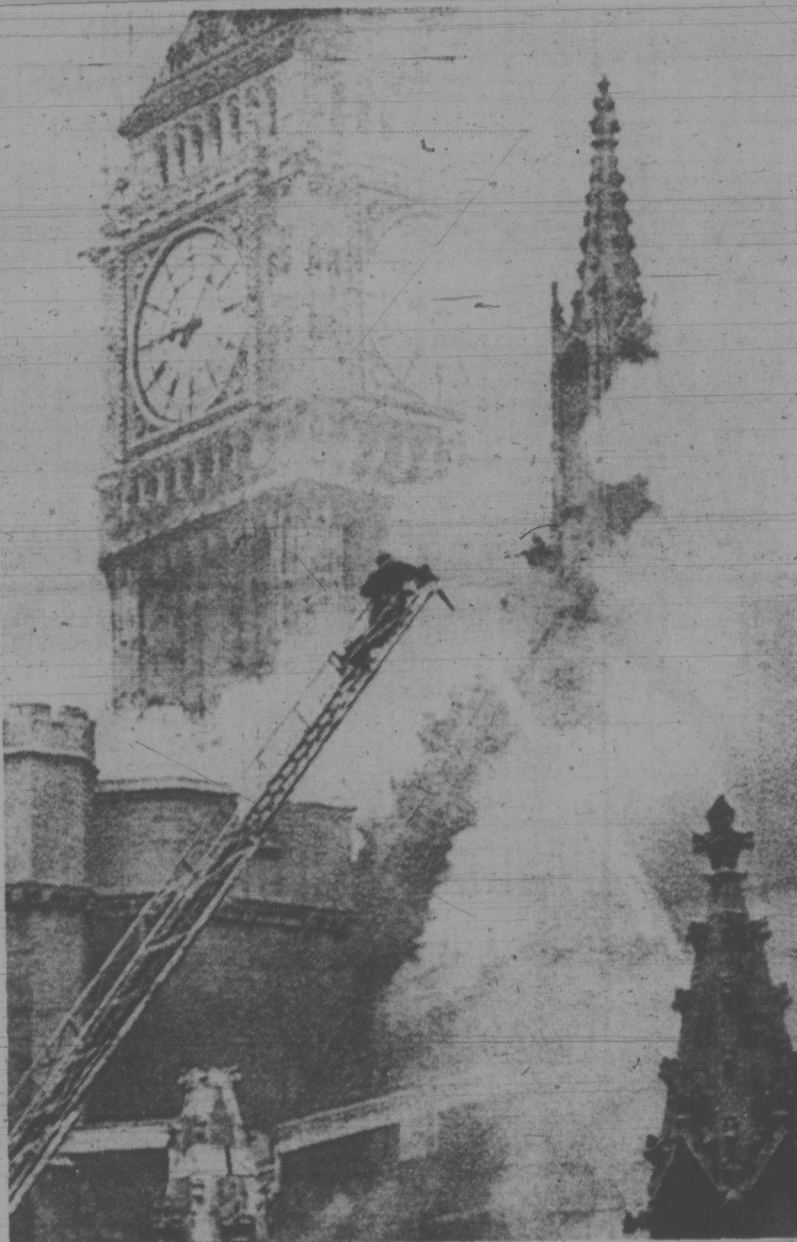

The last actual attack on the Commons came in 1971 when a spectator hurled a tear-gas grenade into the Commons chamber.

The last plot to blow up Parliament was by the rebel Guy Fawkes in 1604. Effigies of Fawkes now are burned every Nov. 5 in England to celebrate the failure of the plot.

Meanwhile, in Belfast, leaders of hardline Protestant groups today began a three-day conference to discuss proposals by a paramilitary group for a cease-fire and peace talks with the Irish Republican Army, militant Protestant sources said.

Hopes for a truce were buoyed by a statement from the more radical of the two IRA factions, the Provisionals.

"The Republican movement will not be found wanting in its willingness to talk," said Seamus Loughran, a leader of Sinn Féin, the Provisionals' political arm.

Trudeau Pledges Ottawa Will Subsidize Transit

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau today pledged a Liberal government to an urban transit assistance scheme that would cost between $275 million and $300 million over the next five years and would have the federal government paying a considerable share of initial transit costs in cities.

The prime minister, enunciating phase two of the Liberal transportation policy for the July 8 federal election campaign, said:

"A Liberal government would pay the total cost of Canadian-produced commuter vehicles and 50 per cent of the cost of stations of new commuter systems that have the approval of federal, provincial and municipal authorities.

Aides said this assistance to bring people in from the suburbs of such major cities as Toronto, Montreal and perhaps Vancouver would cost the federal government about $50 million in the next five years.

—It would pay 25 per cent of the capital cost of Canadian manufactured vehicles in federal-provincial-municipal approved public transit systems.

Aides said this program for all major cities would cost about $100 million over five years.

—It would provide financial and other kinds of support to encourage Canadian industry to provide the right kind of equipment and municipalities to come up with total transit systems. Aides said this would cost $50 million in five years.

—The prime minister mixed the government's already announced policy on railway relocation with an offer to make the best use of railway rights-of-way for transit work as the

Empty House For Protest

By LINDA HUGHES

At least 500 protesting miners are expected to demonstrate on the lawns of the legislature Friday, but they'll probably play to an empty house.

MLAs made an agreement last week to prorogue the spring session Wednesday and most politicians will head for constituencies as soon as the marathon session ends.

But a spokesman for the Majority Movement, helping to organize the Save Our Jobs Committee demonstration against the government's mineral royalty legislation, said the protesters are coming anyway.

"MLAs will now be getting cables from various mining groups asking them to keep the legislature in session," said the spokesman.

"If they choose to ignore them than that will be on

Most IWA On Island Stay Off

Thousands of loggers and millworkers on Vancouver Island ignored their union leaders today and refused to work.

But on the mainland, most operations were reported to be running normally.

The men either didn't go to work on the island or were faced with unofficial pickets and went home.

The last contract between the International Woodworkers of America and Forest Industrial Relations expired at midnight Friday and today was the first full production day.

Roughly 80 per cent of the 14,000 IWA members on Vancouver Island were off work.

Negotiations for a new contract were continuing in Vancouver today amid union appeals to the men to stay at work until called off officially.

"The way to get an acceptable agreement is to negotiate it at the table," said IWA regional president and negotiating committee chairman Jack Munro. "We have arrived at some category revision settlements and made progress Sunday. I am optimistic."

Victoria IWA members met Sunday and voted "by an overwhelming majority" to support the negotiating committee and abide by the decision to stay at work, said local first vice-president Jack Groves.

Despite this, Sooke Forest Products, 400 workers, and Victoria Plywood, 200 workers, were shut down today after unofficial pickets appeared. Two logging operations, Canadian Puget Sound and Butler Brothers, employing close to 200 men, were also reported shut.

The B.C. Forest Products sawmill in Victoria ground to a halt late this morning after part of the production crew, planer mill men and green-chain workers, walked out. The mill employs 500 on three shifts.

The companion plywood mill, which employs 450, was still operating at noon and a company spokesman said the mill's powerhouse, which is in the sawmill section, was still operating.

Duncan IWA officials reported "everyone shut down" including operations at Chemainus, Yonbou, Honeymoon

Flood Spilling In Okanagan

KEREMEOS (CP) — Osoyoos Lake topped its flood protection level of 915 feet above sea level Sunday evening and was continuing to rise.

Water was backing up in the Similkameen River from Nighthawk, Wash., into the lake.

At 8 a.m. Sunday Osoyoos Lake had risen six inches in 24 hours. The flow of the Similkameen River, measured at Hedley, B.C., had increased to 24,800 cubic feet a second from 22,800 c.f.s. Saturday morning.

And at Nighthawk, a small community just south of the international border, the flow had risen to 30,100 c.f.s. Sunday from 27,000 c.f.s. Saturday.

Residents of a trailer court at Nighthawk were watching water from the lake gradually creep closer to their homes Sunday, although the water was still two feet below the level reached in 1972.

At Keremeos, emergency groups replacing dikes along the Similkameen destroyed Friday, faced a new problem Sunday.

Pat Meehand of the Water Rights Branch of the British Columbia resources department said a spring created by water seeping under the dike had appeared and could easily wash out a road which runs on top of the dike.

A crew of 20 girls from a nearby school filled and placed sandbags in a 10-foot circle around the spring.

Two families were forced from their home Saturday as the Keremeos Creek broke over its banks, ruining vegetable and hay fields.

Several hundred acres of land, part of the normal flood plain, south of Keremeos, were under water, Earle Anthony, water rights branch engineer, said Sunday. He added that high water tables were expected to remain indefinitely.

Meanwhile in the Fraser Valley, the Fraser River at Mission was at 18.47 feet above sea level Sunday from 17.56 Saturday.

MAN, DAUGHTER DIE WHEN BOAT FLIPS

A Powell River man and his three-year-old daughter drowned early Sunday at Rock Bay, 25 miles north of Campbell River.

Raymond Norbury, 35, and daughter Iona drowned when their boat capsized after mooring for the night because of rough seas.

Norbury's wife and another daughter, 15, were on shore, about 25 feet from the boat.

Car accidents claimed three other lives on Vancouver Island during the weekend.

Patrick Tisdale, 21, of Campbell River died Sunday afternoon in a rescue helicopter en route to Vancouver after he was involved in a head-on collision on Highway 28 north of Campbell River.

Corinne Miller, 22, of Nanaimo was killed early Sunday morning when a car in which she was riding hit a power pole and flipped over into a ditch near Nanaimo. Driver Lindsay Valliere of Nanaimo suffered minor injuries.

Adam Pierce Ashley, eight, of Campbell River died late Sunday afternoon when a car driven by Shirley Mullenberg of Campbell River struck him on the Island Highway just south of Campbell River.

Huge Fish Kill at Port Alice

As federal fisheries and provincial pollution control officials today continued their investigations into a massive fish kill near the Rayonier pulp mill at Port Alice, a Pollution Control Board spokesman in Victoria said it appears that lowered oxygen levels in Neurotoxin Inlet caused the deaths.

But James McCrossan, PCB public information officer, said it is still unclear to what extent effluents from the mill operation were responsible, as a number of other factors could have complicated the circumstances surrounding the kill.

A strong wind had been blowing up the inlet for two days when the company first reported the discovery of dead fish last Thursday, he said, and a large vessel had just entered the waters, churned up the bottom and

"generally stirred up the whole situation."

Estimates of the dead hake, which have surfaced in the immediate area, range as high as 8,000, and hundreds more have been washed up on beaches up to 10 miles distant.

Dissolved oxygen content in the inlet waters is predominantly a summer problem in the operation of the sulphite pulp mill, McCrossan said, and this summer the company is having to work to a new set of rules stipulated under its pollution control permit.

McCrossan said company officials had been "up to the mark" in reporting the fish kill promptly, and cutting back production while investigations were in progress.

In Vancouver, an official of the federal environment protection service said today the actual cause of the kill hasn't been "pinned down," and fisheries officials are uncertain whether the dead fish reported 10 miles away at Quailsford died from the conditions which caused the inlet deaths.

Last March, Rayonier was fined $1,500 on each of two counts after being convicted of polluting fish-bearing waters in September of 1973, when about 10,000 herring were found killed in the inlet.
